Castro Balks, POWs to Explain Position

U.S. Lied On Shift, He Claims

Final Offer Was For 500 Tractors

KEY WEST, Fla. (AP)—Prime Minister Fidel Castro rejected today the latest offer of the Tractors for Freedom Committee but said he would send a delegation of captured rebels back to the United States to explain his position to the American public.

In the rejection, reported by Havana radio, Castro charged that the committee lied when it accused Castro of changing his position. He said the committee tried to confuse public opinion.

Deadline Was Noon

The Tractors for Freedom Committee had set a noon deadline today in a take-it-or-leave-it ultimatum that capped nearly a month of negotiations.

The committee's final offer was to exchange the prisoners for 500 bulldozers of various types, mostly farm tractors.

It said that if Castro failed to accept, money received from contributors to the tractor fund would be returned to the senders.

The radio quoted Castro as saying that from the very beginning he had clearly specified the number and type of tractors he wanted.

Castro originally offered to exchange the men captured in the April-18 invasion of Cuba for 500 bulldozers. In his proposal, May 17, Castro used the English word "bulldozers."

Held Out for 1,000

After meeting in Havana with representatives of the Tractors for Freedom Committee, Castro said he would accept smaller types of tractors, but stipulated that he would have to get 1,000 of them, instead of 500.

In his reply to the committee today, the radio quoted Castro as saying the committee had been silent about an alternative proposal. That proposal, he said, was to abandon the tractor deal if the captured invaders were exchanged on a man-for-man basis for an equal number of "political prisoners" in the United States, Puerto Rico, Guatemala, Nicaragua and Spain.

Silent on Exchange

Castro also said the committee had been silent about another proposal to exchange the invasion leaders for Francisco (the Hook) Molina, a pro-Castro Cuban who is awaiting sentencing in New York City on a second-degree murder charge; Pedro Albizu Campos, a Puerto Rican nationalist leader who is under guard in a San Juan hospital, and Henry Winston, a jailed American Communist party leader.

The three invasion leaders are Capt. Manuel Artime, Jose San Roman, and Rafael Bolivar Fuente.

The committee had asked Castro for a list of prisoners who would be subject to the exchange. The original number was 1,214 but Castro's list included only 1,167.

Today, the radio quoted Castro as saying the 1,167 were the only ones of the group who were inno-

Vote Plan For Aiding Deprived

Screening Is Done On School Pupils

The Kingston Board of Education (Consolidated) Thursday night approved Operation Able, a program to assist "severly deprived" students of high educational potential who are not producing at capacity.

The deprivations may be economic, cultural, domestic, etc., school officials explained.

Cost of the program, 50 per cent of which will be underwritten by the state, is estimated at $20,000 for the school year 1961-62.

Thinks of Average Students

Howard Fox of Kingston voted against the proposal, arguing that he would prefer to see such funds applied to the improvement of the average students of the district, who form the "bulk" of the school population. He said he supports the classes for advanced and retarded chlidren but feels the board should concentrate on doing a better job with its average students.

Benson A. Krom of Hurley abstained from the vote, explaining that he didn't think he "would like to vote one was or another on the spur of the moment like this."

Those in Favor

Andrew T. Gilday of Kingston said he had "mixed emotions" regarding the proposal but "I'd be willing to give it a try."

Also casting votes in favor of the proposal were President Robert Herzog, Vice-president Robert O'Reilly, David Kline, Mrs. Vincent G. Connelly, Arthur Withall and George Schneider.

Implementation of the program next year will provide for one class of talented students in the sixth grade who are working below their potential, two classes of seventh grade students with extension of the program into the eighth grade.

Dr. Earl F. Soper, superintendent of schools, said it will require an additional teacher on the sixth grade level, the help of a psychologist for a month of testing, an additional teacher at the seventh grade level remedial reading, primarily) and a guidance counselor.

There would be about 30 students in each of the two seventh grade classes, and one class of about 25 on the sixth grade level. The sixth grade class would attend the George Washington School.

Screening Children

Appearing before the board to present the program were James Tobin, director of pupil personnel services, Mrs. Marion Gregory, elementary supervisor, and Jacob Nolfo, a guidance counselor.

Nolfo said that much work has been done in preparation for the program, that the student population in the sixth, seventh and eighth grades is being screened in the quest for high

Herzog, O'Reilly Attend Their Last School Parley

Robert H. Herzog, president of the Kingston Board of Education (Consolidated), and Robert B. O'Reilly, vice president, attended their last meeting of the board at an adjourned session Thursday evening in Kingston High School.

Their terms expire July 1 at which time they will be succeeded a s board members by Mrs. Edith Case Murphy, Kingston, retiring head of the KHS mathematics department, and Bernie Singer, a Kingston businessman.

To Elect July 1st

The board will hold an organizational meeting at 9 a. m. Saturday, July 1, at which time a new president and vice president will be elected. The board will also elect its clerk and appoint a tax collector for the district. Dr. Earl F. Soper, superintendent of schools, serves as clerk. Mrs. Edna S. Morgan is the district tax collector.

Herzog is completing 17 years as a member of the board, O'Reilly a total of 10.

Leaders Seven Years

For the past seven years Herzog has served as president of the board, and O'Reilly as vice-president.

Herzog, a prominent Kingston businessman, and O'Reilly, a public accountant, received the plaudits of school officials and fellow board members last night at the termination of their current five-year terms.

Dr. Soper expressed his "sincere thanks" for the "six enjoyable years" he has spent since coming to the board in 1955. He told the retiring board members that he is "very grateful for their help and cooperation" and that they have made "a tremendous contribution to the educational welfare of children in the school district."

Hears Praise for Two

He said that throughout the community he has heard frequent testimonials to the excellence and loyal service of the two men and regrets that their terms are expiring.

Herzog responded briefly, saying that he appreciated the cooperation he has received and that he has "really enjoyed my 17 years on the board." He wished the board a "lot of luck" in the future.

O'Reilly said, simply, of his 10 years of service, that he had "enjoyed it very much."

Herzog was appointed to the board in May, 1942, departing for military service a short time later and serving during the school years of 1944-45 and 1945-46 in the armed forces.

In May, 1946, he returned to the board of education.

First Election in 1948

In May, 1948, he was elected president, continuing to serve in that capacity until 1951 when he was succeeded by Clarence S. Rowland. Rowland served until May, 1954, at which time Herzog was reelected. He has served continuously since that time.

O'Reilly, a graduate of Siena College, has served the board as chairman of its important finance committee, and has also served as a member of a number of other committees during his tenure.

He served in the U. S. Army for 26 months during World War 2.

Consultant Says Tie Jobs Together

The Kingston Board of Education (Consolidated), Thursday night rejected bids totaling three-quarters of a million dollars for construction of the Mary's Avenue elementary school and decided to call for new bids next September in conjunction with bids for the proposed junior high school in the Forsyth Park area.

The board acted after Whitney Murphy, consultant for Perkins & Will, school architects, advised that the building is not worth the money.

$90,000 Over Allocation

The bids on actual construction of the building, plumbing and electrical work, etc., amounted to $769,066—approximately $90,000 beyond the budget allocation.

The total square footage of the proposed elementary school is 31,258. The bids came to $21.85 per square foot.

Murphy said certain revisions might be made which could result in savings of approximately $46,785, leaving a net cost beyond budget of $42,881. This saving would reduce the cost per square foot to $21.01, still a dollar or more above the normal cost of such a building, Murphy stated.

A 'Gamble', He Says

He said it is difficult to conceive how the bids next September could be worse, although he conceded that it is a "gamble."

Tying the two schools (Mary's and the new junior high) together for bidding next September might attract some good outside bidders, he said, which might produce at least as good a bid.

George Schneider moved that the bids be rejected and put out again next September along with bids for the new junior high school, for which preliminary plans have been approved by the State Education Department.

Vote Is 8 to 1

The board voted eight to one to reject the bids, with Andrew T. Gilday casting the negative ballot.

Gilday said he feels that the board is "just delaying the issue, and that it doesn't know that the bids will be any better next September.

The board has been three years on the Mary's Avenue school, he said, expressing the view that failure to begin construction of the school is a "mansized job of stalling."

Murphy explained that it is difficult to conceive how the bids could be worse, that the bids were priced higher than any other school to come out of the office of Perkins & Will in many years. "It's just not worth it," he concluded.

He said occupancy would be delayed if the bids are rejected. It might be another year's delay before the school could be occupied. "You are gambling on the winter," he said. He explained

Suspension or T-H Action

Maritime Groups Hear U.S. Plan for Accord

NEW YORK (AP)—A rapid-fire series of meetings was called today for parties in the eight-day maritime strike to decide whether to accept a government peace plan.

They could accept Labor Secretary Arthur J. Goldberg's proposal for a voluntary 60-day suspension of the three-coast walkout or face the possibility of a Taft-Hartley Law 80-day injunction.

The meetings were set up by William E. Simkin, director of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service.

JFK Ready to Act

He was to meet in succession with marine engineers; the powerful National Maritime Union; the Masters, Mates and Pilots, and then with representatives of the shipping owners.

President Kennedy is ready, if the striking unions and industry agree, to name a three-man committee to weigh all issues and produce a recommended solution.

Goldberg called for acceptance by 1 p.m. EST Saturday.

At that time, Goldberg has an appointment to report to Kennedy. The labor secretary didn't mention the likelihood of invoking the Taft-Hartley law's 80-day emergency injunction provision in the event of a rejection, but his remarks on the gravity of the situation indicated as much.

"If this stoppage is permitted to continue," he said, "it will contribute seriously to worsening the nation's trade and dollar balances."

Losses in Millions

In New York, there was no immediate comment officially from ship owners or from the various

Kennedy Is Fine Today, Has Last Talk With Ikeda

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy, "feeling fine" in the words of an aide, deserted his sick bed today and played host to Japanese Prime Minister Hayato Ikeda.

Kennedy, confined to bed Thursday by a bacteria and virus infection, posed for photographs with the prime minister and then walked into the driveway of the executive mansion to bid a personal farewell.

Pays Farewell Call

Ikeda paid a farewell call closing out three days of high-level talks.

The crutches that a back strain had forced Kennedy to use before he was felled by illness were nowhere in sight. He walked slowly, but if he limped at all it was so slightly as to be hardly discernible.

Kennedy canceled a scheduled wind-up conference with Ikeda Thursday after coming down with the virus infection which shot his temperature to 101.6 degrees before it broke. His doctor reported late Thursday that he was recovering very nicely. Kennedy set out to prove it today.

Yields to Advice

He did, however, yield to advice from the White House physician, Dr. Janet Travell, and agree to remain in his second-floor living quarters in the mansion. Kennedy had passed the word that he planned to divide his time between the mansion itself and his office in the west wing.

Dr. Travell made it clear that

To Raise $3,108,789 by Taxes

Board Adopts School Budget of $5,621,907

The Kingston Board of Education (Consolidated) took final action on the proposed budget of $5,621,907 for the school year 1961-62 at its adjourned meeting Thursday night in Kingston High School.

The tentative budget, which is an increase of $358,689 over the present fiscal year, was approved last month and a public hearing held, as required by law.

It received its final approval last night. A total of $3,108,789 must be raised by local tax levy with a tax rate of $39.27, compared to $37.94 during the current year—an increase of $1.33.

Other Action of Board

The board also:

1. Accepted with regret the resignation of Reginald Russell, supervisor of transportation.

2. Decided to seek signatures to a petition of property owners on Mary's Avenue between West O'Reilly and Andrew Streets for sidewalks, curbing, etc., in anticipation of construction of the Mary's Avenue elementary school.

3. Took note of academic excellence in student testing, and the steady advance in quality in relation to the national testing average.

4. Appointed an elementary school supervisor, Thomas Guerriero of the Spring Valley School. Ruggiero will work in association, with Mrs. Marion Gregory, who holds a similar position.

5. Took cognizance of a new combined purchasing program in the cafeteria system, initiated by John W. Johnson, director,

Newburgh Welfare Revolt Seen Threat To Federal Aid, Two Point to Merits

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP)—The state might be able to avoid loss of all federal welfare aid because of the Newburgh revolt by taking over operation of that city's welfare program, a federal official said today.

There was no indication of what the state planned to do, however, over plans of Newburgh to set stringent new welfare rules, many of them in conflict with state law.

The State Board of Social Welfare will meet tomorrow in New York City to discuss the issue.

Joseph O'Connor, regional director for the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare, said federal aid for welfare was given to states with the understanding that all welfare operations within those states conformed to federal laws.

If there were any defection in any part of the state, he said, the entire federal allotment could be cut off.

$150 Million From U.S.

The federal government pays nearly $150 million a year to the state for public welfare. State costs total nearly $170 million and localities provide the balande of the annual half-billion-dollar cost of public relief.

Newburgh, faced with sharply rising welfare costs, has adopted rules to limit the size and duration of welfare payments, to require recipients to work and to require newcomers seeking relief to supply evidence they had a firm offer of employment before they came.

Third for Welfare

Nearly one-third of the city's $3-million budget for 1961-62 has been earmarked for public welfare.

Of that, the federal and state governments provide more than $500,000.

City officials have said however, that, to meet the local share, the current tax rate of $31 per $1,000 might have to be raised $10.

A spokesman for the State Social Welfare Department said that more than half of Newburgh's proposed regulations, scheduled to take effect July 15, were "clearly in violation of the law."

Will Wait to See

O'Connor said the federal government would wait to see what action the state took before deciding its course.

He said it was up to the state to maintain the conformity required for federal payments. The state might be able to maintain this conformity by taking over Newburgh operations itself until the situation was resolved, the official said.

O'Connor said, however, that he knew of no case in recent years in which the federal government cut off welfare payments to an entire state.

In any event, he said, no action would be taken until the proposed Newburgh regulations were actually put into effect.

Would Encourage City

Senate Majority Leader Walter J. Mahoney said yesterday the state should encourage, not fight, Newburgh's efforts to cut relief costs.

The Republican leader said there should be a re-evaluation of state policies with an eye toward giving localities greater home rule in setting welfare regulations.

Rep. Katharine St. George, R-New York, said in Washington recently that there was overwhelming backing for the Newburgh

Rocky's Office Looking Into $1,250 Student Aid

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Gov. Rockefeller was embroiled today in another controversy over state aid to higher education. This one involved a loan agency's decision to authorize less money to undergraduate students than the limit set by the Legislature.

Settlement Expected

A controversy that flared earlier this month was expected to be resolved today, however, with a Board of Regents announcement that payments under the state's new scholar-incentive program will be made directly to students, rather than to colleges. The Regents are winding up a two-day meeting here.

Meanwhile, the governor's office looked into the plan of the Higher Education Assistance Corp. to hold state-backed loans to senior college students to an annual $1,250 limit, $250 less than the $1,500 maximum the 1961 Legislature authorized.

Not His Idea

The Republican governor asserted the corporation's decision was not in line with his understanding of "the spirit and intent of the law."

Republican legislative leaders also split over the loan plan.

Assembly Speaker Joseph F. Carlino expressed sympathy for "the position of the students." Senate Majority Leader Walter J. Mahoney said the loan program could be expanded gradually.

Seniors, who will be eligible for $1,250, heretofore could borrow only $1,000. Loans to juniors were raised from $750 to $1,000. The corporation left unchanged the limits of $500 for freshmen and $750 for sophomores.

Rift Begins to Heal

The rift between the governor and the Regents began to heal shortly after Rockefeller criticized the board's plan to pay scholar-incentive grants to colleges. Appraised of the governor's displeasure, the Regents immediately decided to reconsider.

Under the scholar-incentive plan approved by the 1961 Legislature, qualifying New York residents attending colleges within the state will receive outright grants, up to $300 a year for undergraduates and up to $800 for graduate students.

No Appeasement: Munro

Says Big 3 Should Fight for Berlin

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP)—Sir Leslie K. Munro of New Zealand, 1957 president of the United Nations General Assembly, said today the United States, Britain and France should fight for West Berlin if necessary.

Munro, now the assembly's special representative on Hungary, dealt with the Berlin issue in a speech prepared for the 44th annual convention of Lions International.

He said Soviet Premier Khrushchev, in demanding his own Berlin solution before the end of this year, "is taking great risks."

Munro explained: "How far, he must ask himself, are the peoples of the United States, Britain and France ready to fight for Western Berlin? I believe they should. . . .

"An appeasement over Berlin would only lead to further demands, for successful dictators are insatiable. . . .

"If Khrushchev in January 1962 acts through a puppet Eastern Germany to strangle Western Berlin, will the congress of this country act to support the President in warlike measures or war itself to save the city?

"This is a question for you to answer. It may also be asked by Britain and France."

Talks Reveal New Policy on Seating Red China in U. N.

CHICAGO (AP)— The Chicago Sun-Times said today that the United States, in talks with Japanese leaders in Washington, reportedly unveiled a new policy regarding the entry of Communist China into the United Nations.

In a dispatch from Washington by Frederick Kuh the newspaper said China's entry would involve for the first time U.S. consent to seating the Chinese Communists in the U.N. Assembly. However, the dispatch added that U.S. officials privately state that the entire purpose of the exercise would be to jockey Peiping into the position of refusing a seat in the U.N.

The newspaper said the reported plan was confided to the Japanese mission headed by Prime Minister Hayato Ikeda which just completed a visit to Washington. The plan, according to the dispatch, was supposed to have been related by Secretary of State Dean Rusk to Japanese Foreign Minister Zentaro Kosaka.

The Sun-Times said a member of the Ikeda group described the proposal as the "successor-state theory," explained this way:

1. This description means that instead of the single China, there now are two Chinas—heirs or successors of the old China. One is Communist China, the other Formosa.

2. Under the successor-state theory, China's U.N. seat would be divided in two.

3. The plan foresees Nationalist China retaining its seat in the 11-nation Security Council and the 99-nation General Assembly. However, Communist China would receive only a seat in the assembly for which it would have to apply to the assembly's credentials Committee.

4. This would be dealt with as a procedural matter by the assembly, thereby avoiding a Chinese Nationalist veto in the Security Council.

Newburgh . . .

plans and she doubted federal aid would be cut off.

"They wouldn't dare," she asserted.

Mitchell's Statement

Meanwhile, Newburgh City Manager Joseph Mitchell issued this statement today in comment on the situation:

"No other government unit has the right to spend tax dollars with no tangible results, and no other government unit is allowed to botch up a community and get away with it but welfare can and does.

"It is simple pie to issue relief checks and to visit the homes of welfare recipients once every month to get a form initiated.

"But to effect true rehabilitation and have this rehabilitation reflect upon the social and economic health of any city is difficult—to safeguard the local economy is difficult.

"I do not see where the state welfare efforts are helping anyone—they are obsessed with paper work, uniformity and reimbursement—not in the social and economic fates of the areas in which they operate.

Calls It Social Madness

"Unless the sum total of all individual case work reflects in the improvement of local police, fire, sanitation, housing and health conditions, welfare has failed, and we have enough evidence to show that here in the past 11 years so-called case work has been a gigantic boondoggle costing the taxpayers nine million dollars.

"Aid to dependent children has risen 300 per cent in the city of Newburgh—this is welfare? No. This is financial and social madness."

of diplomatic immunity and threatened to deport him as illegal alien if he did not leave. It acted a lot tougher at the finish than it did at the start.

The Czechs broke the story a week ago when their U.N. mission charged two U.S. intelligence agents, in the company of a known Czech defector, tried to hire Nacvalac as a spy on the previous Tuesday—June 13.

Demand Made He Leave

It took the U.S. State Department six hours to come up with charges that Nacvalac was a spy who gave U.S. agents the false impression he wanted to defect. The United States sent a note to the Czech mission demanding that Nacvalac get out of the country because of "improper activities."

Nacvalac meanwhile made himself available to reporters with an account of two U.S. agents named "Mr. Mack and Mr. Jack" interrupting his smorgasbord luncheon at a New York restaurant to enlist him for espionage.

He said he was with an American friend talking about favorite spots for bass fishing—a friend for whom he said he had obtained Czech mushrooms and sheet music from home.

On Monday Czechoslovakia rejected the U.S. demand that Nacvalac be recalled, saying it violated the U.S.-U.N. agreement giving special status to the U.N. headquarters site and diplomats attached to it.

Was Working for FBI

On Tuesday the United States fired off a memorandum to Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold charging that Nacvalac, in a series of meetings in California paid $1,700 to a naturalized American of Czech descent for information Nacvalac thought was highly secret. Actually, the United States said, the American was working with the FBI and the information he passed was worthless.

Nacvalac, again meeting with reporters, denied the detailed U.S. story as a fabrication and said he had never been in California. The State Department produced pictures it said showed he was there.

he would prefer him to stay in his upstairs quarters. He received Ikeda there.

Aides reported Kennedy feeling "fine."

Kennedy, usually on the go constantly, was sidelined all day Thursday by a mixed bacteria and virus infection that hit him in his sleep. On the advice of White House physician Janet Travell, he stayed in bed.

Drugs Cut Fever

By late afternoon, Dr. Travell reported he was "making a very nice recovery," was feeling much better and his temperature was normal. It had jumped to 101.6 degrees at 7 a.m., but under an attack of drugs had retreated to the normal 98.6 four hours later.

After checking him over again at 4 p.m., Dr. Travell told reporters the president had "a lot of zip" and had demanded to know: "How much longer do I have to hang around here?"

Kennedy was then undergoing his enforced rest in his bedroom in the White House living quarters. He had dozed at times during the day, sitting up in his pale blue pajamas to consume three bowls of chicken broth.

Scraps Crutches

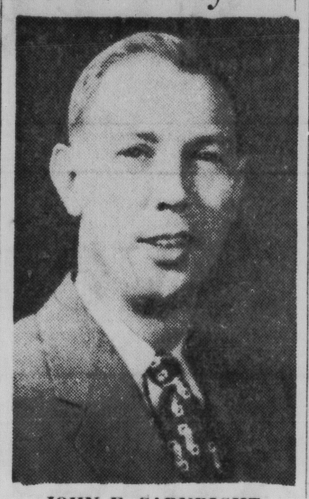

Thursday was the day set for Kennedy to demonstrate recovery from his back injury by scrapping the crutches he had been required to use since June 9. He scrapped them—but not in the fashion intended. He awoke from his sleep at 1:30 a.m. with a sore throat and fever. He promptly called Dr. Travell, who hurried over from her home in the Georgetown section of Washington.

Doses of penicillin and an antibiotic called tetracycline, plus rest, apparently stemmed the infection.

450 to 480 Deaths Likely During Long 4th Holiday

CHICAGO (AP)—A week from today American motorists will start rolling out on the highways in volume to enjoy the long July 4 holiday weekend.

For 450 to 480 of them it will be their last outing. The National Safety Council as yet has not calculated a definite estimate of the holiday highway toll but says its figure will fall somewhere within that range.

The council's traditional estimates and the attention that news media give to the accounting of holiday fatalities has come in for criticism of late. While some safety campaigners insist that the warnings have a salutary effect, others maintain that extraordinary attention is given to death totals that would mount up whether or no a holiday were involved.

One statistic stands out. The safety council reports that the death rate over holidays has been decreasing steadily. It believes the attention given to holiday accident news by the press, radio and television has been a major, if not the major factor in producing that decrease.

Figures collected over the years by The Associated Press support the council's position that holidays are greater killers than ordinary days. The death toll any day of the week, any month of the year is shocking; over a holiday it is even more so.

To establish some yardstick whereby the public can gauge the holiday toll in relation to the normal toll, The Associated Press has been making surveys two weeks before each major holiday: New Year's Day, Memorial Day, July 4, Labor Day, Thanksgiving and Christmas.

Repairs Are Due For Bridge to Vanderbilt Site

The National Park Service of the Department of the Interior will make extensive repairs to the historic and picturesque White Bridge that spans Crum Elbow Creek on the entrance road at Vanderbilt Mansion, it was announced today by Robert H. Atkinson, superintendent of the historic site.

Atkinson said that the bridge, although structurally sound, has suffered some deterioration in recent years by water seeping through cracks in the concrete of the soffit of the arch, and expansion from freezing has caused the cracks to open wider. Such condition, if neglected, might eventually weaken the structure, Atkinson said.

Constructed in 1897

The bridge is of the arch-span design and was constructed in 1897. The main span is 75 feet and rests upon reenforced concrete abutments that are flanked by wingwalls. The balustrades are ornamented with 140 balusters and capped with coping that has unique cornices. The bridge, known as a Melan Arch Bridge, is reported to be one of the first steel and concrete bridges constructed in the United States.

It is a stated policy of the National Park Service to maintain, where possible, such historic structures in their original design. Therefore, the architecture of the bridge will not be altered. The repair work will consist of removing the road surface, fill and other material from the bridge, waterproofing the soffit of the arch, supporting the wingwalls with stone masonry, installing sub-surface drainage, backfilling and resurfacing the road. The exposed concrete will be repaired where needed and the balustrades will be repaired and old balusters will be replaced.

To Open Bids July 12

Bids for the proposed work will be opened on July 12. It is estimated that the work will require approximately 60 days for completion. During the term of the work, the main entrance will be closed and all traffic will use the North gate that is located on U. S. Highway 9 abreast of the Hyde Park Playhouse, about 300 yards north of St. James Episcopal Church.

Plans, specifications and bid forms are available and will be distributed upon request from the office of the Superintendent, Vanderbilt Mansion National Historic Site, Hyde Park.

VFW Would Allow Policy Renewals, Pay $100 Pension

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — The State Veterans of Foreign Wars urged the federal government today to allow veterans to renew National Service Life Insurance policies that have expired for any reason.

A resolution supporting such action was approved unanimously at the second day of the VFW's 42nd annual meeting here.

The House of Representatives approved such a bill last year, but it was defeated in the Senate.

In another resolution, the VFW asked that pensions for World War I veterans be increased from $66 and $78 to $100 a month.

Saved 20,000 Jews, Eichmann Testifies

JERUSALEM (AP) — Adolf Eichmann claimed today that he saved 20,000 Jews from extermination by diverting them to an already overcrowded ghetto in Lodz, Poland.

The former Gestapo officer charged by Israel with major responsibility for the Nazi extermination of six million Jews also claimed that the diversion of the 20,000 to Lodz was the first and only time that he had the chance to make such a decision.

Otherwise, he asserted, his superiors were responsible for extermination orders and he only arranged for the transport of the jews to the death camps.

"I had the choice personally to determine the fate of these 20,000 Jews," he told the three-judge Israeli court, "and I did not want them to be sent to the East where I knew extermination was going on but sent them to Lodz where I knew that no such thing was going on."

The former Gestapo lieutenant colonel, in his fourth day on the witness stand, testified:

1. SS Gen. Heinrich Mueller, his immediate superior in charge of Department IV of the security police, had "the direct contact" with the Einsatz commandos, the blitz battalions that murdered two million Jews, partisans and Gypsies in the East.

2. Interior Minister Wilhelm Frick and SS Reichsfuehrer Heinrich Himmler teamed to create the framework that led to the deliberate extermination of the Jews on an order from Adolf Hitler.

Eichmann certified documents introduced by his counsel, Dr. Robert Servatius, as showing that Gestapo Department II supplied the gas vans and trucks used by the Einsatz commandos.

"I gave no orders nor made any arrangements. My Department IV-B-4 had no connection with these affairs," Eichmann declared.

The trial recessed for the weekend, after today's testimony.

The list includes books for adult patients as well as young people.

The board also heard a comprehensive report on hospital purchasing and prices, made by the Committee on Hospial Service and Purchases, following a detailed survey of the various hospital departments. The meeting went on record to study and act on recommendations in the report.

New Milk Product Introduced in State

ITHACA—Ice milk, which will go on sale legally in New York State July 1, is a delicious frozen dessert new to the Empire State but not to consumers in many other areas of the country.

This is the word from Cornell University's ice cream man, Prof. William K. Jordan of the New York State College of Agriculture.

Jordan, who teaches a course in ice cream manufacture, describes ice milk as lower in calories than ice cream. At the same time, he says, it's processed the same way, with the same equipment, and is available in the same flavors as ice cream.

"The ingredients for ice milk cost about five cents less per quart than those for ice cream," Jordan says. "This will probably be reflected in a lower cost to consumers."

Do You Remember by Sophie Miller

The Jensen Antique Show recently held at the New York State Armory on Manor Avenue brought books of Kingston and Ulster County, by antiquarian book sellers like T. Emmett Henderson, who is from Middletown. One of these books is difficult to describe. It was published by Gustave Anjou, PhD, dated 1906 with an introduction by the late local historian, Judge A. T. Clearwater, LL.D. It is really a set of two volumns, a careful translation of Dutch and English wills, letters of administration, etc., from 1665 of local people.

Judge Clearwater writes in part: "The history of Ulster County may be said to consist of four periods, the first of which, began with the establishment of a Dutch trading post at Ponckhockie, junction of the Hudson and the Rondout, in 1614. . . . To the Dutch, more than to any other people, America owes its civil and religious liberty, and its wise and tolerant system of laws. . . . To the Dutch also, the world is indebted for the system of recording deeds, mortgages and wills, and from the earliest settlement to the present the records of Ulster have been scrupulously and accurately kept, running back in unbroken succession for over 250 years. (These books were published in 1906). The early records he speaks of were written in Dutch.

It seems the original records, in a number of well worn and much thumbed volumes, originally bound —some in vellum, some in sheepskin—have a mysterious history never solved. They were in the county clerk's office in Kingston until around the 1850's then disappeared. Every effort to find them was unsuccessful. The grand jury instituted an investigation, and the Board of Supervisors offered a liberal reward but it did not help.

Then one summer's day of 1895, an express company truck pulled up before the county clerk's office and delivered a large strange box. Lo and behold it held the long lost records. They were carefully covered with a waterproof wrapper and even closely packed with cotton wool. The shipping address was from a small Long Island village, but the name or address of sender not given. Perhaps now, 60 years later someone knows the answer to this mystery.

Some people thought at the time, that the records had been sent to a Dutch scholar in Brooklyn to be translated, and he might have died before he began the work, and after his death, his family sent them back here. After they were returned, they were carefully examined by Isaac Clearwater, father of Judge Clearwater who spoke and read Dutch as well as English. He recognized their great importance to this community and advised they be translated into English at once.

When the board of supervisors of the county met the following November, Judge Clearwater brought the facts and necessity of these most important local records to be translated from Dutch into English at the expense of the county. The board at once passed such a resolution and it was adopted by unanimous vote and Judge Clearwater appointed commissioner for this work. More from these records in a future column.

I wonder if any of the readers have an inactive savings bank account, ten years or older. Did you notice that an Act of the 1961 N. Y. State Legislature is requiring the banks by law to turn over such money to the comptroller of the State of New York. To prevent your money from being taken you can make a deposit or just have the interest entered on your passbook.

SAFETY OF MOTORISTS

In which do you feel it safest to ride—a train, a plane, or a private automobile? It it is important to have the vehicle built according to approved standards of safety, both train and plane have it all over the car. There are no federal controls over automotive safety design, though there are for both rail and air equipment.

It is not said that federal standards and controls are the only answer. Automobile manufacturers have put many safety devices into effect, and they could do more along these lines. The trouble is that safety engineering has lagged far behind what is known in this field.

It is generally thought, for example, that the inclusion of seat belts as standard equipment would greatly reduce both the number and seriousness of accident injuries. Car builders have been slow to send out all their cars with seat belts, claiming that buyers do not like them. But air and rail passengers are not consulted as to whether or not they approve of certain safety devices; these are installed when it seems advisable, without consulting the passengers' wishes.

The situation with regard to private cars is somewhat different, granted. Still, one would be hard put to argue that it is proper to safeguard air and rail passengers but improper to safeguard motorists and their passengers. Perhaps it is time for society to insist that the safety of the motoring public be protected by safer automotive design as well as by speed laws and the like.

MAN THE DICTIONARIES

It used to be that when a war broke out the citizen soldiery would, as William Jennings Bryan once phrased it, "spring to arms overnight." The side with the greatest number of sharp-eyed squirrel-rifle-toting backwoodsmen was pretty likely to win.

Now look what we're up against. The U. S. Air Force and Hughes Aircraft Co. have just launched a program to assure "a more timely completion of an improved defense against the threat of air-breathing bombers and missiles; acceleration of systems to provide ballistic missile warning; and an improved deterrent position."

To accomplish that, testing had just been completed on an infrared search and track device for jet fighter interceptors. Also being developed are "a redesigned radar antenna, counter-counter measure capabilities and a parametric amplifier which reduces interference in the radar system." All of this, says Gen. Thomas D. White, USAF chief of staff, "will speed up improvement of the nation's overall military position."

Sounds as if the first piece of equipment which will have to be issued to the squirrel rifle citizen soldiers is a dictionary. Or maybe what has happened is that this fighting business has run off and left the old-timers of Chateau Thierry and Omaha Beach. If this keeps on there'll be no romance left in war. And that might be the best deterrent of all.

Proposed atom shelters would be no good in case of a direct hit—which may be why the proposal hasn't been much of a hit.

TEST OF THE COOK

Backyard cookery, these days, bears little relationship to what used to be called "roughing it." What the patio chef does is more closely allied to tea and crumpets in the parlor than it is to pioneering.

Nothing underscores this fact quite so drastically as a day or two of culinary endeavor when one is camping without so much as a fireplace grill. It soon becomes evident that a lot of firewood must be burned to provide a satisfactory bed of coals—and that even then there must be judicious replenishment from time to time. Keeping a frying pan level becomes a major engineering feat; stirring the soup without searing the hand becomes a challenge. And those blackened pots, even when they're soaped at the start! Yep, conditions on the patio are mighty civilized.

THE PRESIDENT'S DILEMMA

Those who expect the President to act like a conservative Republican are asking too much from a Democrat with Fabian Socialistic leanings. On the other hand, the Democrats who believe that President Kennedy will carry forward the ailing program of Harry Hopkins are also mistaken, for as idealistic as John Kennedy may seem to be, he comes of hard-headed practical stock.

Those who assumed that the President would be a figurehead under the captainship of his father, Joe Kennedy, misunderstand any father-son relationship. No matter how wise a father may be, a son naturally is a product of his own generation and will sooner or later go his own way. The Kennedy family is extraordinarily talented and close-knit and while it is interesting to note the loyalty of one member for another, it is not to be expected that they will all have the same viewpoint. Age, experience, temperament will affect them as everybody else in this very complex world.

John Kennedy is likely to be an altogether different man in 1964 from what he was in 1960. Four years in the White House at a climactic period will not only influence his attitude but he is still young enough to grow intellectually as well as emotionally. He is not likely to become so set in his ways that he cannot adjust to the facts which confront him.

Vienna is a case in point. He went to Vienna without a program on an exploratory visit with Khrushchev. He was undoubtedly advised that this was a smart thing to do by the negative-minded eggheads who may be specialists in particular fields but who lack imagination and far-sightedness. Vienna was a failure for John Kennedy in that Khrushchev used it to belittle him, but it was a success from the standpoint that Kennedy has learned that he cannot deal with Khrushchev by any standards with which he is familiar.

Khrushchev is a liar, not diplomatically as Tallyrand might have been, but overt and direct. Khrushchev is brutal and no conversation between him and anyone can be confidential because he regards the refinements of international relations as bourgeois absurdities like a white tie or patent leather shoes. Kennedy had to learn this for himself, apparently. He could have known it from Nixon's experience, from Eisenhower's experience, from Hammarskjold's experience. But he wanted to see whether he could not succeed where others failed. Now he knows.

This was a costly search for knowledge, but it is worth the price if the President has learned who misled him concerning Cuba, Laos, and Vienna. Or if he was not misled, if he pursued his own course, he now knows from experience that he could not deal with Khrushchev; that communication with a Communist requires not only a different language but that the moral responsibilities of men are on a different basis in West and East.

To have learned that early in his career will prove to be a great advantage to Kennedy. It will make him more suspicious and more cautious and he will observe who in his entourage seeks to lead him into a position which will destroy him politically and bring shame upon his country. It is likely that those who are responsible for the Vienna fiasco will not last long in this Administration, although it is often difficult to fire men from important positions without losing face or developing a political scandal.

The President's dilemma now is how far can he move away from those who joined his campaign without political offense; how far will practical experience drive him from the ideological positions which he had accepted as correct during the years when he was a Senator. He will have to reach a decision soon or his Administration will suffer from indecision and if he decides on a firm policy, he will have to let those men go who cannot be trusted to carry forward a policy from strength. John Kennedy unfortunately does not have too long to reach a decision. As General MacArthur said to him: 'The chickens have come home to roost" and he is in charge of the chicken house. Abraham Lincoln and Herbert Hoover were on the same spot almost as soon as they were elected to the Presidency. They were elected at a climactic moment. So was John Kennedy.

Limit Use of Sneakers To Avoid Foot Trouble

By HAROLD T. HYMAN, M.D.
Written for Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Q—A school principal asks "Should sneakers be worn by children in place of shoes or should their use be limited to gym activities?"

A—Most of the foot disturbances of later life are the result of the combination of slovenly shoeing and misuses and abuses of the feet.

Each of these causes contributes to the other. Faulty gait causes faulty wear of shoes. Faulty shoes produce faulty gait. And the combination of the two faults eventually produces fallen arches, bunions, ingrown toenails, corns, plantar warts, hammer toes, foot strains and most disturbances of the lower back (so-called "lumbago").

Now a school principal would probably have to neglect all of his many other duties and obligations if he tried to correct faults in gait. And I doubt if parents or children will pay much attention to his recommendations about shoes. Good shoes are expensive and they take a terrible beating. And sneakers are the order of the day with most of th younger set, especially since they're easy to slip on and off. So with no great confidence that my advice will be heeded, I nevertheless would urge limiting the use of sneakers to gym activities if I had anything to say about the matter.

Q—"I've just been married and our first child was a mongoloid. I know the condition is very rare but I can't find out if there's a chance that our next child will be the same. My husband and I both love children and we just couldn't stand being disappointed again. Our baby only lived a few months."

A—According to best available sources of information, mongolism is probably in the category of embryopathic disorders. That means that the disturbance occurred to the baby during the months that it was carried in its mother's womb. Hence it is not apt to occur to the next baby as it would if it were due to some hereditary disease or disorder.

I would certainly encourage our correspondent to make at least one more trial of pregnancy.

However, it might be a wise precaution for both parents to have complete examinations, including blood tests, before conception is attempted.

Then, if all is well, as I am sure it will be, they will have every prospect of producing a fine, healthy baby.

"First Time I've Ever Been Torpedoed on Land"

Washington News

BY PETER EDSON
Washington Correspondent
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

WASHINGTON (NEA) — An important first suggestion that all federal government's fiscal, monetary, spending, taxation, credit and international financial programs be better co-ordinated with the larger private business sectors of the economy in the interests of greater stability has just been presented to President Kennedy. It is the result of three years of study by a private, nongovernmental Commission on Money and Credit—CMC.

NO PROGRAM AS SWEEPING AS THIS is going to be presented to Congress or enacted by the lawmakers this year or next. It might take as long as five years for any large proportion of the commission's 80 specific recommendations to win acceptance.

CMC does not attempt to set forth a blueprint for the whole economy nor does it propose excessive government regulation. Most of the changes it recommends could be effected by minor amendments to the Full Employment and Federal Reserve Acts and by subsequent executive orders.

THE THREE BASIC GOALS would be to maintain low-level unemployment, adequate economic growth and reasonable economic stability. No numbers are attached to these objectives.

The Commission on Money and Credit which worked out this plan has been made up of 25 business leaders, bankers, economists and representatives of farm, labor and other special interest organizations.

It was set up in 1957 by Committee for Economic Development—CED—a research group of progressive leaders organized during World War II. Its present chairman is Frazier B. Wilde, board chairman of Connecticut General Life who also served as CMC chairman.

With the help of $1.3 million in grants from Ford Foundation, CMC lined up 110 economists who compiled 11,000 pages of reports which researched every study ever made in the fields of monetary policy, fiscal policy, public debt, private financial institutions, federal credit programs, international monetary relations, and economic growth.

The commission's seven task forces on these subjects boiled all this down into a 300-page report, "Money and Credit—Their Influence on Jobs, Prices and Growth, published by Prentice Hall and now being given wide national distribution.

NO MEMBER OF THE COMMISSION ENDORSES ALL 80 of the report's recommendations. It is filled with footnotes of individual dissents on specific points. But all 25 CMC members, ranging from liberal left to conservative right, endorse its general objectives. This is something of an achievement itself.

One of the key recommendations—and one which will probably arouse most controversy—is that whenever U. S. business conditions run counter to objectives of the Full Employment and Federal Reserve Acts, the President would be required to make a special report to the country.

It would set forth existing economic conditions, steps being taken by government to handle it, explain any inconsistencies and make any further recommendations deemed advisable for congressional action.

Additionally, a flexible income tax rate for the first 20 per cent bracket would be authorized by law. The President would be authorized to adjust this rate five points up or down—25 per cent—whenever it is determined that the U. S. economy is moving into a period of recession or inflationary excess.

This change in the basic tax rate would be subject to congressional approval or rejection within 60 days. The rate change would be effective for six months, by which time the shift in the economy could be corrected.

Many of the CMC's 79 other recommendations on fiscal, and monetary matters, international payments, credit and debt management are incomprehensible to people not experts on them.

THE PRESIDENT'S ANNUAL ECONOMIC MESSAGE to Congress, special reports of the Council of Economic Advisers and hearing of the Joint Congressional Committee on Economics have considered these subjects piecemeal ever since the Full Employment Act of 1946 was passed. In 1952, 1955 and 1959 there were extended congressional hearings with special emphasis on Federal Reserve problems. The CMC report marks the first time the whole field has been covered so thoroughly.

Berlin Issue Held Artificial In Eyes of Both East, West

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, June 22—Artificiality over the Berlin issue prevails on both sides.

When Nikita Khrushchev dresses himself up in a soldier suit with the rank of lieutenant-general and makes a speech full of hints of war, Secretary of State Rusk calls it sabre-rattling," which it probably is.

Similarly, when the West carries out a military demonstration by its troops in Berlin that's called a routine "alert" the Soviets know this is done for effect, too.

Basically, neither side really believes that the other is going to war as a consequence of the Berlin issue. But the Soviet premier knows that, if he signs a peace treaty with East Germany, the initiative afterwards in a military action will have to come from the Western allies. The mere signing of a treaty between the Soviet Union and East Germany's so-called "Republic" isn't an act of war of a threat of war. But if the East German government, at the behest of Moscow, starts interfering some day with the routes of access to West Berlin, military force could be used by the Western allies to protect the transportation of any supplies of the movements of their forces to and from the city.

So a huge bluffing match is going on. Each side wants to impress the other that it means business. President Kennedy comes back from his talks with the Soviet premier in Vienna and uses the word "somber." The briefings here to the press are characterized by words that convey a feeling of gravity and deep concern. But Secretary Rusk then tells his news conference that, while Khruschev's latest speech is a "keen disappointment," he would hardly regard the Communist utterance as the most serious threat since World War II.

Somehow the idea that any shooting war will come of it all seems at this moment to be somewhat illusory. There isn't the mobilization for war on either side that would naturally precede the kind of crisis being envisaged in so many press dispatches and in television commentaries today.

The real debate is in the court of world opinion. The Soviet premier knows this and is trying to make his proposed program with respect to Berlin seem a part of an effort merely to bring about a "reunification" of Germany — something he really doesn't want. What he does want is to embarrass the West and divert attention from other areas of the world where the Communists are infiltrating.

The Western allies, on the other hand, feel firmly grounded in their contention that the Berlin issue involves a matter of good faith and the honoring of agreements made when World War II came to an end.

Evidently the Soviet premier is well aware of the double role played by the Communists in that war. His latest speech was made on the occasion of the twentieth anniversary of Hitler's attack on the Soviets—June 22, 1941—after the Communists had given him military assistance for the first twenty-two months of World War II. The Soviets—as Hitler's ally—thus helped to protect the Nazi armies from attacks which could otherwise have kept them very busy on a front in Eastern Europe. As is was, the Nazi dictator was given a free hand to overrun Holland and Belgium and to attack France and Great Britain in Western Europe. France could not have been conquered if there had been an eastern front to battle to Hitler's armies. In fact, World War II might never have occurred if the Communist government in Moscow had not double-crossed Britain and France and made an alliance with Hitler just a few weeks before he attacked Poland in September, 1939.

Premier Khrushchev, apparently aware of this weak spot in Communist history, tried in his speech to cover up and excuse the 1939 alliance of the Soviet Union with Hitler. The Soviet dictator now says:

"It was the perfidious policy of the ruling circles of Britain and France that compelled us to conclude a non-aggression pact with Germany in August 1939."

But the published documents giving the details of the conversations between the British and French diplomats and the Soviet envoys—including the notorious Molotov — give the lie to the Khrushchev claims. The tragic truth is that the Kremlin thought that, by staying out of the conflict, it could profit by the defeat of Britain and France and that Hitler would be taken care of later when Germany had been weakened by a lengthy war. Instead, Hitler, after conquering the western section of the European continent as he held Britain at bay, deliberately attacked the Soviets. The West was not enthusiastic about helping the Communists but had no other choice as the common objective then was to beat Hitler.

Even during those war days the devious and treacherous behavior of the Communist regime in Moscow was the cause of constant suspicion. These suspicions were later borne out by the way the Soviets refused again and again to honor their war-time agreements. They now are trying in the controversy over Berlin to welsh once more on their written pledges given to the very Allies who saved Russia from destruction.

Only in the court of public opinion can the guilt of the Communists be established. For they themselves are atheists who do not believe in morality or in honoring any pledges they may have given. To them the end justifies the means.

AS PEGLER SEES IT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

NEW YORK, June 22—When Harry Truman asked one of his seminarian strollers on a morning walk in New York, "Why don't you clean up your own back yard?" He may have referred to the repulsive aspects of homosexuality on Lexington, Third and Second Avenue in the evenings and in Washington Square and Greenwich Village at large.

It does no good for the pot and the kettle to bandy filth, but I have never seen in any American city a condition like that which affronted my hardened gaze on my return from a sojourn of six months beyond the Hudson. This is a terrible state of affairs and I now suspect that homosexual activity was what the paper and the agencies had in mind in their lightsome, almost frivolous, discussion of the bongo parties and singing and the objections of the rent-paying neighbors and the police to all that down at the foot of Fifth Avenue.

On the other hand, in my travels about the south I have seen a really startling and heartening improvement in the scene that meets the eye and a drastic change for the better in the outward condition of the Negroes as well as of the socially and financially lesser whites. I did not go into the mill towns, which are represented as a mere transferral to the southern tier of the squalid poverty and dejection of the swaybacked textile towns of New England of 40 and 50 years ago. However, I have old friends in some of those important new bolls on the stalk of the southern economy and society and they assure me, on my trust in them, that the south is not the laggard and rather sullen south of the days of the second Klu Klux.

In Jackson, Miss., in Shreveport and Baton Rouge, La., and in Charleston, S. C., the south is washed and pressed and the schools are incomparably better than those of the pathetic city of New York where luckless children of baffled young parents are forced by law into omi[illegible] association in appalling material conditions.

Recently there was a noisy disclosure of graft in the building and repair of schools and of dilapidation fraught with rats, sewage and many threatening cultures of disease in more than 400 such schools. These schools are evil to the naked eye and it must follow that the spiritual effect of crowding under such conditions is tragic to the children and the parents who naturally are young men and women just groping their way in a clumsy, incoherent metropolis.

I know very little of the truth of the career of William O'Dwyer as mayor, but he is certainly by far the most intelligent and intellectual mayor who has served the city since the first war. And he said, briefly, in an all-too-sketchy interview in The New Yorker a few years ago, that the city was simply ungovernable under the political apparatus provided by law. But every effort to protect these poor people from the failure of a political method and the impositions put on them by political superstitions of "democracy" is accompanied by the certainty of heartless graft and resultant degradation and suffering. Southern cities would be aghast at the average condition, material, social and moral, of the public schools in New York.

Jackson, Miss. has changed and so has much of the outlying state in an energetic burst of development that compares with the extension of highways in the northern systems. But I remember in observing all this that the countryside I had learned to know was almost sad in a sort of resignation to economic inferiority. Allen C. Thompson, the mayor of Jackson, a handsome young fellow with graying hair, has learned to apply the "public relations" magic of our airlines and of the Miami Beach of 25 years ago to the reputation of a spirited, generally excellent capital city. So against the abusive campaign of northern radio-teevy and magazine reporters and photographers, he has instilled in some journalists wandering that way a friendly desire to depict Jackson as she is and is trying to be.

Judd Arnett, of the Detroit Free Press, formerly managing editor of The Savannah News, went by just before I arrived in Jackson and wrote a fine, gentile article in his humane, literary idiom which made me aware of the change before I could observe it myself. The local journalism is intelligent and certainly does not toady to the New York spirit, a fault often found in reporters who want to attach themselves to New York papers and magazines.

And though I have walked the streets of many southern cities in recent years, I have nowhere seen the almost frightening defiance of decency I have recently seen in New York. This is something new and thus far it is local to New York and a reminder of Berlin in the days before Hitler, and of London much of the last 20 years. When men paint their lips and primp their hair and blink false eyelashes on the streets of a metropolis it behooves that metropolis, as Harry Truman said, to look to its own back yard, not to send rioters into decent communities.

AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK (AP)—Individuals' savings are getting fatter. And merchants are getting restive.

Retail sales have risen slightly in recent days after barely holding even with last year through most of 1961.

Savings Rate Growing

But total savings have risen much faster—at a greater rate, in fact, than any time since the 1958 recession. People have the money. Many are holding onto it.

Something has to give, the merchants figure. And when the consumer starts buying again in his old free-wheeling way, the recovery now centered largely in manufacturing will be confirmed. Even more reassuring to the retailers, especially those handling durable goods, will be the time when consumers return to the good old American way and the volume of new instalment debt starts to swell.

But when?

Some count on summer weather to soften up the buying instincts. Others think that the real recovery will follow Labor Day, when vacation expenses are out of the way, and jobs may be more plentiful and seem safer.

If you doubt that savings have been increasing, because your own haven't or may have shrunk, here's the official figures of the Securities and Exchange Commission.

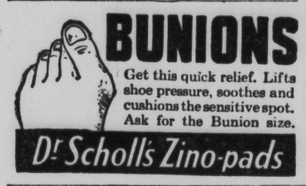

Say Trend Continues

It says they went up by $5 billion in the first three months of 1961, or $1.8 billion more than in the like period a year ago. Banks, savings & loan associations, insurance companies and mutual funds report the trend has continued.

Some retailers thought sales of big-ticket items were sticky because people were putting their money into the stock market. But the SEC says that except for investment in mutual funds and U.S. savings bonds the holdings of securities dropped by $1.1 billion.

Brokers also have noted that in recent weeks holders of small amounts of stock have been selling rather than buying, leaving much of the stock market support to the institutional investors.

A grand total of 358,557,075 lines of ROP Color advertising was run in newspapers in 1960. This represents a 25 per cent gain over 1959.

Hurley Stone House Day To Be Held Saturday, July 8

The Womens Guild of the Hurley Reformed Church will conduct its annual Stone House Day on Saturday, July 8, 1961. There will be 16 stone houses open to the public from 11 a. m. to 5 p. m., with continuous cafeteria service available in the church educational building.

Ladies of the village, attired in colonial costume, will act as hostesses and guides in each of the 16 homes. Tickets will be on sale at the church, or can be obtained at the Cornelius T. Kool house for those tourists coming from the direction of Ellenville and vicinity.

300th Anniversary

Hurley is proudly celebrating its 300th anniversary. It is situated three miles south of Kingston on Route 209 South. Use Exit 19 on the N. Y. State Thruway.

The Jan Van Deusen House, built in 1723, is Hurley's House of History and will again be open to the public. This house was the capitol of New York State after the burning of Kingston in 1777. It features a secret room in which the State records were kept. Miss Ruth C. Waterbury is the present owner.

The Col. Gerardus Hardenbergh House also will be open. It was the birthplace of Sojourner Truth, the famous negro evangelist, born in 1775. Mrs. Lyman T. Schoonmaker is the present owner.

The Spy House or Old Guard House, another very historical building was built in 1745 and will be open for inspection. Here Lt. Daniel Taylor was confined, later tried and convicted as a British spy and was hanged from an apple tree across the road. George Kent is the owner.

Other Houses to Be Shown

Other houses on Hurley's tree lined Main Street to be shown are: The Abram Elmendorf, built about 1780, still has the original floors of unusually wide boards and also the original hardware. This large stone house is owned by Mr. and Mrs. Christopher Morris.

The Crispel House, built in 1790, is the Hurley Church parsonage. It is now occupied by Rev. and Mrs. Harold Schadewald and family.

The Ten Eyck House, built in 1780, was a stop on the underground railway in pre-Civil War days, for slaves fleeing to freedom in Canada. Mr. and Mrs. William Gaffken own this historical house.

The Bevier House is also believed to be among the oldest houses in the village. It is now the home of the Hiller family.

The Polly Crispel cottage is the name by which this small stone house has been known, builder unknown. It was originally a blacksmith shop. It is now owned by Mr. and Mrs. Richard Winter.

The John P. Elmendorf House still has the hand hewn original beams, four fireplaces and an enclosed cistern in the cellar for cooling food. It is now the property of Mr. and Mrs. George Jacobson.

The "Nieuw Dorp" still contains the original fireplaces and old mantles. Its present owners are Mrs. Helen Anderson and Miss Nellie Davenport.

Outskirts of Town

On the outskirts of town, on the Hurley Mountain Road, visitors may see the Mathew Ten Eyck House, which has been in the possession of the DeWitt family for over 150 years. It is now occupied by Dr. and Mrs. David Gerbarg. The Newkirk House built in 1750, will be open. The present owners are Dr. and Mrs. John Hofler. The Captain Newkirk House was built prior to 1750. It is now the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Robert MacKinnon.

On Route 209 toward Ellenville three more houses will be open. The gracious Houghtaling House, which has been restored by its present owners, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest LeFevre. The Johannes DuBois House is a charming house of Dutch Colonial design and owned by Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Glendenning. The Cornelius T. Kool house built about 1690, combines Dutch with English architecture. This large stone house is presently owned by Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Waligurski. Mr. Waligurski is Town Historian for Hurley.

New Operation Nightwatch Will Keep Mishap Toll

New York is one of seven states participating in "Operation Nightwatch," a new traffic accident reporting facility announced today by the Street and Highway Safety Lighting Bureau.

"Operation Nightwatch" will collect night traffic death figures from New York throughout the Fourth of July weekend. The figures will cover the period from sunset to sunrise, Friday, Saturday, Sunday, Monday and Tuesday. They will be phoned to Cleveland at 7 a. m. Saturday, Sunday, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday and will immediately be available to news media.

Purpose of "Operation Nightwatch" is to point up the importance of visibility to safety in traffic. People don't, as a rule, seem to realize how much more dangerous it is to drive at night. In "Operation Nightwatch" we are providing an opportunity for them to 'look at the record.'

Traffic statisticians know that more deaths and more serious injuries result from night accidents, despite the fact that only a third as many vehicles are operating. The reason is that drivers just don't see the sharp curve, stalled car, or other hazard until too late. They rely on their headlights and, at modern speeds of 55 and 60, the stopping distance is inadequate. Fixed source lighting at 100 hazardous locations has reduced night deaths 64 per cent.

It is felt that "Operation Nightwatch" over the Fourth of July weekend will help create an awareness of the importance of adequate light to safe visibility at night.

Screen Rights Sold

NEW YORK (AP) — Before its arrival on the Broadway stage, the screen rights to Tennessee Williams' new play, "The Night of the Iguana," have been sold. The announcement of the purchase, by Ray Stark and Eliot Hyman, reported the price at a half million dollars. Casting of the film is to be announced later. The drama is scheduled for Broadway production in the autumn.

JFK Warnings Are Ignored

Rusk Says West Must Be Ready in Europe

Editor's Note—How is the West reacting to Khrushchev's latest threats on Berlin? Endre Marton, veteran AP State Department reporter, discusses the situation in the following article which contains background and interpretive material.

By ENDRE MARTON

WASHINGTON (AP) — The West is planning to step up its defenses in Europe as evidence of its determination to stand firm on Berlin.

High-ranking officials, in reporting this today, referred to the seriously worded statement Secretary of State Dean Rusk made at his news conference Thursday. He blamed the Soviets for the tension in the world and restated the Western position on Berlin.

No Soviet action, Rusk said, can extinguish the right of the Western powers in Berlin. Western forces are to remain in the divided German city, he added, and no peaceful solution can be reached at the expense of Western obligations in Berlin.

"The United States and those associated with us are clear and firm about our obligations to ourselves and to the people of West Berlin," Rusk said.

To Bolster Readiness

The Western powers, informants said, are planning to quicken the beefing up of Atlantic alliance forces in Europe and to increase their state of readiness. This will be done quietly and without fanfare but in a way that should serve as notice to the Soviets.

The thinking behind this strategy is, officials explained, that Soviet Premier Khrushchev does not seem to have been sufficiently impressed by the warnings President Kennedy repeatedly has made. In the past, it is recalled, the Soviet Union often paid attention to a show of force where words were of no avail.

Consultations Continue

Meanwhile, the United States continues consultations with its allies on the U.S. reply to Khrushchev's June 4 aide memoire on Berlin. The consultations started in Washington last week when Foy D. Kohler, assistant secretary of state for Europe, conferred with Sir Evelyn Shuckberg of the British Foreign Office and with Jean Lalois, French specialist on German affairs.

The State Department now is waiting for advice from Paris and London through normal diplomatic channels and the U.S. reply to the Soviet note is expected to be ready in about a week or 10 days.

Before that, however, Llewellyn Thompson, U.S. ambassador to Moscow, will have returned to his post. He is due back on the job next Monday after Washington consultations.

It is expected that Thompson will have the opportunity to see Khrushchev and make the U.S. position clear before the American reply reaches Moscow.

Militant Tone Noted

In his statement on Berlin on Thursday, Rusk said that the "militant tone" Khrushchev used in a speech Wednesday was disappointing. State Department specialists on Soviet affairs are now trying to find reasons for the sudden toughening in Khrushchev's language.

This change also puzzles Washington diplomats, including some from behind the Iron Curtain. Both American and foreign observers concede that their answers are based mainly on speculation.

Reasons for Bluntness

Here are the reasons, as listed by the best available sources, for Khrushchev's blunt aggressive language:

1. The Soviet leader has to produce something tangible to satisfy the Soviet Communist party congress when it convenes next October. There are still influential party members who side with the Red Chinese and consider the Khrushchev line in international politics too soft.

2. There is sufficient basis to believe that Khrushchev got only a limited time at the last conference of Communist parties in Moscow last November to prove that his coexistence policy can achieve the sacred goal, the spread of the Communist doctrine, without wars.

3. According to another school of thought, voiced by some diplomats in Washington, Khrushchev is still probing to find out how far he can go in brinkmanship. He is making a last effort to see whether he can find a weak spot in Kennedy's armor.

Hinkle is Named To Alfred Post

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — The State University Board of Trustees today approved the appointment of Walter C. Hinkle as president of the State Agricultural and Technical Institute at Alfred.

Hinkle, acting president since last November, will assume the $15,280-a-year post July 1. He succeeds Paul B. Orvis, who last year was named State University executive dean for institutes and community colleges.

Hinkle has been affiliated with the institute at Alfred since 1937. The institute's council nominated him for president.

Meanwhile, Gov. Rockefeller announced these reappointments:

Herbert Griffin of Oxford, to the board of visitors of the Women's Relief Corps Home at Oxford, for a term ending February 1968.

The governor appointed Dr. Everett Centerwall of Greene to the same visitors' board, for a term ending February 1964. He succeeds Raymond A. McLaughlin of Johnson City, who resigned. The appointments are subject to Senate confirmation.

The posts are unsalaried.

Guardsman Loses Life in Crash

THERESA, N.Y. (AP) — An Army National guardman was killed early today when an automobile in which he was riding struck a concrete bridge abutment on Route 37 in this Jefferson County village.

State Police identified him as Douglas McNamara, 22, of Ogdensburg. He was a member of Company A, 279th Engineers (Amphibian Equipment), which is undergoing summer training at Camp Drum.

U. S. Moon Try Due Next Year, Unmanned Shot

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States will try to hit the moon early next year with an unmanned spaceship called "Ranger."

Space agency officials who told of the plans Thursday said the Ranger—10 feet tall and 750 pounds — will carry television equipment to transmit pictures of the moon's surface back to earth.

Financial and Commercial

NEW YORK (AP) — A quiet stock market nudged moderately to the upside early this afternoon.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon rose .50 to 244.90 with industrials up .80, rails up .30 and utilities up .20.

Gains and losses of most key stocks were fractional. Many issues were unchanged.

The average was moved upward by a mostly higher tone in utilities, aircrafts, retails, electrical equipments and rails. Nonferrous metals, tobaccos, drugs, oils and chemicals were irregular.

A gain of well over a point by American Telephone brought this big stock further along the comeback trail and was a help in supporting the averages. Other market wheelhorses, General Motors and Jersey Standard were firm. Du Pont rose close to a point.

The Dow Jones industrial average at noon was up 3.32 at 688.94.

Doubt Laos Progress

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP)—The East-West conference on Laos appeared destined today to dawdle along doing little until King Savang Vathana picks a new government for the strife-torn nation.

The prevailing view is that Prince Souvann Phouma, self-styled neutralist backed by the Communists, is sure to be named premier. But unless the normal pace of developments in Laos is accelerated, that won't happen for weeks.

The job of forming a new cabinet was thrown to the Laotian king Thursday by the three princes who head the warring factions in the little Southeast Asian country.

Plan Would Dump Gerosa

Wagner Will Run if Demos Name His Kind of Ticket

NEW YORK (AP)—Mayor Robert F. Wagner says he will seek a third term if he can have the running mates he wants.

The mayor's proposal to revamp the City Hall "big three" ticket ran into angry opposition by some powerful Democratic leaders.

Wagner proposed Thursday that City Council President Abe Stark of Brooklyn, who was elected with him twice, be the candidate for comptroller.

He also proposed that Deputy Mayor Paul R. Screvane of Queens be nominated for City Council president.

The mayor's plan would dump Comptroller Lawrence E. Gerosa of The Bronx, a two-time Wagner running-mate who has been at odds with him for more than three years.

The proposal would take Stark out of the line of succession for mayor.

There was a question whether Stark would agree to run for comptroller instead of council president.

Glovers Change Name But President Stays

JOHNSTOWN, N.Y. (AP)—The National Association of Leather Glove Manufacturers now is the National Glove Association, but its president remains Joseph Bachner of Gloversville.

The organization re-elected Bachner and other officers Thursday night and voted to change its name.

New directors named at the 44th annual convention include: Jules Higier and Elmer Little, both of Johnstown; and Dominic Papa, John D. Widdemer and James Green, all of Gloversville.

About 60 members attended the two-day session.

C-H Dividend Declared

The board of directors of Central Hudson Gas & Electric Corporation, at its South Road office, Poughkeepsie, today declared a dividend of twenty-five cents per share on its common stock payable, August 1, 1961, to holders of record July 10, 1961.

Bookkeeper Tells

sponsoring organizations and promoters were paid and records falsified, contrary to the state's bingo laws.

Mrs. Palaimo, a short blonde who, when asked her age, replied "old enough to know better," said she had worked for Michael Wynn. Wynn has been subpoenaed but the commission has been unable to locate him.

The former bookkeeper testified Wynn leased two halls from Milo Merrill, identified in earlier testimony as another bingo promoter.

She said Wynn told her to take all of each night's profits above $60, plus $65 for rent, and send the money to Wynn's wife, who was living in Florida.

She added:

"I felt like a thief. They (the organizations) didn't know anything about it."

While she was counting one night's bingo receipts, Mrs. Palaimo testified, her employer walked in "and just scooped it up ($200 to $250) and ran out." She said she told no one.

"He had promised them (the organizations) that by the end of the year they would have $2,500," she testified.

Says Books Falsified

Mrs. Palaimo, who also has testified before the State Investigation Commission, said she falsified books inspected earlier by the lottery commission.

In Utica, the public safety commissioner and the Oneida County district attorney said they were awaiting the lottery commission's transcripts and would act on the bingo operations, if warranted.

The lottery commission said it called the hearing to trace discrepancies between reports it had received from bingo operators and testimony given the State Investigation Commission.

The lottery commission said it next would look into bingo operations in New York City.

Weather Toll 37 Now

ISTANBUL (AP)—Floods and lightning killed seven more Turks in the last 24 hours, bringing the week's weather toll to 37 dead.

Board Adopts

in which savings will result from bulk purchasing in which two or more schools participate.

Busy as Principal

Howard Fox, chairman of the transportation committee of the board, read a letter of resignation from Russell, who has served for the past two years as supervisor of transportation. Russell explained that his position as principal of the Chambers School required his full attention.

The transportation program costs the district more than $300,000 annually.

The board authorized the transportation committee to interview candidates for the position and granted the committee power to act in making the appointment.

$320,000 for Transportation

A total of $320,000 has been allocated in the school budget for the next fiscal year for transportation.

The board felt that sidewalks in the vicinity of the Mary's Avenue elementary school site are a "must," that traffic is heavy in that area and moving "at a fast clip."

Property owners who hold as much as 51 per cent of the frontage on Mary's Avenue between West O'Reilly and Andrew Streets must sign the petition.

Seventy-five per cent of the cost of construction of the walks would be paid by the board, 25 per cent by the city.

The board took cognizance of testing reports submitted by Mrs. Marion Gregory, elementary supervisor, showing unusual progress in educational excellence during the past six years.

In June, 1955, elementary school children were half a grade below the national norm. Today they are from half a grade to eight-tenths of a grade higher than the norm.

Advanced Classes Way Up

In advanced classes the students are from a year and a half to two years ahead of the national norm.

Guerriero, reading supervisor in the Spring Valley School during the current school year, will be the "counterpart" of Mrs. Gregory. They will handle elementary school supervision.

Mrs. Vincent G. Connelly, chairman of the teachers committee, reported that eight applicants were screened for the position.

Guerriero will succeed Miss Margaret Lyle who submitted her resignation to return to classroom teaching. His salary will be $9,000 a year.

John W. Johnson, director of the school lunch program, reported that for a number of months the matter of combined bidding for food purchases has been under investigation.

For the first time in the Ulster County area such a bidding system has been developed.

Districts to Buy Together

The Kingston School District (Consolidated) and the Saugerties Central School District have agreed to combine their grocery bid for a five-month period during the year 1961-62, a system which, it is expected, will result in a financial saving to both districts.

Johnson explained that purchasing in large quantities, under combined bids, influences food companies to reduce their bid prices.

It was reported that the Ulster County School Boards Association is currently investigating combined bidding.

At a recent meeting of the association, Johnson discussed the combined bidding program, pointing out that Kingston and Saugerties will seek such bids on groceries. There will also be a combined bid for bread, with Kingston, Saugerties, Onteora and Catskill participating.

Bids Too High

that one "blind item" in the construction is the cost for rock removal, the bids swinging between a wide range on this point.

Says Fall Better Time

He said that spring and summer are not the best time to ask for bids, that fall is a better time. He called attention also to present labor unrest in the area, which is reflected in higher bids.

Robert Herzog, board president, said the time element in the Mary's Avenue school is not as important as the new junior high school, and that he did not believe the additional delay would be as great as a year. It might delay the school for six months, he felt.

MonthlyInvestorBuilding Own Fine Mutual Fund

Q) "I have been investing in common stocks via the Monthly Investment Plan but am beginning to feel that I don't know enough about the market to continue this way. Would I do better in a mutual fund? What is your opinion of my present holdings which include Texaco, Heinz, Kimberly-Clark, and CIT Financial?" B.S.

A) The Monthly Investment Plan, offered by the New York Stock Exchange, is one of the best ways I know of for the ordinary investor to acquire a good list of stocks. By paying a fixed sum each month, you are in effect "dollar averaging," and you protect yourself against putting all your funds in the market during a period of peak prices.

However, the benefits of the plan are not fully realized unless you stick to it—regardless of market conditions—over a fairly long period.

For a man who doesn't know much about the market, you have done all right for yourself. You've begun with conservative, high quality stocks, for all of which I have a high regard.

You now have the nucleus of a pretty good little mutual fund of your own. Don't become impatient. You have made a very good start.

Q) "I hold 100 shares each of Eastern Stainless Steel and Midland-Ross. Would you hold or sell these stocks?" G.S.

A) In view of the recovery in our economy, I advise you to hold Eastern Stainless Steel (NYSE) for the present. This stock is subject to wide fluctuation, and on further recovery you would probably be better off with a more stable situation such as Pfizer (NYSE).

Midland-Ross (NYSE) is a diversified firm which has shown little progress in recent years. I suggest that you switch this stock into ACF-Wrigley Stores (NYSE), a popular food chain which I feel has much better growth prospects.

Mr. Spear cannot answer all mail personally but will answer all questions posssible in his column.

potential but "under-achieving" students. The objective, he explained is a closer home-school relationship.

Some of the under-achieving students come from average homes, he said. Others come from homes which are deprived culturally, economically, etc. In some average homes, he said, there may be under-achieving students due to domestic problems, broken families, etc.

Many of the students in underachieving situations are extremely bright, even of college potential, he told the board. Many of them, however, accept defeat before they begin. Their cultural values are low. They need more individual counseling, more exposure to cultural opportunities, to inspirational situations. They need a program to "change their self-concepts" as non-achievers, much time and hard work are needed to change these self-concepts into constructive attitudes.

Goes to See Parents

Nolfo said he has visited many of these home, with an average visit of about two hours in each case, ranging from 30 minutes in some homes to three-and-a-half hours in others, depending on circumstances, interest, etc. Some parents won't come to school, he said, explaining that the only thing to do in such case is to go to the parents, which he is doing.

The program for underachieving students has many facets, one of which is exposure. For example, Nolfo said, a cultural field trip was taken to the Dutchess County Community College. The students appeared to be impressed. Many of them had no idea what "college" meant.

He told the board that the marks of the students in the pilot program during the current year showed marked improvement.

Mrs. Gregory pointed out that children in many homes have nothing but television, enjoy no "world of books," or magazines, etc.

Program Voluntary

Many are slow learners, disturbed children, which means that much of a teacher's time must be drained off. She said a "massive attack" is needed. Many of these children have never, for instance, been on an elevator, or have no idea what a revolving door is, etc. If they can be screened off the school can get at remedial work for them, and might be able to save a good many people for a productive future in society.

It was explained that the program is voluntary, that the child is not forced into the class. Parents are approached, the program explained, permission asked.

Kline introduced a motion that the program be adopted. It was seconded by Mrs. Connelly.

ELISABETHVILLE, the Congo (AP)—Suspicion arose today that the pledges of cooperation Katanga President Moise Tshombe gave to get out of prison were made under duress.

cent of crimes against the Cuban people.

Raps Ultimatum

Castro was further quoted as saying he had accepted the intervention of the Tractors for Freedom Committee because he considered the committee to be "decent and serious" since Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt was a member.

However, Castro said the committee's ultimatum showed its intention to break off negotiations and lay the blame exclusively on the Cuban government, the radio reported.

The committee already had ordered aides, barring a Castro acceptance, to return unopened to senders more than 60,000 pieces of mail that had piled up in P.O. Box Freedom in Detroit. Most of the mail was believed to contain public donations which the committee had asked.

The deadline was established after Castro told a four-member team of agricultural experts the committee sent to Cuba last week that he had in mind 500 heavy-duty tractors worth $28 million when he broached a willingness to swap anti-Castroists caught in an abortive April invasion aimed at his overthrow.

The committee had offered 500 light, farm-type tractors that would cost an estimated $2.5 to $3 million with plow attachments.

It said in its ultimatum it had no intention of swapping heavy-duty tractors that could be converted to military uses.

unions representing the striking seamen.

With losses already counted in millions of dollars, more than 70,000 men idled and ships stalled at their docks, Goldberg said this is a toll "the nation cannot afford at a time when every effort is being made to stimulate the economy."

The strike has immobilized an estimated 150 American ships on the Atlantic, Pacific and Gulf coasts. More than 800 others at sea face a tie-up when they make port.

Goldberg outlined his peace formula as Director William E. Simkin of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service reported an impasse in the New York settlement negotiations.

Among issues besides wage demands and other proposals that would go to the three-man panel to be appointed by Kennedy is the delicate matter of union insistence that ship owners grant collective bargaining rights on American-owned vessels flying foreign flags.

DANCING CHEEK TO CHEEK

Q: A year ago my wife and I took dancing lessons and afterwards we formed a dance club. Recently we took in new members. Quite a few of them dance cheek to cheek which we think is in very bad taste. Do you agree? If so, will you please tell us how we can tell the new members this without offending them?

A: I do agree with you, but unless they have joined your club in order to take instructions on dancing from you, you can't tell these members that you do not approve of their dancing without making yourself very unpopular.

Correct Table Manners

Q: Will you please tell me which method of eating is correct: (a) Lifting food to the mouth with fork held in left hand, or (b) switching the fork to the right hand after cutting a piece of meat? I had always considered both ways correct—the first European and the second American. I have a friend, a European, who feels that any other way but his is bad table manners. If that is true, then there are an awful lot of people with bad table manners. Your comments will be appreciated.

A: While the practice of shifting the fork from one hand to the other after every bite is unnecessary and awkward and not expert table manners, it is certainly not bad manners especially in this country where many have been taught to eat that way.

When Difference in Age Is Slight

Q: I know it is correct for a younger person to show respect for a much older one, but isn't it tactless and rude in the case of two grown women, when the younger one is merely five years younger than the other, for her to insist upon opening doors and standing aside for the older one to enter first? I personally resent this very much.

A: Catering attention to such a slight difference in age is unwarranted—and even unkind.

Summer Theatre

The Cape Playhouse

Many local residents find themselves in the Cape Cod, Mass,. area during the summer. While there they have visited The Cape Cod Playhouse, our assistant city editor, Irwin Thomas, among them. It was interesting to note this week that the Cape Playhouse has scheduled a most interesting schedule of plays. Taking the leads will be some of the finest actors in the business.

The 35th Anniversary Season of the Cape Playhouse, oldest summer theatre in Mass., will be celebrated with a gala opening Monday, July 3, it was announced today by Charles Mooney, managing director of the famed theatre.

The Playhouse, which originated the visiting star system and which is known for its productions of hit Broadway plays, will officially launch its anniversary season with Faye Emerson and Reginald Gardiner in "The Pleasure of His Company," the Broadway hit by Samuel Taylor and Cornelia Otis Skinner.

Meanwhile, opening of this year's season is creating unusual, widespread interest in theatrical circles, Mooney said. "Stars of past seasons, as well as producers and directors from New York, are making arrangements to be part of the festive first night audience.

A number of subscribers, many of whom have attended the Playhouse since its inauguration in 1927, will also be present.

In reviewing the current season, Mooney said, "We have tried to schedule hit plays presented on Broadway this year and in the leading roles we have such stars as Myrna Loy, Herbert Marshall, Faye Emerson, Reginald Gardiner, Jane Wyatt, Susan Oliver, Lee Bowman, Julia Meade, Orsen Bean, Tom Helmore, and others.

He noted, for instance, that during the week of July 10 'Under the Yum-Yum Tree" will be presented with Susan Oliver, a new television and Broadway star, Scott McKay and William Redfield in the leading roles. Another recent hit, "The Marriage-Go-Round," which ran 16 months in New York with Claudette Colbert and Charles Boyer, wil be presented during the week of July 17 starring Myrna Loy in her first Cape Playhouse appearance, and Claude Dauphin.

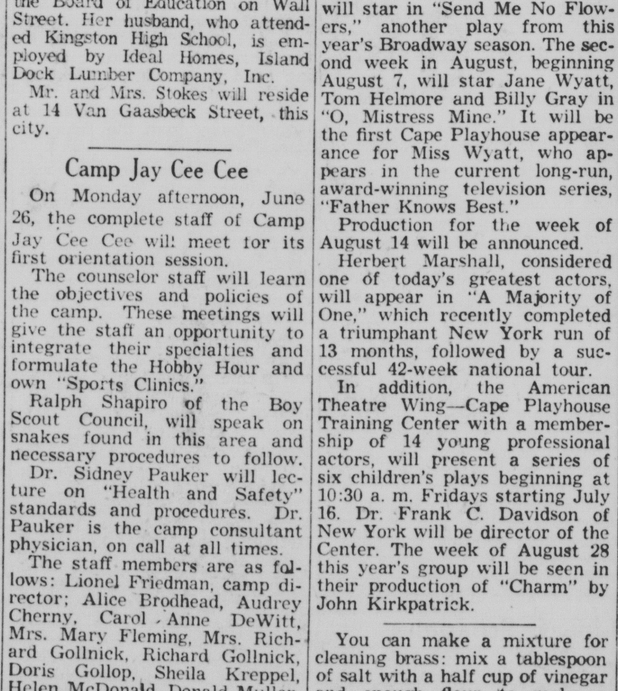

The anniversary season, Mooney noted, will be highlighted the week of July 24. At that time Martha Scott, a former member of the Playhouse's resident company, has agreed to return in a new play, "Future Perfect," a comedy by Whitfield Connor. The play will also star Lee Bowman.

Orson Bean and Julia Meade will star in "Send Me No Flowers," another play from this year's Broadway season. The second week in August, beginning August 7, will star Jane Wyatt, Tom Helmore and Billy Gray in "O, Mistress Mine." It will be the first Cape Playhouse appearance for Miss Wyatt, who appears in the current long-run, award-winning television series, "Father Knows Best."

Production for the week of August 14 will be announced.

50 Club Plans Field Day July 2

Yougsters throughout the city are invited to participate in one of the city's big July events—the annual Field Day at Block Park July 2 sponsored by the 50 Club of Kingston, Frank C. Sass, the club's secretary announced today.

This year's will be the 11th of the popular events given by the club, which in past years limited participation to downtown area residents.

Boys and girls "of all age groups," it was noted, are invited to participate. The program opens at 1:30 p. m.

Prizes, as in the past, range from bicycles, dolls and baseball gloves to trophies and money, and those in charge promise the usual profusion of hot dogs, soda and ice cream, which require no tickets or cost of any kind.

Along with this idea of "everything free," the club is to provide rock and roll music "for dancing and for those who just care to listen." Track and other competitive athletic events will be of the usual field day variety.

The 50 Club, one of the better known groups of its kind in the area, was organized some years ago for just such purposes as the annual field day and for similar events of civic value.

Thomas F. Coughlin is general chairman of the affair for the 11th straight year.

In 'Lost World' Search

Adventurer Will Return to Jungle

CORONA DEL MAR, Calif. (AP)—Adventurer Dana Lamb is headed back to the jungle—this time in search of the lost world that inspired Sir Arthur Conan Doyle's famous tale of 20th century dinosaurs.

An English explorer found a towering plateau in central South America in 1909, and his description led Doyle to write his 1912 story of adventure, "The Lost World."

Confident of Success

Doyle's version peopled it with prehistoric monsters surviving into the present. Lamb isn't sure what he'll find, but he's convinced he can locate the plateau and somehow reach the top of it.

Lamb, 55, left this week by plane for Lima, Peru, to talk to Brian Fawcett, operator of a South American airline and son of Col. P. H. Fawcett.

It was Col. Fawcett who spotted the plateau from below, and wrote of it in notes later read by Doyle: "Time and the foot of man have not touched these summits. They stood like a lost world. The imagination could picture the last vestiges of an age long vanished.

From Lima, Lamb will proceed to Sao Paulo, Brazil, before pushing into the Matto Grosso jungleland of southwest Brazil. He believes the lost plateau lies near the Bolivian border at the headwaters of the Rio Verde, a tributary to the distant Amazon.

Wife to Join Him

Lamb's wife, Virginia, 47, will join him, probably in Sao Paulo, for the expedition.

Together the two paddled and sailed the length of Mexico in a canoe in 1938, and hiked the length of Mexico again in 1941 to search for an elusive "lost city of the Mayas." They wrote oft-reprinted travel-adventure stories about both trips, and have lectured in all parts of the United States.

Teachers Disagree With Church About Games

SCHENECTADY, N.Y. (AP) — A teachers' association says pitching pennies and throwing darts at balloons for prizes were games of skill, rather than illegal games of chance, as charged by a suburban church.

The Mohonasen Teachers Association, sponsor of a recent high-school festival at which money was raised for scholarships, replied to criticism by the Carman Presbyterian Church.

Prizes at the festival ranged from a penny to a dime.

Gateway Group Nears Goal; Drive Ends on Thursday

Gateway Industry's campaign to raise $10,000 to continue the work of training the physically handicapped is reported nearing its goal. The drive ends officially on Thursday.

Campaign workers will meet Thursday 7:30 p. m. at 519 Broadway to return all cards.

Many service organizations in the city have been participating in the campaign. Those who have folders are urged by the committee to mail in the completed cards.

The funds collected will be used to train the physically handicapped in order that they may be employed by local industry.

Requests for training have increased and expanded facilities are needed to provide this service, a committee spokesman said.

Schenectady Democrats Are Backing Stratton

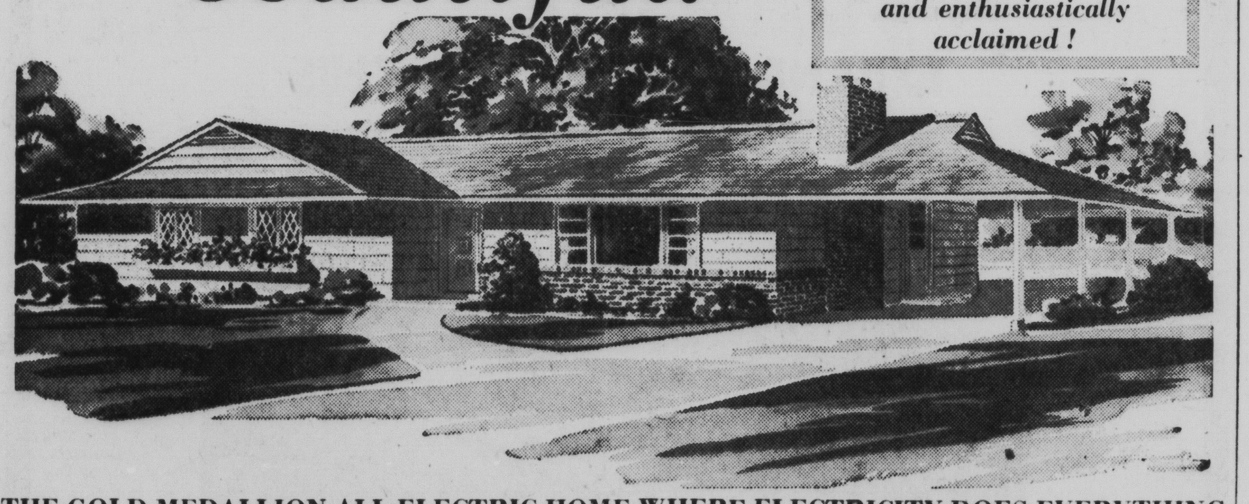

SCHENECTADY, N.Y. (AP) — Rep. Samuel S. Stratton, mentioned as a possible Democratic candidate for New York governor in 1962, has the backing of Democrats in his native Schenectady County for "statewide office."

The county Democratic Committee adopted a resolution Thursday night pledging its support should efforts be made to encourage Stratton "to make a broader contribution to the interests of the people of New York State."

The resolution did not specify an office.

Must Race Against Communist Clock

Adlai Notes Growing Sense of L-A Urgency

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) — When Adlai Stevenson returned in 1960 from a tour of Latin America—where Communists are active and discontent and poverty are as broad as the continent—he was pretty somber.

Now he has returned from a second tour, feeling conditions are worse. He made the first trip as a private citizen, the second as President Kennedy's personal representative. In between the two trips there were two major events.

Cuba One Instance

1. The Kennedy administration—of which Stevenson is a part as ambassador to the United Nations—approved the disastrous invasion against Cuba. This added more poison to anti-United States feeling in Latin Amercan.

2. President Kennedy asked Congress for, and got, a $500 million Latin-American aid program. The money is to go to countries with social programs of their own, like land for the landless, homes for the homeless, education for millions.

Upon his return in 1960 he said: "Latin America is in revolution. . . . The whole continent is on the verge of a great economic development and they are going to build a new society under our methods of free enterprise, if possible, and if not, under socialism."

Thursday, Stevenson, stopping off at Puerto Rico on his way home, said: "Economic want and social unrest have, if anything, increased. . . . There is a growing sense of urgency in Latin America."

Fast Solutions Unlikely

Stevenson reports today to Kennedy. But it is unlikely the President will, as a result, propose any spectacular solutions or at least any fast ones.

It is right here that communism has a starting-out advantage over a country like the United States in trying to win over millions of poverty-stricken, landless, impoverished and illiterate people.

Communism can promise a change overnight. The Western societies can promise change too, but so far have found no way to promise or effect sudden transformations.

The best they have been able to offer is steady improvement. This is what Kennedy offered in his March 14 message to Congress, outlining a long-range Latin-American program.

Stevenson illustrated the problem to a Democratic rally in this country during the presidential campaign last year when he said: "We must face the fact that the world is in revolution. For a thousand million people the big issue is not protecting the American way of life from communism.

Must Bridge Rich-Poor

"What does political freedom mean to an illiterate peasant squatting in a hut with five hungry children? For them and their leaders the big issues are peace, pride and rapid economic development."

For the United States the great contest in Latin America is against the Communist clock: can it help bring about change fast enough to make the quick promises of communism less attractive?

And the great problem is bridging the enormous gap between the very rich and the very poor. Both Kennedy nd Stevenson have commented on this.

Not long after he returned from Latin America in 1960 Stevenson said: "This is the great struggle of our century, and if the free way of life doesn't help the many poor of this world it will never save the few rich."

Kennedy used almost those identical words later in his inaugural address when he said: "If the free society cannot help the many who are poor, it cannot save the few who are rich."

4 Jump Before Boxcar Crashes

PORT MANSFIELD, Tex. (AP) —Four airmen parachuted safely Thursday just before their C119 Flying Boxcar crashed and burned six miles north of this South Texas port.

The men are Lt. Alfred Dries, Lt. David Bowen, Sgt. Raymond Razzolni and Sgt. William McDouglas, all attached to Niagara Falls, N.Y. Air Force Base. Dries was the pilot and Bowen the co-pilot.

All were admitted to the Harlingen Base Hospital for observation. None was injured seriously.

The base said the plane left there at 1:50 p.m. for Kelly AFB in San Antonio.

The men were picked up 18 miles east of Lyford. The pilot said he ordered the ship abandoned and that he aimed it toward the sea. The cause of the crash was not disclosed.

BABSON on BUSINESS

By Roger W. Babson

BABSON PARK, Mass., June 23 —As I study events in Wall Street, I find that the first era of speculation was in gold. This was accompanied by some speculation in government bonds. Prices were based on mail reports from London. There were then no cables.

Glamourous Railroad Era

Following the Civil War, from 1875 to 1900, most of the speculation was in railroad stocks. New mileage was constantly being built, due to the large immigration and cheap labor, accompanied by good crops, which helped railroad earnings. The Northern Pacific stock sold at $1,000 a share. There was much talk about railroad consolidations, and the stock market was especially bullish over a proposed merger of the Northern Pacific, Great Northern, and Burlington Railroads.

Then, suddenly, the Supreme Court issued a decision preventing this consolidation. This caused a quick drop in all stocks in 1907. A member of the N. Y. Stock Exchange invited me to come on the floor of the Exchange and help him. I actually saw men's hair turn gray within 48 hours.

Era of Great Industrial Trusts

Following the boom in railroad stocks there developed an interest in consolidations and big trusts. This began late in the 1890's. Then were formed the Tobacco Trust, the Standard Oil Trust, and other great trusts. During these years, the New York Stock Exchange took a great interest in industrials. It was then that Moody's Manuals and Babson's Reports were started, and investment services began to be popular.

Although the above-mentioned Supreme Court Decision directly referred only to railroads, it indirectly brought an end to this Consolidation and Trust Era. Hence, the panic following affected both railroad and industrial stocks. There were no big electric utilities in those days.

The Electrical Era

The fourth era of glamour stocks centered around companies producing and distributing electricity. From 1907 to 1912 great speculation took place in these electric stocks, culminating in the 1929-1935 collapse of Electric Bond & Share.

The end came for this Electrical Era with the formation of the Securities & Exchange Commission. Its great powers enabled it to eliminate, rearrange, or break up any company manufacturing and distributing electricity across state lines. Although the use of electricity has continued to increase since Thomas Edison made the first dynamo, yet the utilities are no longer considered glamour stocks.

The Present Space Age Era

I mention the above events thinking that the recent duPont-General Motors Supreme Court Decision may put a damper on speculation in companies producing missiles, space capsules, and various electronic devices. The previous Court Decisions which I mentioned have been unexpected. Each has "pulled the trigger" for a change in the stock market trend. Whether this means that the present bull market is now culminating no one knows, but we should always watch for the unexpected. Gold, railroads, trusts, and electricity were glamourous in their day as space and electronics are today.

Labor Union Era

The recent duPont-General Motors Decision may bring about a reverse effect. It may unexpectedly make Wall Street optimistic. The decision was basically against monopoly, as were the decisions of several years ago. Yet, the greatest monopoly today is that of Labor Unions. What if the Supreme Court should suddenly dissolve the Teamsters Union, as now operated by Hoffa, whom President Kennedy's brother, the Attorney Generay, knows from A to Z?

Such a decision could rule that previous Congressional legislation exempting Labor from the Anti-Trust Law is unconstitutional. Such a decision, instead of creating a bear market, could cause the Dow-Jones Averages to go sky high. Surely this is a possibility, and a reason why readers are justified in keeping certain of their common stocks and swapping certain of the present glamour stocks for the old-fashioned blue chips. I forecast that some day some such a decision will be rendered, followed by Congressional legislation. If Democracy is to survive and dictatorship be prevented, such a Court Decision will come some day. Then, don't be short of good industrials.

Gifts Arrive Late, Yule Party Is Held

SCOTIA, N.Y. (AP) — A fifth-grade class at the Sacandaga School in this village near Schenectady celebrated Christmas on the eve of summer vacations.

All 26 pupils received gift-wrapped pencils from their teacher, Miss Cecilia Dowling, who wished them a Merry Christmas while a music box chimed "Jingle Bells."

She said the party had been delayed because the gifts she ordered last December had just arrived.

Gotham Man Is Held for Taking Art Treasures

NEW YORK (AP) — A 29-year-old Manhattan man has been held in $25,000 bail on a charge of transporting $200,000 in stolen art treasures from New York to Big Spring, Tex.

The accused man, Jimmie C. White, described as an actor and model, was arrested by the FBI here Thursday and held for a hearing Monday. Appearing before U.S. Commissioner Earle N. Bishopp, White said he had not intended to sell the art works.

Among the treasures recovered in Big Spring by the FBI was a Degas painting, "Mme. Rouart and Her Two Daughters," valued at $150,000.

Also recovered were two other paintings, one unidentified and the other, "Farm Buildings" by William Thon, an American artist.

"In addition," the FBI said, "numerous drawings and art objects valued at approximately $25,000 were recovered in New York City."

The art treasures were stolen last May 9 from the estate of David Daniels in Patterson, N.Y., in suburban Putnam County. Daniels, who also has a New York City home, was in Paris at the time.

Sedita Seeks New Term

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP)—Mayor Frank A. Sedita, endorsed by the Erie County Democratic Party, is the first mayor of Buffalo to seek a second consecutive term since 1927.

The executive committee of the Erie County organization made the endorsement Thursday.

A city charter provision, adopted in 1927, forbade a second consecutive term until it was changed last year.

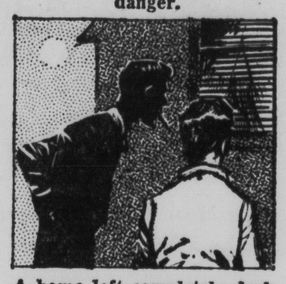

String-on-Finger Things To Do Before Vacation

Barber Honored for Praising Schenectady

SCHENECTADY, N.Y. (AP) — Alfred Falcone is a barber who does not mix hair-cutting with idle gossip and has a citation to prove it.

Falcone, a native of Italy, has been honored by the Schenectady Chamber of Commerce and the Industrial Development Council for being "a dyed-in-the-wool Schenectady fan who says no wrong of anything in Schenectady and, with every snip of the shears, in fact, sings the city's praises."

Boy Lured Away By Woman, Left At Rail Siding

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP)—A five-year-old Buffalo boy was bound, gagged and partly disrobed Thursday by a woman who lured him away from some playmates and then left him on a New York Central Railroad right-of-way on the city's West side.

The boy, Richard Edington was the second child to be treated in a similar manner in the last two months.

Police said the boy was not molested sexually.

Police said a gray-haired woman tied his hands and feet with butcher's twine, stripped him to his underclothes, and pulled a plastic bag over his head.

The boy managed to loosen his bonds and crawled to a nearby house.

Fire Delays Commuters

NEW YORK (AP) — Thousands of commuters were delayed getting home Thursday night when a fire broke out on a third rail of the New York Central Railroad track during the rush hour.

The blaze in Manhattan immobilized the 5:03 to Brewster, the 5:05 to Crestwood and the 5:06 to Mount Vernon. It also caused some other delays on the line's Harlem and Hudson Divisions.

Rail Firm Pays Its 89th Dividend

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP)—The Rochester & Genesee Valley Railroad, which hasn't had a foot of track or a piece of rolling stock since 1871, has paid its stockholders a dividend for the 89th consecutive year.

Directors of the railroad met Friday, declared the $4 dividend and reelected John W. Remington of Rochester president of the line.

The railroad leased its right of way to the Erie Railroad in 1871 for a guaranteed $4 a year for each $100 share of stock. The lease expires in 2051.

Egyptian Sect Thinks Adam Should Have Kept His Rib

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — An ancient Egyptian religious sect believed that if the rib had stayed inside Adam's chest, mankind would have been spared a lot of misery.

This sect believed that so long as the woman was inside Adam's chest, there was no death and the world was a paradise. But separation of woman from man was one of the "mistakes" in a bad job of creation that brought no end of trouble to the world.

The primitive people who held these ideas were known as the "Gnostics" and were considered heretics by other early Christians. Scholars have discovered the theorizing about Adam's rib in Gnostic "gospels" found 13 years ago in a monastery near Nag Hammadi in upper Egypt but only now being fully studied. There are hints in these writings that suggest the Gnostics may have practiced ceremonial nudism and perhaps engaged in mysterious sexual rites.

These writings are in the Coptic (Old Egyptian) language, and scholars consider them among the most important historical finds in many years. Most of the writings are now in the Coptic Museum in Old Cairo.

The documents include a series of gospels—the "Gospel of Truth" the "Cospel of Philip," the Gospel of Thomas." There also are three versions of the "Apocrypha of John."

Writing on the subject in The Biblical Archaeologist, Dr. Floyd V. Filson of McCormick Theological Seminary notes that early Christian writers accused the Gnostics of irregular sexual practices, and some hints in the Gospel of Philip document indicate their suspicions may have been well founded.

In Philip's Gospel, the holy of holies in the temple is called the "bedchamber" and there are references to giving birth and conceiving by kissing.

Corwin or Maines

Spring Valley Bengals Here Saturday for NY-NJ Contest

It's hard to fault a ball club that has won five straight games in the New York-New Jersey League, boasts the two best pitchers, the leading batter and home run hitter.

The Kingston Braves possess all these stout credentials going into Saturday night's encounter with the Spring Valley Bengals, 1960 champions, at Dietz Stadium. Game time is 8:30 p. m. But will the fans get the message?

Despite intensive promotion, a meagre 300 fans looked on at the home opener last Saturday night against the Kinderhook Columbians.

General Manager Fred Davi is hoping for better statistics at the box office Saturday night. The Bengals are always a lively ball club and are in the Western Division of the league along with West Haverstraw and Newburgh.

Corwin or Maines

It will be either southpaw Bob Maines or Al Corwin, former New York Giant pitcher, going for the Braves and either is quite capable of making it six in a row for the locals.

Corwin, relying on control and a beautifully controlled curve ball, has been a sensation in his appearances to date. In his first 17 innings, he struck out 29, walked six and didn't allow an earned run.

Maines, who commutes from the Coast Guard station in Connecticut, is Manager Pullie's second choice. Also on the scene will be southpaw Larry De Vita and Frank Horan, a former West Haverstraw flinger who turned in an impressive relief stint against Millbrook.

Dennis Casey has two home runs. Charlie Pike is batting .583. They'll be on display Saturday night at the stadium against Spring Valley.

TO COMPETE IN DOG SHOW—Two bloodhounds, Diamond Jim and Bugler Ann, owned by Ralph Crookston, Carmel, will be among some 400 dogs entered in the 18th annual dog show sponsored by the Mid-Hudson Kennel Club at the Dutchess County Fairgrounds, Rhinebeck, on Saturday, June 24.

Kennel Club Annual Show Set Saturday

The Mid-Hudson Kennel Club will hold its 18th Annual Dog Show on Saturday, June 24, at the Dutchess County Fairground, Rhinebeck.

Almost 400 dogs will be exhibited, with over 70 different breeds represented.

Judging will start at 8 a. m., and at 1 p. m. there will be Junior Showmanship Competition. An outstanding exhibition of Man-Trailing Bloodhounds is scheduled at 2 p. m., followed by the judging of the Variety Groups and Best In Show.

The exhibition of Man-Trailing Bloodhounds will feature the famous Diamond Jim and Bugler Ann owned by Undersheriff Ralph Crookston of Carmel.

These two bloodhounds have gained nationwide attention for their many successful, sometimes sensational, finds, often under adverse trailing and weather conditions.

Astonishing Feats

They have successfully trailed a child simply by sniffing the handlebars of his bicycle; a criminal, on a trail 55 hours old, and an escapee from one whiff of a rug on which he had slept in an unoccupied house. One of the finest demonstrations of their trailing ability was at a local sportsman's show, where they trailed separate runners through a crowd of at least 1000 persons, to find the runners concealed in separate exhibits.

Diamond Jim was acclaimed the outstanding man-trailer of the 1958 American Bloodhound Field Trial, by running a faultless one mile trail in 12½ minutes. Bugler Ann placed second in the same class. Many publications and columnists have recognized them for their accomplishments, and in addition they have appeared in the film "Naked City."

Diamond Jim and Bugler Ann have been diligently trained and exclusively handled by their owner Ralph Crookston and District Game Protector George Odell.

The winner paid $3.00, $2.50 and $2.20. Refreight was second and True Gold finished third.

Driver Don Bromley took Shadydale King out of second spot at the three quarter pole and the three year old won by three lengths in 2:06 to cop the second division.

The horse paid $17.20, $4.70 and $3.70. Congress Belle rallied in the stretch to finish second and Ensign Bullet was third.

Fred LaRouech, last summer's leading winner, won his first two races at this meet by capturing both halves of the daily double. The combination of 4-3 paid $91.80, the highest of the meet.

The Rebel Returns

Onteora Slates Card Sunday; Big Car Racing on July 4

Onteora Speedway Park expects another slambang auto racing card Sunday, with the field chasing D. D. (Rebel) Harris, the three-time winner from Poughkeepsie.

The festivities start at 2:30 p. m., with such formidable opponents as Don Avery, Stretch Van Steenburg, Walt Schubert, Johnny Flach and others trying to check the Rebel's rampart run at Onteora.

But track operator Dick Lane is looking beyond Sunday's card to Tuesday, July 4, when championship type Indianapolis open cockpit auto racing invades the Catskills for the first time.

A seven-event program sanctioned by the United Racing Club will be held at the Speedway.

Sam Nunis, noted auto race director in charge of the holiday bill, said that 30 star drivers and cars were expected in the field prior to the closing date for entries July 1. The URC, with headquarters in Rochester and Philadelphia, Pa., is the largest sprint car racing group in the nation.

The July 4 races will be the first featuring the Indianapolis-type cars to be conducted on the Onteora Speedway. Now in its second season of operation, the trim semi-banked half-mile dirt oval is ranked among the east's best, both for speed and decor.

Richard L. Lane, Speedway president, already has plans under way to have the Oliver Bridge strip "record ready" for the holiday speedfest. Along with other adjustments, the track is to be treated with 10 tons of dust-withholding chloride in order to afford everyone a clear view of the action.

A 25-lap Onteora Speedway inaugural sweepstakes has top billing on the seven-event card, Nunis stated. Opening car warmups, 3 10-lap qualifying heats, a special match race, and a 12-lap semi-feature complete the bargain bill, with the warmups set for 1:30 p. m. and the first race for 2:30 p. m.

Speedy Time Wins Buffalo Feature

Speedy Time sped home in 2:03 to win the $17,046 W. N. Reynolds Memorial Stake at Buffalo Raceway, richest event of the night at New York State harness tracks.

Fifteen horses were entered in the stake Thursday night for three-year-old pacing colts and geldings, one of the $112,000 Reynolds Memorials this week and next at the Hamburg, N.Y., track.

The winner, which finished fifth in one of two elimination dashes, was piloted by John Patterson in the final and paid $12.40. Largo Hanover and Star Gem finished second and third. Star Gem also had won the first elimination and Largo Hanover the second.

Roosevelt Raceway — Culver Pick toured the mile in 2:00 3-5 to win the $4,500 Class AA-1 Pace by 3½ lengths. Flying Time was second and Mocking Byrd third.

Hugh Bell drove the winner, a 2-1 favorite which paid $6.30.

Shadydale King won the second division by 2½ lengths and clocked a 2:06 mile. The brother of the first division's Shadydale Monitor, Shadydale King paid $17.20. Congress Belle crossed the line second and Ensign Bulletin was third.

Vernon Downs—One of the nation's leading two-year-old pacing colts, Mighty Tar Heel broke his career record with a 2:03 2-5 mile to take the $1,500 co-feature. With Al Winger in the sulky, the winner paid $3.50. Don Roberto was second and Leica Rail was third.

In the filly feature, Lady Gold led all the way and registered a 2:04 2-5 mile. She paid $10 and was driven by Charlie Shaver, a co-owner. Fay Farvel was in place and Just Joan in show as they crossed the wire.

NLL Tigers No-Hit Cubs, 4-0

Steve VanDyke hurled a brilliant no-hitter in a crucial National Little League game last night as the Tigers whitewashed the Cubs, 4-0, to clinch no worse than a tie for first round laurels.

A four run explosion in the second frame carried the Tigers to their triumph. Jim Schmidt, playing his final game for the winners, rapped a double to lead the attack. He also aided VanDyke's no-hitter by pitching the sixth frame.

Schmidt is moving with his family to Buffalo and his Tiger teammates presented him with an autographed bat before the game.

Jaycee Eagles Nip Wrens, 12-10

Runs were the rule rather than the exception in the Jaycee Little league last night as the Eagles bested the Wrens, 12-10, to gain their first victory of the second round.

The Eagles zoomed to a 7-0 lead in the first four frames but then Bill Roosa lined a shot over the left field fence to start the losers on a comeback rally.

MAY RESIGN—There is talk in baseball circles that Ford Frick, above, may resign his $65,000 job as commissioner of baseball before the end of his second term on Sept. 20, 1965. (AP Wirephoto)

John Denter rammed his second grandslammer of the season in the fifth inning and the losers added five more in the sixth but the rally fell short.

Ford Wins 12th Game For Yanks

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Sports Writer

The Detroit Tigers retained a one-game lead in the American League with a 6-4 victory at Washington Thursday night while the second place New York Yankees, vith Whitey Ford winning his 12th and Roger Maris hitting his 27th home run, breezed past Kansas City 8-3. The victory also gave the Tigers a three-game bulge over idle Cleveland as they head into a four-game series against the third place Indians tonight.

Baltimore beat Minnesota 8-2 and Boston defeated the Los Angeles Angels 3-2 in the only other games scheduled Thursday night.

Maris hit a pair of doubles and a single in addition to the homer, a three-run shot off loser Norm Bass (4-6) that capped a five-run second inning for the Yankees. It was Maris' 15th home run in June three shy of the major league record.

Consecutive doubles by Rocky Colavito and Norm Cash cracked a 4-4 tie in the seventh inning for the Tigers, who twice had to come from behind before handing the Senators their sixth straight defeat.

Gus Triandos drove in five runs with three hits, two of them doubles, as the Orioles beat the Twins and southpaw Jim Kaat (2-7).

There were 15 bases on balls but only five hits in Boston's squeeker at Los Angeles. The Red Sox, behind the two-hit pitching of rookie Galen Gisco and winning reliever Mike Fornieles (5-3), won it on a third-inning single by Chuck Schilling.

Efforts Are Underway to Form Ulster County Pistol League

Anthony Seteriano of the Rondout Valley pistol team and John Ray Mayone, Kingston City Marshal, are collaborating their efforts to organize an Ulster County Pistol league.

There are now several pistol teams in Ulster County and it is hoped to unite them into an organized league with regularly scheduled matches, basic rules, trophies, etc.

Mike Spada of Spada's Sport Shop, 594 Broadway, has made known plans to sponsor a team and all pistol shooters in the Kingston area are invited to join. Mayone is acting as temporary chairman of the team in an effort to assist in its formation.

Shooters in the Saugerties area may contact Ben Sanford, president of the Saugerties pistol team.

Matches will be regulation N.R.A., 25 yards, with either .22 or .38 pistols being used. Shoots will be scheduled on a home and home series and will be held at night.

A meeting will be called soon to set up the basic rules of the league and those interested may contact either of the officials named above.

Braves Get Hot In Pennant Race

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The Milwaukee Braves are on a home run binge and everybody is getting into the act in a bid to make up ground in the National League race.

The Braves cracked five more homers, including a pair by left fielder Frank Thomas, Thursday night in defeating San Francisco 8-6 and extending their winning streak to four games, the club's longest of the season.

The five fence-clearing shots boosted Milwaukee's home run output to 35 in the last 13 games and 84 for the season. However, many of the homers have been wasted as the Braves have only a 7-6 record to show for the last couple of weeks.

"Our pitching just blew away a lot of those homers," said Manager Charlie Dressen. "But the pitching has been good in our last half dozen games, although (Bob) Buhl had his trouble against the Giants."

Dressen added: "With our hitters banging away, it's up to our pitching. We can keep on going if we get both. A long winning streak is a pretty tough thing to pull off in this league, but we can win a lot more than we'll lose."

Redlegs Increase NL Lead

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Sports Writer

The Cincinnati Reds Defeated St. Louis 7-5 Thursday night for a two-game lead in the National League pennant race after the second place Los Angeles Dodgers lost 7-5 to the Chicago Cubs. The Dodgers open a three-game series at Cincinnati tonight.

Milwaukee spilled third place San Francisco four games from the top by beating the Giants 8-6. And Pittsburgh defeated Philadelphia 5-1.

The Reds, out-hit 8-6 by the Cards, came from behind with two runs in the fourth inning, then wrapped it up with a three-run sixth off loser Larry Jackson (3-7).

George Altman, Billy Williams and Jerry Kindall each hit home runs and drove in two runs as the Cubs beat the Dodgers for only the third time in 12 games. The Dodgers, who had homers by John Roseboro, Daryl Spencer and Duke Snider, blew a 4-1 lead.

The fifth-place Braves, winning four in a row for the first time, hammered five home runs, two by Frank Thomas, while putting away a three-game sweep over the Giants.

Two home runs by catcher Smoky Burgess drove in the Pirates' first four runs. Both shots were off John Buzhardt (2-8), who hit Burgess with a pitch in his third trip to the plate and was handed an automatic $50 "beanball" fine.

Duster Incident In Philadelphia

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A duster ball incident which led to the banishment of Manager Gene Mauch of Philadelphia Thursday night and carried over into an argument in the umpires' dressing room stole some of the limelight from Bob Friend's fine pitching in a 5-1 Pittsburgh victory.

Ironically, the duster incident revolved around Pirates' catcher Smoky Burgess, who belted two home runs in leading the Pirates' eight-hit attack off loser Johnny Buzhardt and Dallas Green.

Mauch was thrown out of the game in the sixth inning by plate Umpire Chris Pelekoudas after Pelekoudas had warned Buzhardt for allegedly throwing at Burgess, who was up for the third time.

Burgess had connected for homer No. 6 in the second inning and No. 7 in the fourth, accounting for four runs. Right after Mauch was thrown out, Burgess was hit by a pitch and went to first base.

The umpires were quoted as saying Mauch ordered Buzhardt to throw at Burgess and that the pitcher was not to blame because "he was just following orders."

When told of this Mauch went into the umpires dressing room and argued with Pelekoudas and senior Umpire Jocko Conlan.

"If they said I told Buzhardt to hit him," Mauch said, "they're lying. I didn't tell Buzhardt to hit him."

AFL Committee Rules Tie Games Will Remain

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Regular season tie games in the American Football League will remain just that.

The league's executive committee rejected Thursday a proposal that would have extended the championship sudden-death playoff to all league games.

The committee also turned down a proposed rule change that would require all kickoffs to be run back except those that go beyond the end zone.

The Nimrod's Corner

By Old Doc

Not all the anglers who read this column are trout fishermen. Why anyone prefers the warm water species to those found in our streams and reservoirs is difficult to explain. The forthcoming opening of bass fishing on the first of July is eagerly anticipated by many. Others have been fishing for pike and pickerel for several months, but few go after the so called "pan fish" unless they have youngsters as their companions. One of the exceptions to this is Harry Edinger, the genial Sanitary Engineer of the Ulster County Department of Health.

Harry and his sons are all-around sportsmen enjoying hunting as well as angling. Although the old man is showing the passing years and has lost his shooting eye, the boys are fine rifle shots and as good as any in the Hudson Valley. One, while in service, was on the United States Army rifle team, placed in the top five at the annual Camp Perry national matches and was the first alternate on the three man rifle team that two years ago journeyed to the Soviet Union to engage in a series of matches. The other boys have shot on their college rifle teams and because of demonstrated skill, have also participated on nearby teams that shot competitively.

ALWAYS A GOOD HAUL:

While the Edingers are good trout fishermen, they have also found many wonderful hours fishing for crappies. Launching their boat in the Rondout around Creek Locks, and armed with plenty of minnows for bait, they drift down stream to the falls at Eddyville. When the boat is finally beached, seldom do they come ashore without at least 50 crappies and very often they surpass the century mark. By any standards, that many of the species on a light fly rod is darn good sport. Before leaping to the telephone to call that buddy who has a boat trailer and making a date to embark on a similar excursion on the morrow, it might be well to take a few more minutes to finish the column and learn the special knack that Harry and Company use to catch these fish.

The primary secret is the use of a "stoolie". Once a crappie is caught, a string is drawn thrown the gills and a float attached. The fish is returned to the water and it immediately heads for the school from whence it came. Following the float, the exact location of the large number of fish is readily ascertained. This however, isn't the only part of the technique. The exact level of the crappies must also be learned since the fish feed on a certain strata and one foot above or below, very often will mean coming home empty handed. Experimenting with the depth, the proper level, soon discloses where the fish are lying.

CHANGE WITH WATER LEVEL

The crappies usually feed around the old brush in the Rondout. For some unexplained reason, they don't care for the newer branches that have found their way into the creek. One further thing, when the water is high the fish can be found on the bank side of the heap, while when the water recedes during dry spells, fish on the channel side for the best results.

The success of the Edingers for the past four or five years above the Eddyville Falls will come as a surprise to many who thought they knew all the good angling spots in the country. Probably, I'll be boiled in oil for letting the cat out of the bag, on what to now has been a secret spot they've had pretty much to themselves. Most people thought that with the exception of carp, the Rondout was void of all fish. Why not try it soon and for added enjoyment, why not take along a youngster?

Nicklaus Is Favored In Big 10 Golf Tourney

LAFAYETTE, Ind. (AP)—Ohio State's Jack Nicklaus, the country's leading amateur just at voting age, was a solid favorite to win the Big Ten's 10th National Collegiate Golfing Championship going into the semifinals of the 64th tourney today.

He had two other Big Ten players for company in the foursome left 199 starters — his opponent, sharp putting Gene Hunt of Michigan State, and his teammate on the Ohio State team, Mike Podolski.

Podolski faced Steve Smith of Stanford, a Green Bay Wis., boy who deserted the Big Ten territory and pulled the major upset of last year's NCAA meet by knocking off Nicklaus 4 and 3 in the third round.

East Gridders Heavy Favorites

By BOB POWELL
Associated Press Sports Writer

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — The East squad was rated a 2-1 favorite to defeat the West in tonight's All-American Graduation football game at Buffalo's War Memorial Stadium.

But the rating drew a guffaw from East co-coach Rip Engle of Penn State.

"How can one team be rated over another in a game of this kind," Engle asked.

"If you have to pick a winner, the choice must go to the West," he said. "They had their offense in readiness before the players got off the train."

Engle pointed out that the West squad included five players from Washington's Rose Bowl champions.

"When you have a center (Roy McKasson) and a quarterback (Bob Schloredt) that have worked together, you have one step on your opponent," Engle said.

He added that Washington also was represented by an end (Lee Folkins) and a halfback (George Flemming).

The East's ranking apparently was based on its abundance of explosive runners and accurate passers, but the West wasn't lacking in either category.

The game, sponsored by the American Football Coaches Association, will be broadcast nationally, (Mutual) and an independent television network will air the game with much of the immediate area blacked out.

The kickoff is scheduled for 9 p.m., EDT.

Par Is Wrecked In Western Open

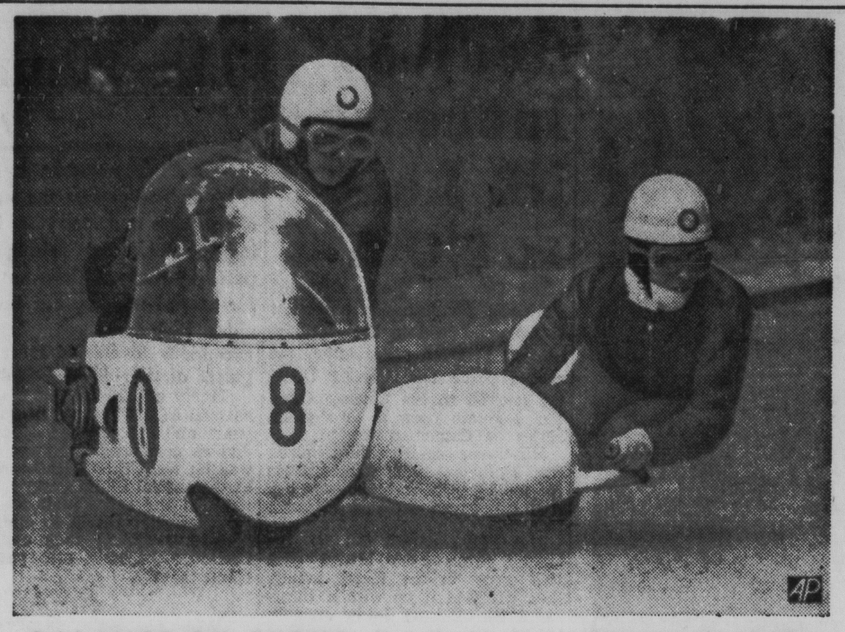

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (AP)—Par in today's second round of the Western Open Golf Tournament should look a good deal less like a holiday turkey after a boarding house dinner.

Tee markers were moved back to normal placing after 61 sizzling players in the 149 man field gorged themselves on sub-par scores to start the $30,000 event Thursday.

Already Arnold Palmer of Miami, Fla., and ex-University of Southern California golfer Al Geiberger took the biggest bite. They led the field with 6-under-par 65s.

The 6,730-yard Blythfield Country Club course plays to a par of 36-35—71.

Bunched in a six-pack one stroke behind the leaders were Michigan-raised Dave Hill; Don January of Dallas, Tex.; Doug Sanders of Miami Beach, Fla.; Sam Snead; Ted Kroll of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., and host club pro John Barnum.

BALANCE ON CURVE—T. S. Harrison leans well out from the "chair" as P. Harris negotiates Governor's Bridge during international 113-mile sidecar race on the Isle of Man. They placed third in this event of the Tourist Trophy motorcycle race meeting.

Filly Title Race Slated at Belmont

By ORLO ROBERTSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

Even though it is only the middle of June, the 3-year-old filly title will be on the line Saturday when once-beaten Bowl of Flowers and undefeated Funloving hook up in the $100,000 added Coaching Club American Oaks at Belmont Park.

At the same time, Four-and-Twenty will attempt to nail the West Coast's 3-year-old title in the $50,000 added Cinema Handicap at Hollywood Park.

The Oaks, at 1¼ miles, and the Cinema, at 1⅛ miles, are the two leading attractions on the national racing program which also includes the $50,000-added Michigan Mile at Detroit, the $30,000-added Laurance Armour Memorial Handicap at Arlington Park, the $20,000-added Lamplighter 'Cap at Monmouth Park, the $20,000-added Christiana Stakes at Delaware Park and the $10,000-added Constitution Handicap at Suffolk Downs.

The Oaks figures to draw six top-ranking fillies but a victory for other than the Brookmeade Stable's Bowl of Flowers or Ogden Phipps' Funloving would be something of an upset.

Heroic Homer Hit at Geneva

It was the last of the ninth, two were out and the bases were loaded. Then Cesar Tovar rapped a double to right center and the league-leading Geneva Redlegs had a 7-6 win over the Erie Sailors in a New York-Penn League baseball game at Geneva.

There were plenty of other thrills Thursday night as Mike Cloutier singled to right in the last of the 12th to score Chico Martines for a 7-6 Jamestown victory over Elmira. Cloutier had walloped a grand slam homer in the fifth.

Banks Might Miss His First Game After 717 Straight

CHICAGO (AP) — Today is the day of decision for ailing Ernie Banks, the Chicago Cubs home run slugger, who holds the current major league record of 717 consecutive games played.

Ernie says he will end his playing streak at once and give his injured left knee a rest if his doctor so advises.

He has an appointment with Dr. Ralph Metz, the Cubs' physician, before the team leaves for Milwaukee to play the Braves tonight.

Banks suffered a knee injury with the army in Germany before he entered major league baseball. It has bothered him off and on for years. The condition was aggravated again when he ran into a wall while playing in San Francisco Sunday.

John Holland, the Cubs vice president, said the need for surgery to remove loose cartilage is not immediate but that the decision will be left to Banks.

Columbus Lead Is Now One Game

One good way for a pitcher—and sometimes the best way—to become a big winner is to have his club's heavy artillery blitz his opponent.

That's what happened to Bob Veale of the Columbus Jets Thursday night as he became the International League's biggest winner this season, racking up victory No. 8 in beating the Rochester Red Wings 6-5.

The victory upped the Jets' first place margin to a full game over Charleston, which split a doubleheader against Toronto. The Maple Leafs won the opener 5-2 but Charleston came back to win a 14-inning nightcap 3-2. Richmond won an 11-inning verdict in the nightcap of a twin-bill against Syracuse 6-5 while the Chiefs took the opener 8-4. Jersey City and Buffalo's doubleheader was rained out.

Triplets Shave Springfield Lead

Binghamton ace Al Downing has blazed his way to his sixth straight victory without a loss and he couldn't have picked a better time to do it.

Just when it appeared that the Springfield Giants might be building a big lead in the Eastern League race, Downing came on Thursday night to stop their win streak and shave their margin to 3½ games.

Mt. Marion Has Graduation Rite

Graduation exercises were held on Thursday at the Mt. Marion School for the sixth grade students who will be entering the Saugerties Junior High School in September.

Following the processional and the opening services, Carol Wrolsen presented the welcome to the assemblage which included Dr. Grant D. Morse, superintendent of the Saugerties Schools, and the parents and guests of the student body.

Miss Judith Madsen, teacher of the graduating class, in a brief address, thanked the parents for the cooperation during the year and wished the graduates success in their new venture.

Dr. Morse advised the graduates to respect their parents and their opinions, and not to underestimate the value of their advice. He also reminded them to be an individual and not to compare themselves with their neighbors or friends but to do the best they can in their own way.

The choir sang two selections, Born to Be Free, by Ralph Williams and Climb Every Mountain, by Rogers and Hammerstein. The string group played The Merry Pheasant, by Schumann.

Miss May Evans, principal, presented diplomas to Christine Breitenbach, Laura Burch, Kathleen Donaldson, Bonnie Haslam, Karen Holloran, Lenore Hydo, Hannelore Jung, Margaret Kearney, Nancy Kremper, Cynthia Kolb, Beverly Myer, Kathy Proper, Judith Patryk, Linda Reese, Wenda Risdal, Roberta Stoff, Linda Voigt, Carol Wrolsen and Dorothy Young.

Also William Beechel, Richard Delahant, Joseph Ferraro, Gilbert Hartrum, Melvin Hauck, Joseph Hinchey, Mark Muscarella, Dennis Myer, Bruce O'Neal, Paul Quinn and Harold Van Etten.

Three pupils graduating from the Cedar Grove School were also present and received their diplomas, Edward Vaughn, Frances Avery and Terry Copeman.

The afternoon's program culminated with the singing of the Alma Mater.

School Budget Items Explained

The following information is another in a series of releases to be made to residents of the Saugerties Central School District concerning the school budget and the cost of maintaining facilities for the district.

The budget hearing will be held July 11 at the high school.

The Citizens Advisory Committee, of which Miss Grace Anderson and Norman Nitschke are co-chairmen, has suggested to the Saugerties Board of Education that they correct public misunderstanding by issuing a public statement on Main Street and Hill Street Schools — why they are not considered useful.

These questions have been explored and extensively reviewed in the local press on previous occasions. The question of the most advisable use of the Hill Street building was discussed in a local paper Monday, Sept. 26, 1960. On that date, the president of the board, John Lowther, wrote the editor as follows:

"The administration building was originally used for school purposes. This building is more than 100 years old. It is located in an exposed position, about 20 feet from Route 9W. It is also a central receiving and disbursing center for all supplies used in our schools. It is doubtful if any money could be saved by hiring quarters for the administration force and using this building again for school rooms."

Again on Dec. 15, 1960, an article appeared in a local paper with the heading, "Top Floor of Main Street School Not to Be Used."

"In accordance with the advice of the State Education Department, the Saugerties Board of Education at a special meeting on Tuesday evening, voted not to use the top floor of the Main Street building for classroom purposes.

"There were some members of the board who believed that the risk of using these rooms should be undertaken, but the majority voted to the contrary.

"Prior to the vote, a letter from Charles E. Fake, Fire Safety Coordinator of the State Education Department, senior architect in the Division of School Buildings and Grounds, was read. The letter, dated Oct. 20, 1960, follows:

"This will confirm my visit to the Main Street and Cedar Grove Schools on Monday, Oct. 10, 1960.

"It has been a standard procedure with this office to recommend that elementary children not be housed on floors above the second in buildings of brick exterior, wood interior construction. This recommendation was made to your centralization committee but when I visited your buildings I found the fire escape had been extended to the floor in question and that elementary pupils had been using the classrooms on this floor for audio visual and music.

"We were disappointed that you did not accept our recommendations at the time of centralization but we would again strongly recommend that this area be completely evacuated."

Again on Feb. 23, 1961, an article appeared in a local paper which read in part as follows:

"The Citizens' School Advisory Committee met Monday night at the high school cafeteria and heard a report from Vytautas Mecionis of the Buildings subcommittee. His committee checked the top floor of the Main Street School to determine if it was satisfactory for classrooms and agreed after inspection that the recommendation of the New York State Education Department fire inspector should be followed, and the rooms not be occupied by children. It is now being used as an elementary library."

In addition to the above releases, Norman Nitschke, co-chairman of the Citizens Advisory Committee, made the following report (in substance) to the Advisory Committee Feb. 20, 1961:

"I have been told in the community that it cost $80,000 to make the alterations at the Hill Street building. I found that the cost was actually $8,000. The elementary library which is on the top floor of the Main Street building is currently serving in excess of 1700 pupils. Charles E. Fake, fire safety coordinator of the New York State Education Department, has recommended that the top floor of the Main Street building not be used by pupils. It has been proposed by some that the Administrative Offices be located on the top floor of the Main Street building. To do this would require throwing away the money that was spent on restoring the Hill Street building, plus the cost of readapting the Hill Street building to pupil use, plus the cost of accommodating the top floor of the Main Street building to office use — and then you would have an undesirable building for instructional purposes at Hill Street."

Wins Math Honors

Frank Galietta, Saugerties High School senior, was presented on Moving-Up Day with a certificate as the winner in his school in the high school mathematics contest sponsored by the Mathematical Association of America and the Society of Actuarius.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Galietta and intends to enter Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute in the fall.

Second and third place winners were Pamela LaPlante and Albert Giannotti.

Over 2,000 upstate New York seniors entered the contest, held on March 9, and Galietta's score was in the upper quarter of all individual scores. The team score of the top three students was well above the average team score for this district.

Movie Star Adds Worldly Quality To Tone of Voice

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-TV Writer
(Second of two articles)

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP)—The voice had the familiar, warmly American tone. But William Holden seemed to have an added quality of worldly awareness.

I hadn't seen him in three years. During that time he had chosen, like many creative Americans in the 1920s, to be an expatriate. But unlike the Hemingways and Fitzgeralds, his absence has brought storms of protest.

Explains Change

Bill Holden prowled his hotel suite and explained why he has changed his residence from Toluca Lake, Calif., to St. Prex, Switzerland.

Some of his arguments were familiar—that the central Swiss location gives him more home life between his farflung enterprises (a safari club in Kenya, radio station in Hong Kong, acting jobs all over). For instance, he will stop off home between finishing "Counterfeit Traitor" here and starting "The Devil 'never Sleeps" in London.

It is no accident that Bill's pictures have an international flavor.

"That's what interests me; that's where I think I can do some good," he said. "The stories I look for are ones that show an American in an international situation. They're the ones that make money, and I'm not out to make producers lose.

"I've tried the strictly American films like 'Toward the Unknown' and 'The Horse Soldiers.' They don't sell. But something like 'Suzie Wong,' which some people scoffed at, is headed for $10 million."

Lives in Chalet

Holden lives in a chalet (with his furniture from the San Fernando Valley) along with his wife, Ard S. and their two sons, Wes, 17, and Scott, 15. They boat and water ski, attend the theater in nearby Lausanne but see few movies — "They're dubbed in French and are pretty miserable."

The boys go to a swiss school—"They're brighter than other American boys their age." As to their having American roots, Holden said their early years provided that. The plan is for them to return to the United States for two years of college, then get their degrees in Europe.

Consumed 1,488 Pounds of Food

The average American consumed an estimated 1,488 pounds of food in 1960. Food processors and manufacturers provided news of their products via a $138 million expenditure in national newspaper advertising.

Article by Area Doctor Published In Time Magazine

Dr. B. Bohdan Wassell, of 81 Prospect Street, New Paltz had published a brief resume of a new type of group psychoanalysis in an article in the June 9, 1961, issue of Time magazine.

Although Dr. Wassell lives in New Paltz, he has offices in both Poughkeepsie and New York City. He also lectured on the subject of this article for the Association of Medical Group Psychoanalysis in New York City.

The method used as explained in the article brings together four families at one time, one parent and one child from each family.

An adolescent who has a mental social problem often, it was found, is involved in an intertwined parent-child problem. Therefore, by working in a group, each individual or family can, by hearing and discussing others problems, gain insight into their own problems and how it may be solved, the article said.

Dr. Wassell also has published a book entitled Group Psychoanalysis which is the first in its field.

Dr. Wassell has indicated that he would be interested in starting a child guidance clinic in New Paltz if enough people were interested.

Cigarette Sales Up

Sales of cigarettes were up 4.8 per cent in 1960. Cigarette manufacturers helped advertise their various brands with a daily newspaper expenditure of nearly $32 million for the year.

Two parsons were having lunch at a farm house in South Carolina recently, during the progress of certain anniversary celebrations. The farmer's wife cooked a couple of chickens, saying that the family could dine on the remains after the visitors had gone. But the hungry parsons wolfed the chickens bare.

Later the farmer was conducting his guests round the farm, when an old rooster commenced to crow lustily. Seems mighty proud of himself, said one of the guests.

No wonder, growled the farmer, he's got two sons in the ministry.

Town Board Votes to Award Contract for Growth Plan

The Woodstock town board has authorized Supervisor Abram F. Molyneaux to contract for the services of planning consultant firm of Brown and Anthony of New York City to institute the Growth Plan for the township.

Action was taken at this week's meeting of the board, following a prior executive session between the town board and the Planning Board.

The growth plan will cost the township not more than $20,000 according to terms of the resolution.

The move to take the first positive step toward committing the township to planning and eventually zoning came after it was reported that $10,300 had been raised by voluntary pledges.

Another $10,000 has been pledged by J. C. van Rijn, president of Rotron Manufacturing Company, and chairman of the Planning Board.

The board's move failed to clarify the exact role to be played by van Rijn in the transaction. At a meeting of local businessmen in March, which was addressed by Dr. Harry Anthony of the Brown and Anthony firm, van Rijn had pledged $10,000 to match the first $10,000 raised by voluntary subscriptions.

At a later open meeting of local taxpayers, van Rijn clarified his position by stating that he would pledge the $10,000, "if needed."

Pledges are still being received and it will not be known for some time how much of the $10,000 pledge will be refunded to van Rijn, depending on the total voluntary pledges.

Issues Statement

Following unanimous board action, Supervisor Molyneaux issued the following statement:

"Authorization now has been given to execute a contract on behalf of the Woodstock Planning Board. With the help of the consultants with him we will contract, the Planning Board can go about the business of formulating a growth plan. The spade work will be done in the ensuing months, not at the expense of the taxpayers, but rather at the expense of those who have contributed to the special trust fund set up for planning purposes.

"The Growth Plan will have no effect by itself—it will merely be a guide. The development and subsequent success of the plan will depend, not upon those who have contributed money, but upon all of Woodstock's residents in their attendance and expression at the public hearings which will be held."

Other business transacted by the board included authorization to formulate a new contract with Central Hudson for the Woodstock lighting district; authorization for repairs to the water district and granting permission to the Little League for use of Andy Lee Memorial Field.

Present at the meeting was the entire board, including Supervisor Molyneaux, Councilmen Tobie Geertsema and John Pike; Justices of the Peace Charles A. Farley and Rudi Baumgarten and town clerk, Marjorie Harder.

A resurvey of the proposed mail routes in Woodstock have been completed by the local post office and have been sent into the regional office, Postmaster Leon Carey has announced.

As soon as the necessary equipment and supplies are received, the post office department will announce the date when this service will start.

Under the new set up, a possible 516 more families in this area will receive door or curb service. These same families having had to go to the post office or to the end of their road for their mail in the past.

The post office department is advertising for bids for two trucks to be used at the Woodstock post office for their mounted and parcel post routes. Further information can be obtained from the postmaster in Woodstock.

Each member's list may include up to 30 names. A complete roster of members will be posted in the gallery for the convenience of those who may wish to consult it.

Farleys Celebrate Golden Anniversary in Brooklyn

One of Woodstock's best known and most popular couples, Justice of the Peace and Mrs. Charles A (Buck) Farley recently celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary at a special Mass of Thanksgiving at St. Rose of Lima's Church in Brooklyn, where the couple was married 50 years ago.

Monsignor James H. Casey, LLDPA, who was parish priest when the Farleys were married, celebrated the Mass. Mrs. Joseph Trottner, sister of Mrs. Farley, who was the bridesmaid in the wedding, was also present. Leo Farley, Mr. Farley's brother who was best man 50 years ago, could not attend because of illness.

The Papal Blessing was also bestowed upon Mr. and Mrs. Farley by Pope John.

Come From New York

Justice Farley is a charter member of St. Vincent de Paul Conference and is a graduate of Classen Point Military Academy.

The Farleys moved to Woodstock from New York nearly 20 years ago, following Justice Farley's retirement from the License Bureau of Manhattan. His father was sheriff and also chief of the old Brooklyn fire department.

In Woodstock, both Mr. and Mrs. Farley have been active in St. John's Parish and Mr. Farley is a trustee of the church. He was employed by the town of Woodstock as a traffic patrolman before being elected as Justice of the Peace. He is now serving his second term.

Justice and Mrs. Farley have received many congratulatory messages from local residents who know them as one of Woodstock's grandest couples.

Another New Art Gallery in Woodstock

Woodstock's newest art gallery is the Gladstone Gallery due to open soon on the lower Byrdcliffe Road. The director is Bertha Gladstone of Woodstock and Sarasota, Fla.

The gallery, which will be devoted to showing the works of contemporary painters and sculptors, is being readied on the spacious premises of "Rockledge" which were occupied some years ago by the Art Students League in Woodstock.

The Gladstone Gallery is planning a series of group shows of the works of well known artists from New York, the Woodstock area and from Sarasota. There will be private showings for collectors and exhibition hours will also be announced. The opening date of the first show will soon be announced.

Chandler Leaves Children Money In Will Carbon

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Jeff Chandler's attorney has filed in Superior Court a signed carbon copy of the actor's will, under which Chandler left more than $600,000 in trust for his two daughters.

A petition accompanying the will Thursday said the original of the document, dated June 9, 1959, had not been found. The court was asked to recognize the carbon copy.

The will made no provision for Chandler's former wife Marjorie. She received a property settlement at the time of the couple's divorce. The divorce became final Aug. '16, 1960 and the daughters Jamie, now 14, and Dana, now 11 —have lived with her since.

Chandler, 42, died June 17 of complications following a back operation.

Hand Shows Bid Angles

BY OSWALD JACOBY
Written for
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

With the heart opening South has nine easy tricks at no-trump. With any other lead he has to worry along for a while, but eventually he will take and win the heart finesse.

The hand is shown to illustrate two important points in bidding.

The first is that North elects to bid two clubs, not three diamonds in response to his partner's diamond opening. His reason is that he does not want to crowd the bidding with two suits unstopped.

South's two no-trump rebid is proper. He only has 14 high card points, but he has stoppers in both unbid suits and near no-trump distribution.

North had planned to show diamond support, but after South's rebid to two no-trump he sees no reason to complicate the bidding. He has 11 points, five potential diamond tricks, and a no-trump type hand also.

It is interesting to note that if North responds with three diamonds and South rebids either three hearts or three spades it will be very hard for North to go to three no-trump. At the same time, it would be difficult for South to go to three no-trump himself with that wide open club suit staring him in the face.

Glancing Over TV Bill of Fare

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP TV-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Although the quantity is small, TV highlights during the next few days offer plenty of variety for viewers.

"Person to Person," CBS' venerable program which has been among the missing this past season, pops up tonight as a summer replacement series (10:30-11 EDT) in its old time spot. Three Crosby brothers, Philip, Lindsey and Dennis, will be the first celebrities visited.

NBC has a new children's show, "Pip the Piper" bowing in Saturday morning (9:30-10). The network's "Nation's Future" that night (9:30-10:30) ought to be especially interesting. Presidential press secretary Pierre Salinger; Harrison Salisburg of the New York Times; Aleksei Adzhubei, editor of Izvestia, and Mikhail Karlamov, chief of the Soviet Foreign Ministry's press section will debate freedom of the press.

Jane Morgan, the singer, will make her dramatic debut on Monday night's episode of "Peter Gunn" (ABC, 10:30-11). On Tuesday night (7-7:30) ABC will start its "Focus on America" series, programs developed by local TV stations during the season. The first is a study of the beginnings of the cattle industry made by an Oklahoma City station.

Shirley Booth and Gene Raymond will star in Wednesday night's steel hour (CBS, 10-11), "The Haven," a drama about a threatened marriage.

NEW YORK (AP)—Wayne and Shuster, the team of Canadian comedians who made their American debut as proteges of Ed Sullivan, will bow in Sunday night as stars of a situation comedy under the wing of Jack Benny.

In terms of prestige, this is very nice sponsorship.

The two comedians play social directors of a resort in the series, one of those setups dear to Hollywood comedy writers because it opens the door on a wide variety of — hopefully—amusing situations. "Holiday Lodge" is made by Benny's production company and will be the summer replacement for his program.

"We aren't completely sold on the 'Holiday Lodge' title," confessed Johnny Wayne. "We thought it would be helpful if we could call it 'The Jack Benny Show.'"

The team is also a little dubious about the format.

"What we really wanted to make," explained Frank Shuster, "was an underwater Western set in the 1920s. That would have really caught on."

The team has specialized during their long career in Canada, where they are important TV stars, in satiric sketches.

Group Will Visit Mohawk Valley on Redevelopment Aid

AMSTERDAM, N.Y. (AP) — A federal task force will come to this Mohawk Valley community July 21 to explain provisions of the Kennedy administration's new Area Redevelopment Act.

Rep. Samuel S. Stratton, D-N.Y., said in Washington Thursday the program will be explained to leaders of communities eligible for unemployment aid.

Besides Amsterdam, the U.S. Commerce Department has designated these New York areas eligible for the program:

Gloversville - Johnstown, Auburn, Plattsburgh, Ogdensburg - Massena-Malone and Jamestown-Dunkirk.

Stratton said representatives of the Commerce, Defense and Labor Departments and of the Housing and Home Finance Agency would attend.

Adlai Scotches Plot on Life

WASHINGTON (AP) — Officials in Washington and Argentina say there is no evidence to link the shooting of a U.S. Marine Guard in Buenos Aires with any plot to assassinate Adlai E. Stevenson.

And Stevenson, who returned Thursday from his tour of South America for President Kennedy, said he hadn't heard of any attempt to kill him. Stevenson is the U.S. ambassador to the United Nations.

Two New York area newspapers, the New York World Telegram and Sun and the Newark Star-Ledger, reported Thursday that a group of extremists had plotted to kill Stevenson during his recent visit to Buenos Aires. They said the Marine was wounded in an aftermath of the conspiracy.

At his news conference Thursday, Secretary of State Dean Rusk said a Marine, whom the State Department identified as Sgt. James J. Lucinskis, 24, of Chicago, was wounded recently by an Argentine civilian. But Rusk said there was no evidence connecting the shooting with Stevenson's visit.

Court Orders No Interference With Power Line Job

UTICA, N.Y. (AP)—Farmers in Marcy have feuded with the State Power Authority over construction of an electric transmission line across their land were under court order today not to interfere with the work.

Justice Bert B. Lockwood of State Supreme Court Thursday granted the power authority's request for a temporary restraining order and called a hearing July 5 to determine whether the order should be made permanent.

Eight landowners from the community in the Adirondack foothills were named in the order.

They and others have contended the authority was high-handed in acquiring easements across their land and slow to make payments. The authority has denied this. Clashes broke out recently between the farmers and construction crews.

The line is being built to link the Niagara and St. Lawrence power projects.

Negro Policy Reversed

Ignored Before, Red Carpet Is Out Now

HAGERSTOWN, Md. (AP) — The Maryland town where a top African diplomat was refused restaurant service three months ago began rolling out a red carpet for his triumphal return today.

The guest of honor in a round of ceremonies here will be Dr. William Fitzjohn, former charge d'affaires for the Republic of Sierra Leone. Fitzjohn and his chauffeur, both Negroes, were denied service March 9 at a Howard Johnson restaurant near here.

Highlight of the visit will be a dinner in the city's leading hotel to which 200 Negro and white city residents are invited. Mayor Winslow Burhans, who invited Fitzjohn to return to Hagerstown, said he had done so "in the interest of justice" and as an extension of his apologies for the restaurant incident.

"The celebration will be the highlight of my two years' experience in the United States," Fitzjohn said.

Fitzjohn, who was appointed this week as high commissioner to the Court of St. James in London, had complained to the U.S. State Department after the restaurant incident. President Kennedy later asked governors of all states along the Atlantic Coast to be particularly careful to avoid discriminatory practices involving Africans.

The Howard Johnson restaurant promptly announced it had ended its policy of not serving Negroes, and Mayor Burhans sent an apology to Fitzjohn.

Probes Atlas Fizzle

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) —The Air Force, deeply concerned about the seventh failure in 10 launchings of an advanced Atlas missile, today sought the cause of the latest fizzle.

An 85-foot Atlas "E" model exploded several thousand feet over the Atlantic Ocean Thursday night, 95 seconds after it was launched on an intended 7,300-mile test.

Warming Trend Due for Nation

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Rather unseasonable coolness and widespread showers again dominated the weather picture in most of the Northern and Eastern sections of the nation today.

The principal shower band went across the Great Lakes region, the Ohio Valley and the New England States. Isolated showers were reported in the Texas Panhandle and in central Florida, but rain accumulation was light.

Scattered showers also fell over the Great Lakes and in upper New England, Illinois and Lower Michigan.

The Weather Bureau said a warming trend was on the way for most of the nation, but the early morning readings at Duluth, Minn. and Marquette, Mich. were 45.

Chatham Class Asks Better Care For Famous Grave

HUDSON, N.Y. (AP)—A class at Chatham elementary school thinks better care should be taken of the grave of Columbia County's most famous son, President Martin Van Buren.

The class wrote the editor of the Hudson Register-Star that it found "flowers dead a year ago" and a "tattered, small bleached-white flag" on the eighth President's grave in Kinderhook, his birthplace. The Kinderhook Chamber of Commerce removed the flowers and village officials promised further action.

Castro Balks, POWs to Explain Position

Final Offer Was For 500 Tractors

KEY WEST, Fla. (AP)—Prime Minister Fidel Castro rejected today the latest offer of the Tractors for Freedom Committee but said he would send a delegation of captured rebels back to the United States to explain his position to the American public.

In the rejection, reported by Havana radio, Castro charged that the committee lied when it accused Castro of changing his position. He said the committee tried to confuse public opinion.

Deadline Was Noon

The Tractors for Freedom Committee had set a noon deadline today in a take-it-or-leave-it ultimatum that capped nearly a month of negotiations.

The committee's final offer was to exchange the prisoners for 500 bulldozers of various types, mostly farm tractors.

It said that if Castro failed to accept, money received from contributors to the tractor fund would be returned to the senders.

The radio quoted Castro as saying that from the very beginnng he had clearly specified the number and type of tractors he wanted.

Castro originally offered to exchange the men captured in the April-18 invasion of Cuba for 500 bulldozers. In his proposal, May 17, Castro used the English word "bulldozers."

Held Out for 1,000

After meeting in Havana with representatives of the Tractors for Freedom Committee, Castro said he would accept smaller types of tractors, but stipulated that he would have to get 1,000 of them, instead of 500.

In his reply to the committee today, the radio quoted Castro as saying the committee had been silent about an alternative proposal. That proposal, he said, was to abandon the tractor deal if the captured invaders were exchanged on a man-for-man basis for an equal number of "political prisoners" in the United States, Puerto Rico, Guatemala, Nicaragua and Spain.

Silent on Exchange

Castro also said the committee had been silent about another proposal to exchange the invasion leaders for Francisco (the Hook) Molina, a pro-Castro Cuban who is awaiting sentencing in New York City on a second-degree murder charge; Pedro Albizu Campos, a Puerto Rican nationalist leader who is under guard in a San Juan hospital, and Henry Winston, a jailed American Communist party leader.

The three invasion leaders are Capt. Manuel Artime, Jose San Roman, and Rafael Bolivar Fuente.

The committee had asked Castro for a list of prisoners who would be subject to the exchange. The original number was 1,214 but Castro's list included only 1,167.

Today, the radio quoted Castro as saying the 1,167 were the only ones of the group who were inno-

Maritime Groups Hear U.S. Plan for Accord

NEW YORK (AP)—A rapid-fire series of meetings was called today for parties in the eight-day maritime strike to decide whether to accept a government peace plan.

They could accept Labor Secretary Arthur J. Goldberg's proposal for a voluntary 60-day suspension of the three-coast walkout or face the possibility of a Taft-Hartley Law 80-day injunction.

The meetings were set up by William E. Simkin, director of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service.

JFK Ready to Act

He was to meet in succession with marine engineers; the powerful National Maritime Union; the Masters, Mates and Pilots, and then with representatives of the shipping owners.

President Kennedy is ready, if the striking unions and industry agree, to name a three-man committee to weigh all issues and produce a recommended solution.

Goldberg called for acceptance by 1 p.m. EST Saturday.

At that time, Goldberg has an appointment to report to Kennedy. The labor secretary didn't mention the likelihood of invoking the Taft-Hartley law's 80-day emergency injunction provision in the event of a rejection, but his remarks on the gravity of the situation indicated as much.

"If this stoppage is permitted to continue," he said, "it will contribute seriously to worsening the nation's trade and dollar balances."

Losses in Millions

In New York, there was no immediate comment officially from ship owners or from the various

Kennedy Is Fine Today, Has Last Talk With Ikeda

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy, "feeling fine" in the words of an aide, deserted his sick bed today and played host to Japanese Prime Minister Hayato Ikeda.

Kennedy, confined to bed Thursday by a bacteria and virus infection, posed for photographs with the prime minister and then walked into the driveway of the executive mansion to bid a personal farewell.

Pays Farewell Call

Ikeda paid a farewell call closing out three days of high-level talks.

The crutches that a back strain had forced Kennedy to use before he was felled by illness were nowhere in sight. He walked slowly, but if he limped at all it was so slightly as to be hardly discernible.

Kennedy canceled a scheduled wind-up conference with Ikeda Thursday after coming down with the virus infection which shot his temperature to 101.6 degrees before it broke. His doctor reported late Thursday that he was recovering very nicely. Kennedy set out to prove it today.

Yields to Advice

He did, however, yield to advice from the White House physician, Dr. Janet Travell, and agree to remain in his second-floor living quarters in the mansion. Kennedy had passed the word that he planned to divide his time between the mansion itself and his office in the west wing.

Dr. Travell made it clear that

Screening Is Done On School Pupils

The Kingston Board of Education (Consolidated) Thursday night approved Operation Able, a program to assist "severly deprived" students of high educational potential who are not producing at capacity.

The deprivations may be economic, cultural, domestic, etc., school officials explained.

Cost of the program, 50 percent of which will be underwritten by the state, is estimated at $20,000 for the school year 1961-62.

Thinks of Average Students

Howard Fox of Kingston voted against the proposal, arguing that he would prefer to see such funds applied to the improvement of the average students of the district, who form the "bulk" of the school population. He said he supports the classes for advanced and retarded children but feels the board should concentrate on doing a better job with its average students.

Benson A. Krom of Hurley abstained from the vote, explaining that he didn't think he "would like to vote one was or another on the spur of the moment like this."

Those in Favor

Andrew T. Gilday of Kingston said he had "mixed emotions" regarding the proposal but "I'd be willing to give it a try."

Also casting votes in favor of the proposal were President Robert Herzog, Vice-president Robert O'Reilly, David Kline, Mrs. Vincent G. Connelly, Arthur Withall and George Schneider.

Implementation of the program next year will provide for one class of talented students in the sixth grade who are working below their potential, two classes of seventh grade students with extension of the program into the eighth grade.

Dr. Earl F. Soper, superintendent of schools, said it will require an additional teacher on the sixth grade level, the help of a psychologist for a month of testing, an additional teacher at the seventh grade level remedial reading, primarily) and a guidance counselor.

There would be about 30 students in each of the two seventh grade classes, and one class of about 25 on the sixth grade level. The sixth grade class would attend the George Washington School.

Screening Children

Appearing before the board to present the program were James Tobin, director of pupil personnel services, Mrs. Marion Gregory, elementary supervisor, and Jacob Nolfo, a guidance counselor.

Nolfo said that much work has been done in preparation for the program, that the student population in the sixth, seventh and eighth grades is being screened in the quest for high

Herzog, O'Reilly Attend Their Last School Parley

Robert H. Herzog, president of the Kingston Board of Education (Consolidated), and Robert B. O'Reilly, vice president, attended their last meeting of the board at an adjourned session Thursday evening in Kingston High School.

Their terms expire July 1 at which time they will be succeeded as board members by Mrs. Edith Case Murphy, Kingston, retiring head of the KHS mathematics department, and Bernie Singer, a Kingston businessman.

To Elect July 1st

The board will hold an organizational meeting at 9 a. m. Saturday, July 1, at which time a new president and vice president will be elected. The board will also elect its clerk and appoint a tax collector for the district. Dr. Earl F. Soper, superintendent of schools, serves as clerk. Mrs. Edna S. Morgan is the district tax collector.

Herzog is completing 17 years as a member of the board. O'Reilly a total of 10.

Leaders Seven Years

For the past seven years Herzog has served as president of the board, and O'Reilly as vice-president.

Herzog, a prominent Kingston businessman, and O'Reilly, a public accountant, received the plaudits of school officials and fellow board members last night at the termination of their current five-year terms.

Dr. Soper expressed his "sincere thanks" for the "six enjoyable years" he has spent since coming to the board in 1955. He told the retiring board members that he is "very grateful for their help and cooperation" and that they have made "a tremendous contribution to the educational welfare of children in the school district."

Hears Praise for Two

He said that throughout the community he has heard frequent testimonials to the excellence and loyal service of the two men and regrets that their terms are expiring.

Herzog responded briefly, saying that he appreciated the cooperation he has received and that he has "really enjoyed my 17 years on the board." He wished the board a "lot of luck" in the future.

O'Reilly said, simply, of his 10 years of service, that he had "enjoyed it very much."

Herzog was appointed to the board in May, 1942, departing for military service a short time later and serving during the school years of 1944-45 and 1945-46 in the armed forces.

In May, 1946, he returned to the board of education.

First Election in 1948

In May, 1948, he was elected president, continuing to serve in that capacity until 1951 when he was succeeded by Clarence S. Rowland. Rowland served until May, 1954, at which time Herzog was reelected. He has served continuously since that time.

O'Reilly, a graduate of Siena College, has served the board as chairman of its important finance committee, and has also served as a member of a number of other committees during his tenure.

He served in the U. S. Army for 26 months during World War 2.

Will Ask Figures In Sept.

Consultant Says Tie Jobs Together

The Kingston Board of Education (Consolidated), Thursday night rejected bids totaling three-quarters of a million dollars for construction of the Mary's Avenue elementary school and decided to call for new bids next September in conjunction with bids for the proposed junior high school in the Forsyth Park area.

The board acted after Whitney Murphy, consultant for Perkins & Will, school architects, advised that the building is not worth the money.

$90,000 Over Allocation

The bids on actual construction of the building, plumbing and electrical work, etc., amounted to $769,066—approximately $90,000 beyond the budget allocation.

The total square footage of the proposed elementary school is 31,258. The bids came to $21.85 per square foot.

Murphy said certain revisions might be made which could result in savings of approximately $46,785, leaving a net cost beyond budget of $42,881. This saving would reduce the cost per square foot to $21.01, still a dollar or more above the normal cost of such a building, Murphy stated.

A 'Gamble', He Says

He said it is difficult to conceive how the bids next September could be worse, although he conceded that it is a "gamble."

Tying the two schools (Mary's and the new junior high) together for bidding next September might attract some good outside bidders, he said, which might produce at least as good a bid.

George Schneider moved that the bids be rejected and put out again next September along with bids for the new junior high school, for which preliminary plans have been approved by the State Education Department.

Vote Is 8 to 1

The board voted eight to one to reject the bids, with Andrew T. Gilday casting the negative ballot.

Gilday said he feels that the board is "just delaying the issue, and that it doesn't know that the bids will be any better next September.

The board has been three years on the Mary's Avenue school, he said, expressing the view that failure to begin construction of the school is a "man-sized job of stalling."

Murphy explained that it is difficult to conceive how the bids could be worse, that the bids were priced higher than any other school to come out of the office of Perkins & Will in many years. "It's just not worth it," he concluded.

He said occupancy would be delayed if the bids are rejected. It might be another year's delay before the school could be occupied. "You are gambling on the winter," he said. He explained

To Raise $3,108,789 by Taxes

Board Adopts School Budget of $5,621,907

The Kingston Board of Education (Consolidated) took final action on the proposed budget of $5,621,907 for the school year 1961-62 at its adjourned meeting Thursday night in Kingston High School.

The tentative budget, which is an increase of $358,689 over the present fiscal year, was approved last month and a public hearing held, as required by law.

It received its final approval last night. A total of $3,108,789 must be raised by local tax levy with a tax rate of $39.27, compared to $37.94 during the current year—an increase of $1.33.

Other Action of Board

The board also:

1. Accepted with regret the resignation of Reginald Russell, supervisor of transportation.

2. Decided to seek signatures to a petition of property owners on Mary's Avenue between West O'Reilly and Andrew Streets for sidewalks, curbing, etc., in anticipation of construction of the Mary's Avenue elementary school.

3. Took note of academic excellence in student testing, and the steady advance in quality in relation to the national testing average.

4. Appointed an elementary school supervisor, Thomas Guerriero of the Spring Valley School. Ruggiero will work in association with Mrs. Marion Gregory, who holds a similar position.

5. Took cognizance of a new combined purchasing program in the cafeteria system, initiated by John W. Johnson, director,

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) —They've closed the book officially for the time being on the smorgasbord spy story and its bass fishing, Czech mushrooms and sheet music. But chances are the Communists will reopen the book at the U.N. General Assembly in the fall.

Newburgh Welfare Revolt Seen Threat To Federal Aid, Two Point to Merits

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP)—The state might be able to avoid loss of all federal welfare aid because of the Newburgh revolt by taking over operation of that city's welfare program, a federal official said today.

There was no indication of what the state planned to do, however, over plans of Newburgh to set stringent new welfare rules, many of them in conflict with state law.

The State Board of Social Welfare will meet tomorrow in New York City to discuss the issue.

Joseph O'Connor, regional director for the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare, said federal aid for welfare was given to states with the understanding that all welfare operations within those states conformed to federal laws.

If there were any defection in any part of the state, he said, the entire federal allotment could be cut off.

$150 Million From U.S.

The federal government pays nearly $150 million a year to the state for public welfare. State costs total nearly $170 million and localities provide the balance of the annual half-billion-dollar cost of public relief.

Newburgh, faced with sharply rising welfare costs, has adopted rules to limit the size and duration of welfare payments, to require recipients to work and to require newcomers seeking relief to supply evidence they had a firm offer of employment before they came.

Third for Welfare

Nearly one-third of the city's $3-million budget for 1961-62 has been earmarked for public welfare.

Of that, the federal and state governments provide more than $500,000.

City officials have said however, that, to meet the local share, the current tax rate of $31 per $1,000 might have to be raised $10.

A spokesman for the State Social Welfare Department said that more than half of Newburgh's proposed regulations, scheduled to take effect July 15, were "clearly in violation of the law."

Will Wait to See

O'Connor said the federal government would wait to see what action the state took before deciding its course.

He said it was up to the state to maintain the conformity required for federal payments. The state might be able to maintain this conformity by taking over Newburgh operations itself until the situation was resolved, the official said.

O'Connor said, however, that he knew of no case in recent years in which the federal government cut off welfare payments to an entire state.

In any event, he said, no action would be taken until the proposed Newburgh regulations were actually put into effect.

Would Encourage City

Senate Majority Leader Walter J. Mahoney said yesterday the state should encourage, not fight, Newburgh's efforts to cut relief costs.

The Republican leader said there should be a re-evaluation of state policies with an eye toward giving localities greater home rule in setting welfare regulations.

Rep. Katharine St. George, R-New York, said in Washington recently that there was overwhelming backing for the Newburgh

Rocky's Office Looking Into $1,250 Student Aid

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Gov. Rockefeller was embroiled today in another controversy over state aid to higher education. This one involved a loan agency's decision to authorize less money to undergraduate students than the limit set by the Legislature.

Settlement Expected

A controversy that flared earlier this month was expected to be resolved today, however, with a Board of Regents announcement that payments under the state's new scholar-incentive program will be made directly to students, rather than to colleges. The Regents are winding up a two-day meeting here.

Meanwhile, the governor's office looked into the plan of the Higher Education Assistance Corp. to hold state-backed loans to senior college students to an annual $1,250 limit, $250 less than the $1,500 maximum the 1961 Legislature authorized.

Not His Idea

The Republican governor asserted the corporation's decision was not in line with his understanding of the spirit and intent of the law.

Republican legislative leaders also split over the loan plan.

Assembly Speaker Joseph F. Carlino expressed sympathy for "the position of the students." Senate Majority Leader Walter J. Mahoney said the loan program could be expanded gradually.

Seniors, who will be eligible for $1,250, heretofore could borrow only $1,000. Loans to juniors were raised from $750 to $1,000. The corporation left unchanged the limits of $500 for freshmen and $750 for sophomores.

Rift Begins to Heal

The rift between the governor and the Regents began to heal shortly after Rockefeller criticized the board's plan to pay scholar-incentive grants to colleges. Appraised of the governor's displeasure, the Regents immediately decided to reconsider.

Under the scholar-incentive plan approved by the 1961 Legislature, qualifying New York residents attending colleges within the state will receive outright grants, up to $300 a year for undergraduates and up to $800 for graduate students.

Says Big 3 Should Fight for Berlin

Talks Reveal New Policy on Seating Red China in U. N.

CHICAGO (AP)— The Chicago Sun-Times said today that the United States, in talks with Japanese leaders in Washington, reportedly unveiled a new policy regarding the entry of Communist China into the United Nations.

In a dispatch from Washington by Frederick Kuh the newspaper said China's entry would involve for the first time U.S. consent to seating the Chinese Communists in the U.N. Assembly. However, the dispatch added that U.S. officials privately state that the entire purpose of the exercise would be to jockey Peiping into the position of refusing a seat in the U.N.

The newspaper said the reported plan was confided to the Japanese mission headed by Prime Minister Hayato Ikeda which just completed a visit to Washington. The plan, according to the dispatch, was supposed to have been related by Secretary of State Dean Rusk to Japanese Foreign Minister Zentaro Kosaka.

The Sun-Times said a member of the Ikeda group described the proposal as the "successor-state theory," explained this way:

1. This description means that instead of the single China, there now are two Chinas—heirs or successors of the old China. One is Communist China, the other Formosa.

2. Under the successor-state theory, China's U.N. seat would be divided in two.

3. The plan foresees Nationalist China retaining its seat in the 11-nation Security Council and the 99-nation General Assembly. However, Communist China would receive only a seat in the assembly for which it would have to apply to the assembly's credentials Committee.

4. This would be dealt with as a procedural matter by the assembly, thereby avoiding a Chinese Nationalist veto in the Security Council.

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP)— Sir Leslie K. Munro of New Zealand, 1957 president of the United Nations General Assembly, said today the United States, Britain and France should fight for West Berlin if necessary.

Munro, now the assembly's special representative on Hungary, dealt with the Berlin issue in a speech prepared for the 44th annual convention of Lions International.

He said Soviet Premier Khrushchev, in demanding his own Berlin solution before the end of this year, "is taking great risks."

Munro explained: "How far, he must ask himself, are the peoples of the United States, Britain and France ready to fight for Western Berlin? I believe they should. . . .

"An appeasement over Berlin would only lead to further demands, for successful dictators are insatiable. . . .

"If Khrushchev in January 1962 acts through a puppet Eastern Germany to strangle Western Berlin, will the congress of this country act to support the President in warlike measures or war itself to save the city?

"This is a question for you to answer. It may also be asked by Britain and France."

Reds Are Likely

of diplomatic immunity and threatened to deport him as illegal alien if he did not leave. It acted a lot tougher at the finish than it did at the start.

The Czechs broke the story a week ago when their U.N. mission charged two U.S. intelligence agents, in the company of a known Czech defector, tried to hire Nacvalac as a spy on the previous Tuesday—June 13.

Demand Made He Leave

It took the U.S. State Department six hours to come up with charges that Nacvalac was a spy who gave U.S. agents the false impression he wanted to defect. The United States sent a note to the Czech mission demanding that Nacvalac get out of the country because of "improper activities."

Nacvalac meanwhile made himself available to reporters with an account of two U.S. agents named "Mr. Mack and Mr. Jack" interrupting his smorgasbord luncheon at a New York restaurant to enlist him for espionage.

He said he was with an American friend talking about favorite spots for bass fishing—a friend for whom he said he had obtained Czech mushrooms and sheet music from home.

On Monday Czechoslovakia rejected the U.S. demand that Nacvalac be recalled, saying it violated the U.S.-U.N. agreement giving special status to the U.N. headquarters site and diplomats attached to it.

Was Working for FBI

On Tuesday the United States fired off a memorandum to Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold charging that Nacvalac, in a series of meetings in California paid $1,700 to a naturalized American of Czech descent for information Nacvalac thought was highly secret. Actually, the United States said, the American was working with the FBI and the information he passed was worthless.

Nacvalac, again meeting with reporters, denied the detailed U.S. story as a fabrication and said he had never been in California. The State Department produced pictures it said showed he was there.

Kennedy Is Fine

she would prefer him to stay in his upstairs quarters. He received Ikeda there.

Aides reported Kennedy feeling "fine."

Kennedy, usually on the go constantly, was sidelined all day Thursday by a mixed bacteria and virus infection that hit him in his sleep. On the advice of White House physician Janet Travell, he stayed in bed.

Drugs Cut Fever

By late afternoon, Dr. Travell reported he was "making a very nice recovery," was feeling much better and his temperature was normal. It had jumped to 101.6 degrees at 7 a.m., but under an attack of drugs had retreated to the normal 98.6 four hours later.

After checking him over again at 4 p.m. Dr. Travell told reporters the president had "a lot of zip" and had demanded to know: "How much longer do I have to hang around here?"

Kennedy was then undergoing his enforced rest in his bedroom in the White House living quarters. He had dozed at times during the day, sitting up in his pale blue pajamas to consume three bowls of chicken broth.

Scraps Crutches

Thursday was the day set for Kennedy to demonstrate recovery from his back injury by scrapping the crutches he had been required to use since June 9. He scrapped them—but not in the fashion intended. He awoke from his sleep at 1:30 a.m. with a sore throat and fever. He promptly called Dr. Travell, who hurried over from her home in the Georgetown section of Washington.

Doses of penicillin and an antibiotic called tetracycline, plus rest apparently stemmed the infection.

Newburgh . . .

plans and she doubted federal aid would be cut off.

"They wouldn't dare," she asserted.

Mitchell's Statement

Meanwhile, Newburgh City Manager Joseph Mitchell issued this statement today in comment on the situation:

"No other government unit has the right to spend tax dollars with no tangible results, and no other government unit is allowed to botch up a community and get away with it but welfare can and does.

"It is simple pie to issue relief checks and to visit the homes of welfare recipients once every month to get a form initiated.

"But to effect true rehabilitation and have this rehabilitation reflect upon the social and economic health of any city is difficult—to safeguard the local economy is difficult.

"I do not see where the state welfare efforts are helping anyone—they are obsessed with paper work, uniformity and reimbursement—not in the social and economic fates of the areas in which they operate.

Calls It Social Madness

"Unless the sum total of all individual case work reflects in the improvement of local police, fire, sanitation, housing and health conditions, welfare has failed, and we have enough evidence to show that here in the past 11 years so-called case work has been a gigantic boondoggle costing the taxpayers nine million dollars.

"Aid to dependent children has risen 300 per cent in the city of Newburgh—this is welfare? No. This is financial and social madness."

450 to 480 Deaths Likely During Long 4th Holiday

CHICAGO (AP)—A week from today American motorists will start rolling out on the highways in volume to enjoy the long July 4 holiday weekend.

For 450 to 480 of them it will be their last outing. The National Safety Council as yet has not calculated a definite estimate of the holiday highway toll but says its figure will fall somewhere within that range.

The council's traditional estimates and the attention that news media give to the accounting of holiday fatalities has come in for criticism of late. While some safety campaigners insist that the warnings have a salutary effect, others maintain that extraordinary attention is given to death totals that would mount up whether or no a holiday were involved.

One statistic stands out. The safety council reports that the death rate over holidays has been decreasing steadily. It believes the attention given to holiday accident news by the press, radio and television has been a major, if not the major factor in producing that decrease.

Figures collected over the years by The Associated Press support the council's position that holidays are greater killers than ordinary days. The death toll any day of the week, any month of the year is shocking; over a holiday it is even more so.

To establish some yardstick whereby the public can gauge the holiday toll in relation to the normal toll, The Associated Press has been making surveys two weeks before each major holiday: New Year's Day, Memorial Day, July 4, Labor Day, Thanksgiving and Christmas.

Repairs Are Due For Bridge to Vanderbilt Site

The National Park Service of the Department of the Interior will make extensive repairs to the historic and picturesque White Bridge that spans Crum Elbow Creek on the entrance road at Vanderbilt Mansion, it was announced today by Robert H. Atkinson, superintendent of the historic site.

Atkinson said that the bridge, although structurally sound, has suffered some deterioration in recent years by water seeping through cracks in the concrete of the soffit of the arch, and expansion from freezing has caused the cracks to open wider. Such condition, if neglected, might eventually weaken the structure, Atkinson said.

Constructed in 1897

The bridge is of the arch-span design and was constructed in 1897. The main span is 75 feet and rests upon reenforced concrete abutments that are flanked by wingwalls. The balustrades are ornamented with 140 balusters and capped with coping that has unique cornices. The bridge, known as a Melan Arch Bridge, is reported to be one of the first steel and concrete bridges constructed in the United States.

It is a stated policy of the National Park Service to maintain, where possible, such historic structures in their original design. Therefore, the architecture of the bridge will not be altered. The repair work will consist of removing the road surface, fill and other material from the bridge, waterproofing the soffit of the arch, supporting the wingwalls with stone masonry, installing sub-surface drainage, backfilling and resurfacing the road. The exposed concrete will be repaired where needed and the balustrades will be repaired and old balusters will be replaced.

To Open Bids July 12

Bids for the proposed work will be opened on July 12. It is estimated that the work will require approximately 60 days for completion. During the term of the work, the main entrance will be closed and all traffic will use the North gate that is located on U. S. Highway 9 abreast of the Hyde Park Playhouse, about 300 yards north of St. James Episcopal Church.

Plans, specifications and bid forms are available and will be distributed upon request from the office of the Superintendent, Vanderbilt Mansion National Historic Site, Hyde Park.

Saved 20,000 Jews, Eichmann Testifies

JERUSALEM (AP) — Adolf Eichmann claimed today that he saved 20,000 Jews from extermination by diverting them to an already overcrowded ghetto in Lodz, Poland.

The former Gestapo officer charged by Israel with major responsibility for the Nazi extermination of six million Jews also claimed that the diversion of the 20,000 to Lodz was the first and only time that he had the chance to make such a decision.

Otherwise, he asserted, his superiors were responsible for extermination orders and he only arranged for the transport of the jews to the death camps.

"I had the choice personally to determine the fate of these 20,000 Jews," he told the three-judge Israeli court, "and I did not want them to be sent to the East where I knew extermination was going on but sent them to Lodz where I knew that no such thing was going on."

The former Gestapo lieutenant colonel, in his fourth day on the witness stand, testified:

1. SS Gen. Heinrich Mueller, his immediate superior in charge of Department IV of the security police, had "the direct contact" with the Einsatz commandos, the blitz battalions that murdered two million Jews, partisans and Gypsies in the East.

2. Interior Minister Wilhelm Frick and SS Reichsfuehrer Heinrich Himmler teamed to create the framework that led to the deliberate extermination of the Jews on an order from Adolf Hitler.

Eichmann certified documents introduced by his counsel, Dr. Robert Servatius, as showing that Gestapo Department II supplied the gas vans and trucks used by the Einsatz commandos.

"I gave no orders nor made any arrangements. My Department IV-B-4 had no connection with these affairs," Eichmann declared.

The trial recessed for the weekend, after today's testimony.

Lending Library For Patients

ELLENVILLE, June 22 — A lending library for the use of patients of Veterans Memorial Hospital will be put into service shortly, it became known at the regular monthly meeting of the Board of Directors this week.

Following an offer by the Ellenville Public Library recently, to present books to the hospital for the establishment of a library, Mrs. Dorothy Sanderson, library director, submitted a lost of 120 books this week for the hospital's use. The list includes books for adult patients as well as young people.

The board also heard a comprehensive report on hospital purchasing and prices, made by the Committee on Hospial Service and Purchases, following a detailed survey of the various hospital departments. The meeting went on record to study and act on recommendations in the report.

It also was announced that Hospital Administrator Evald Bors-Koefoed has been re-elected secretary-treasurer of the Hospital Council of Southeastern New York, and has been named alternate delegate to the American Hospital Association.

New Milk Product Introduced in State

ITHACA—Ice milk, which will go on sale legally in New York State July 1, is a delicious frozen dessert new to the Empire State but not to consumers in many other areas of the country.

This is the word from Cornell University's ice cream man, Prof. William K. Jordan of the New York State College of Agriculture.

Jordan, who teaches a course in ice cream manufacture, describes ice milk as lower in calories than ice cream. At the same time, he says, it's processed the same way, with the same equipment, and is available in the same flavors as ice cream.

"The ingredients for ice milk cost about five cents less per quart than those for ice cream," Jordan says. "This will probably be reflected in a lower cost to consumers."

Barnum-Type Ballyhoo

NEW YORK (AP)—Out-sized ballyhoo is being planned for a Broadway musical based on the life of fabulous showman Phineas T. Barnum. Producer Alexander H. Cohen has set up a special unit with a $100,000 budget to merchandise the venture, which isn't scheduled to open until Feb. 22, 1962. Cost of the musical itself is set at $400,000.

Do You Remember by Sophie Miller

The Jensen Antique Show recently held at the New York State Armory on Manor Avenue brought books of Kingston and Ulster County, by antiquarian book sellers like T. Emmett Henderson, who is from Middletown. One of these books is difficult to describe. It was published by Gustave Anjou, PhD, dated 1906 with an introduction by the late local historian, Judge A. T. Clearwater, LL.D. It is really a set of two volumns, a careful translation of Dutch and English wills, letters of administration, etc., from 1665 of local people.

Judge Clearwater writes in part: "The history of Ulster County may be said to consist of four periods, the first of which, began with the establishment of a Dutch trading post at Ponckhockie, junction of the Hudson and the Rondout, in 1614. . . . To the Dutch, more than to any other people, America owes its civil and religious liberty, and its wise and tolerant system of laws. . . . To the Dutch also the world is indebted for the system of recording deeds, mortgages and wills, and from the earliest settlement to the present the records of Ulster have been scrupulously and accurately kept, running back in unbroken succession for over 250 years." These books were published in 1906. The early records he speaks of were written in Dutch.

It seems the original records in a number of well worn and much thumbed volumes, originally bound—some in vellum, some in sheepskin—have a mysterious history never solved. They were in the county clerk's office in Kingston until around the 1850's then disappeared. Every effort to find them was unsuccessful. The grand jury instituted an investigation, and the Board of Supervisors offered a liberal reward but it did not help.

Then one summer's day of 1865, an express company truck pulled up before the county clerk's office and delivered a large strange box. Lo and behold it held the long lost records. They were carefully covered with a waterproof wrapper and even closely packed with cotton wool. The shipping address was from a small Long Island village, but the name or address of sender not given. Perhaps now, 60 years later, someone knows the answer to this mystery.

Some people thought at the time that the records had been sent to a Dutch scholar in Brooklyn to be translated, and he might have died before he began the work, and after his death, his family sent them back here. After they were returned, they were carefully examined by Isaac Clearwater, father of Judge Clearwater, who spoke and read Dutch as well as English. He recognized their great importance to this community and advised they be translated into English at once.

When the board of supervisors of the county met the following November, Judge Clearwater brought the facts and necessity of these most important local records to be translated from Dutch into English at the expense of the county. The board at once passed such a resolution and it was adopted by unanimous vote and Judge Clearwater appointed commissioner for this work. More from these records in a future column.

I wonder if any of the readers have an inactive savings bank account, ten years or older. Did you notice that an Act of the 1961 N. Y. State Legislature is requiring the banks by law to turn over such money to the comptroller of the State of New York. To prevent your money from being taken you can make a deposit or just have the interest entered on your passbook.

SAFETY OF MOTORISTS

In which do you feel it safest to ride—a train, a plane, or a private automobile? It it is important to have the vehicle built according to approved standards of safety, both train and plane have it all over the car. There are no federal controls over automotive safety design, though there are for both rail and air equipment.

It is not said that federal standards and controls are the only answer. Automobile manufacturers have put many safety devices into effect, and they could do more along these lines. The trouble is that safety engineering has lagged far behind what is known in this field.

It is generally thought, for example, that the inclusion of seat belts as standard equipment would greatly reduce both the number and seriousness of accident injuries. Car builders have been slow to send out all their cars with seat belts, claiming that buyers do not like them. But air and rail passengers are not consulted as to whether or not they approve of certain safety devices; these are installed when it seems advisable, without consulting the passengers' wishes.

The situation with regard to private cars is somewhat different, granted. Still, one would be hard put to argue that it is proper to safeguard air and rail passengers but improper to safeguard motorists and their passengers. Perhaps it is time for society to insist that the safety of the motoring public be protected by safer automotive design as well as by speed laws and the like.

MAN THE DICTIONARIES

It used to be that when a war broke out the citizen soldiery would, as William Jennings Bryan once phrased it, "spring to arms overnight." The side with the greatest number of sharp-eyed squirrel-rifle-toting backwoodsmen was pretty likely to win.

Now look what we're up against. The U. S. Air Force and Hughes Aircraft Co. have just launched a program to assure "a more timely completion of an improved defense against the threat of air-breathing bombers and missiles; acceleration of systems to provide ballistic missile warning; and an improved deterrent position."

To accomplish that, testing had just been completed on an infrared search and track device for jet fighter interceptors. Also being developed are "a redesigned radar antenna, counter-counter measure capabilities and a parametric amplifier which reduces interference in the radar system." All of this, says Gen. Thomas D. White, USAF chief of staff, "will speed up improvement of the nation's overall military position."

Sounds as if the first piece of equipment which will have to be issued to the squirrel rifle citizen soldiers is a dictionary. Or maybe what has happened is that this fighting business has run off and left the old-timers of Chateau Thierry and Omaha Beach. If this keeps on there'll be no romance left in war. And that might be the best deterrent of all.

Proposed atom shelters would be no good in case of a direct hit—which may be why the proposal hasn't been much of a hit.

TEST OF THE COOK

Backyard cookery, these days, bears little relationship to what used to be called "roughing it." What the patio chef does is more closely allied to tea and crumpets in the parlor than it is to pioneering.

Nothing underscores this fact quite so drastically as a day or two of culinary endeavor when one is camping without so much as a fireplace grill. It soon becomes evident that a lot of firewood must be burned to provide a satisfactory bed of coals—and that even then there must be judicious replenishment from time to time. Keeping a frying pan level becomes a major engineering feat; stirring the soup without searing the hand becomes a challenge. And those blackened pots, even when they're soaped at the start! Yep, conditions on the patio are mighty civilized.

'These Days'

THE PRESIDENT'S DILEMMA

Those who expect the President to act like a conservative Republican are asking too much from a Democrat with Fabian Socialistic leanings. On the other hand, the Democrats who believe that President Kennedy will carry forward the ailing program of Harry Hopkins are also mistaken, for as idealistic as John Kennedy may seem to be, he comes of hard-headed practical stock.

Those who assumed that the President would be a figurehead under the captainship of his father, Joe Kennedy, misunderstand any father-son relationship. No matter how wise a father may be, a son naturally is a product of his own generation and will sooner or later go his own way. The Kennedy family is extraordinarily talented and close-knit and while it is interesting to note the loyalty of one member for another, it is not to be expected that they will all have the same viewpoint. Age, experience, temperament will affect them as everybody else in this very complex world.

John Kennedy is likely to be an altogether different man in 1964 from what he was in 1960. Four years in the White House at a climactic period will not only influence his attitude but he is still young enough to grow intellectually as well as emotionally. He is not likely to become so set in his ways that he cannot adjust to the facts which confront him.

Vienna is a case in point. He went to Vienna without a program on an exploratory visit with Khrushchev. He was undoubtedly advised that this was a smart thing to do by the negative-minded eggheads who may be specialists in particular fields but who lack imagination and farsightedness. Vienna was a failure for John Kennedy in that Khrushchev used it to belittle him, but it was a success from the standpoint that Kennedy has learned that he cannot deal with Khrushchev by any standards with which he is familiar.

Khrushchev is a liar, not diplomatically as Tallyrand might have been, but overt and direct. Khrushchev is brutal and no conversation between him and anyone can be confidential because he regards the refinements of international relations as bourgeois absurdities like a white tie or patent leather shoes. Kennedy had to learn this for himself, apparently. He could have known it from Nixon's experience, from Eisenhower's experience, from Hammarskjold's experience. But he wanted to see whether he could not succeed where others failed. Now he knows.

This was a costly search for knowledge, but it is worth the price if the President has learned who misled him concerning Cuba, Laos, and Vienna. Or if he was not misled, if he pursued his own course, he now knows from experience that he could not deal with Khrushchev; that communication with a Communist requires not only a different language but that the moral responsibilities of men are on a different basis in West and East.

To have learned that early in his career will prove to be a great advantage to Kennedy. It will make him more suspicious and more cautious and he will observe who in his entourage seeks to lead him into a position which will destroy him politically and bring shame upon his country. It is likely that those who are responsible for the Vienna fiasco will not last long in this Administration, although it is often difficult to fire men from important positions without losing face or developing a political scandal.

The President's dilemma now is how far can he move away from those who joined his campaign without political offense; how far will practical experience drive him from the ideological positions which he had accepted as correct during the years when he was a Senator. He will have to reach a decision soon or his Administration will suffer from indecision and if he decides on a firm policy, he will have to let those men go who cannot be trusted to carry forward a policy from strength. John Kennedy unfortunately does not have too long to reach a decision. As General MacArthur said to him: 'The chickens have come home to roost" and he is in charge of the chicken house. Abraham Lincoln and Herbert Hoover were on the same spot almost as soon as they were elected to the Presidency. They were elected at a climactic moment. So was John Kennedy.

Limit Use of Sneakers To Avoid Foot Trouble

By HAROLD T. HYMAN, M.D.
Written for Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Q—A school principal asks "Should sneakers be worn by children in place of shoes or should their use be limited to gym activities?"

A—Most of the foot disturbances of later life are the result of the combination of slovenly shoeing and misuses and abuses of the feet.

Each of these causes contributes to the other. Faulty gait causes faulty wear of shoes. Faulty shoes produce faulty gait. And the combination of the two faults eventually produces fallen arches, bunions, ingrown toenails, corns, plantar warts, hammer toes, foot strains and most disturbances of the lower back (so-called "lumbago").

Now a school principal would probably have to neglect all of his many other duties and obligations if he tried to correct faults in gait. And I doubt if parents or children will pay much attention to his recommendations about shoes. Good shoes are expensive and they take a terrible beating. And sneakers are the order of the day with most of th younger set, especially since they're easy to slip on and off. So with no great confidence that my advice will be heeded, I nevertheless would urge limiting the use of sneakers to gym activities if I had anything to say about the matter.

Q—"I've just been married and our first child was a mongoloid. I know the condition is very rare but I can't find out if there's a chance that our next child will be the same. My husband and I both love children and we just couldn't stand being disappointed again. Our baby only lived a few months."

A—According to best available sources of information, mongolism is probably in the category of embryopathic disorders. That means that the disturbance occurred to the baby during the months that it was carried in its mother's womb. Hence it is not apt to occur to the next baby as it would if it were due to some hereditary disease or disorder.

I would certainly encourage our correspondent to make at least one more trial of pregnancy.

However, it might be a wise precaution for both parents to have complete examinations, including blood tests, before conception is attempted.

Then, if all is well, as I am sure it will be, they will have every prospect of producing a fine, healthy baby.

"First Time I've Ever Been Torpedoed on Land"

Washington News

BY PETER EDSON
Washington Correspondent
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

WASHINGTON (NEA) — An important first suggestion that all federal government's fiscal, monetary, spending, taxation, credit and international financial programs be better co-ordinated with the larger private business sectors of the economy in the interests of greater stability has just been presented to President Kennedy. It is the result of three years of study by a private, nongovernmental Commission on Money and Credit—CMC.

NO PROGRAM AS SWEEPING AS THIS is going to be presented to Congress or enacted by the lawmakers this year or next. It might take as long as five years for any large proportion of the commission's 80 specific recommendations to win acceptance.

CMC does not attempt to set forth a blueprint for the whole economy nor does it propose excessive government regulation. Most of the changes it recommends could be effected by minor amendments to the Full Employment and Federal Reserve Acts and by subsequent executive orders.

THE THREE BASIC GOALS would be to maintain low-level unemployment, adequate economic growth and reasonable economic stability. No numbers are attached to these objectives.

The Commission on Money and Credit which worked out this plan has been made up of 25 business leaders, bankers, economists and representatives of farm, labor and other special interest organizations.

It was set up in 1957 by Committee for Economic Development—CED—a research group of progressive leaders organized during World War II. Its present chairman is Frazier B. Wilde, board chairman of Connecticut General Life who also served as CMC chairman.

With the help of $1.3 million in grants from Ford Foundation, CMC lined up 110 economists who compiled 11,000 pages of reports which researched every study ever made in the fields of monetary policy, fiscal policy, public debt, private financial institutions, federal credit programs, international monetary relations, and economic growth.

The commission's seven task forces on these subjects boiled all this down into a 300-page report, "Money and Credit—Their Influence on Jobs, Prices and Growth, published by Prentice Hall and now being given wide national distribution.

NO MEMBER OF THE COMMISSION ENDORSES ALL 80 of the report's recommendations. It is filled with footnotes of individual dissents on specific points. But all 25 CMC members, ranging from liberal left to conservative right, endorse its general objectives. This is something of an achievement itself.

One of the key recommendations—and one which will probably arouse most controversy—is that whenever U. S. business conditions run counter to objectives of the Full Employment and Federal Reserve Acts, the President would be required to make a special report to the country.

It would set forth existing economic conditions, steps being taken by government to handle it, explain any inconsistencies and make any further recommendations deemed advisable for congressional action.

Additionally, a flexible income tax rate for the first 20 per cent bracket would be authorized by law. The President would be authorized to adjust this rate five points up or down—25 per cent—whenever it is determined that the U. S. economy is moving into a period of recession or inflationary excess.

This change in the basic tax rate would be subject to congressional approval or rejection within 60 days. The rate change would be effective for six months, by which time the shift in the economy could be corrected.

Many of the CMC's 79 other recommendations on fiscal, and monetary matters, international payments, credit and debt management are incomprehensible to people not experts on them.

THE PRESIDENT'S ANNUAL ECONOMIC MESSAGE to Congress, special reports of the Council of Economic Advisers and hearing of the Joint Congressional Committee on Economics have considered these subjects piecemeal ever since the Full Employment Act of 1946 was passed. In 1952, 1955 and 1959 there were extended congressional hearings with special emphasis on Federal Reserve problems. The CMC report marks the first time the whole field has been covered so thoroughly.

Berlin Issue Held Artificial In Eyes of Both East, West

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, June 22—Artificiality over the Berlin issue prevails on both sides.

When Nikita Khrushchev dresses himself up in a soldier suit with the rank of lieutenant-general and makes a speech full of hints of war, Secretary of State Rusk calls it sabre-rattling," which it probably is.

Similarly, when the West carries out a military demonstration by its troops in Berlin that's called a routine "alert" the Soviets know this is done for effect, too.

Basically, neither side really believes that the other is going to war as a consequence of the Berlin issue. But the Soviet premier knows that, if he signs a peace treaty with East Germany, the initiative afterwards in a military action will have to come from the Western allies. The mere signing of a treaty between the Soviet Union and East Germany's so-called "Republic" isn't an act of war of a threat of war. But if the East German government, at the behest of Moscow, starts interfering some day with the routes of access to West Berlin, military force could be used by the Western allies to protect the transportation of any supplies of the movements of their forces to and from the city.

So a huge bluffing match is going on. Each side wants to impress the other that it means business. President Kennedy comes back from his talks with the Soviet premier in Vienna and uses the word "somber." The briefings here to the press are characterized by words that convey a feeling of gravity and deep concern. But Secretary Rusk then tells his news conference that, while Khruschev's latest speech is a "keen disappointment," he would hardly regard the Communist utterance as the most serious threat since World War II.

Somehow the idea that any shooting war will come of it all seems at this moment to be somewhat illusory. There isn't the mobilization for war on either side that would naturally precede the kind of crisis being envisaged in so many press dispatches and in television commentaries today.

The real debate is in the court of world opinion. The Soviet premier knows this and is trying to make his proposed program with respect to Berlin seem a part of an effort merely to bring about a "reunification" of Germany — something he really doesn't want. What he does want is to embarrass the West and divert attention from other areas of the world where the Communists are infiltrating.

The Western allies, on the other hand, feel firmly grounded in their contention that the Berlin issue involves a matter of good faith and the honoring of agreements made when World War II came to an end.

Evidently the Soviet premier is well aware of the double role played by the Communists in that war. His latest speech was made on the occasion of the twentieth anniversary of Hitler's attack on the Soviets—June 22, 1941—after the Communists had given him military assistance for the first twenty-two months of World War II. The Soviets—as Hitler's ally—thus helped to protect the Nazi armies from attacks which could otherwise have kept them very busy on a front in Eastern Europe. As is was, the Nazi dictator was given a free hand to overrun Holland and Belgium and to attack France and Great Britain in Western Europe. France could not have been conquered if there had been an eastern front to battle to Hitler's armies. In fact, World War II might never have occurred if the Communist government in Moscow had not double-crossed Britain and France and made an alliance with Hitler just a few weeks before he attacked Poland in September, 1939.

Premier Khrushchev, apparently aware of this weak spot in Communist history, tried in his speech to cover up and excuse the 1939 alliance of the Soviet Union with Hitler. The Soviet dictator now says:

"It was the perfidious policy of the ruling circles of Britain and France that compelled us to conclude a non-aggression pact with Germany in August 1939."

But the published documents giving the details of the conversations between the British and French diplomats and the Soviet envoys—including the notorious Molotov — give the lie to the Khrushchev claims. The tragic truth is that the Kremlin thought that, by staying out of the conflict, it could profit by the defeat of Britain and France and that Hitler would be taken care of later when Germany had been weakened by a lengthy war. Instead, Hitler, after conquering the western section of the European continent as he held Britain at bay, deliberately attacked the Soviets. The West was not enthusiastic about helping the Communists but had no other choice as the common objective then was to beat Hitler.

Even during those war days the devious and treacherous behavior of the Communist regime in Moscow was the cause of constant suspicion. These suspicions were later borne out by the way the Soviets refused again and again to honor their war-time agreements. They now are trying in the controversy over Berlin to welsh once more on their written pledges given to the very Allies who saved Russia from destruction.

Only in the court of public opinion can the guilt of the Communists be established. For they themselves are atheists who do not believe in morality or in honoring any pledges they may have given. To them the end justifies the means.

AS PEGLER SEES IT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

NEW YORK, June 22—When Harry Truman asked one of his seminarian strollers on a morning walk in New York, "Why don't you clean up your own back yard?" He may have referred to the repulsive aspects of homosexuality on Lexington, Third and Second Avenue in the evenings and in Washington Square and Greenwich Village at large.

It does no good for the pot and the kettle to bandy filth, but I have never seen in any American city a condition like that which affronted my hardened gaze on my return from a sojourn of six months beyond the Hudson. This is a terrible state of affairs and I now suspect that homosexual activity was what the paper and the agencies had in mind in their lightsome, almost frivolous, discussion of the bongo parties and singing and the objections of the rent-paying neighbors and the police to all that down at the foot of Fifth Avenue.

On the other hand, in my travels about the south I have seen a really startling and heartening improvement in the scene that meets the eye and a drastic change for the better in the outward condition of the Negroes as well as of the socially and financially lesser whites. I did not go into the mill towns, which are represented as a mere transferral to the southern tier of the squalid poverty and dejection of the swaybacked textile towns of New England of 40 and 50 years ago. However, I have old friends in some of those important new bolls on the stalk of the southern economy and society and they assure me, on my trust in them, that the south is not the laggard and rather sullen south of the days of the second Klu Klux.

In Jackson, Miss., in Shreveport and Baton Rouge, La., and in Charleston, S. C., the south is washed and pressed and the schools are incomparably better than those of the pathetic city of New York where luckless children of baffled young parents are forced by law into omi[illegible] association in appalling material conditions.

Recently there was a noisy disclosure of graft in the building and repair of schools and of dilapidation fraught with rats, sewage and many threatening cultures of disease in more than 400 such schools. These schools are evil to the naked eye and it must follow that the spiritual effect of crowding under such conditions is tragic to the children and the parents who naturally are young men and women just groping their way in a clumsy, incoherent metropolis.

I know very little of the truth of the career of William O'Dwyer as mayor, but he is certainly by far the most intelligent and intellectual mayor who has served the city since the first war. And he said, briefly, in an all-too-sketchy interview in The New Yorker a few years ago, that the city was simply ungovernable under the political apparatus provided by law. But every effort to protect these poor people from the failure of a political method and the impositions put on them by political superstitions of "democracy" is accompanied by the certainty of heartless grait and resultant degradation and suffering. Southern cities would be aghast at the average condition, material, social and moral, of the public schools in New York.

Jackson, Miss. has changed and so has much of the outlying state in an energetic burst of development that compares with the extension of highways in the northern systems. But I remember in observing all this that the countryside I had learned to know was almost sad in a sort of resignation to economic inferiority. Allen C. Thompson, the mayor of Jackson, a handsome young fellow with graying hair, has learned to apply the "public relations" magic of our airlines and of the Miami Beach of 25 years ago to the reputation of a spirited, generally excellent capital city. So against the abusive campaign of northern radio-teevy and magazine reporters and photographers, he has instilled in some journalists wandering that way a friendly desire to depict Jackson as she is and is trying to be.

Judd Arnett, of the Detroit Free Press, formerly managing editor of The Savannah News, went by just before I arrived in Jackson and wrote a fine, gentile article in his humane, literary idiom which made me aware of the change before I could observe it myself. The local journalism is intelligent and certainly does not toady to the New York spirit, a fault often found in reporters who want to attach themselves to New York papers and magazines.

And though I have walked the streets of many southern cities in recent years, I have nowhere seen the almost frightening defiance of decency I have recently seen in New York. This is something new and thus far it is local to New York and a reminder of Berlin in the days before Hitler, and of London much of the last 20 years. When men paint their lips and primp their hair and blink false eyelashes on the streets of a metropolis it behooves that metropolis, as Harry Truman said, to look to its own back yard, not to send rioters into decent communities.

NEW YORK (AP)—Individuals' savings are getting fatter. And merchants are getting restive.

Retail sales have risen slightly in recent days after barely holding even with last year through most of 1961.

Savings Rate Growing

But total savings have risen much faster—at a greater rate, in fact, than any time since the 1958 recession. People have the money. Many are holding onto it.

Something has to give, the merchants figure. And when the consumer starts buying again in his old free-wheeling way, the recovery now centered largely in manufacturing will be confirmed. Even more reassuring to the retailers, especially those handling durable goods, will be the time when consumers return to the good old American way and the volume of new instalment debt starts to swell.

But when?

Some count on summer weather to soften up the buying instincts. Others think that the real recovery will follow Labor Day, when vacation expenses are out of the way, and jobs may be more plentiful and seem safer.

If you doubt that savings have been increasing, because your own haven't or may have shrunk, here's the official figures of the Securities and Exchange Commission.

Say Trend Continues

It says they went up by $5 billion in the first three months of 1961, or $1.8 billion more than in the like period a year ago. Banks, savings & loan associations, insurance companies and mutual funds report the trend has continued.

Some retailers thought sales of big-ticket items were sticky because people were putting their money into the stock market. But the SEC says that except for investment in mutual funds and U.S. savings bonds the holdings of securities dropped by $1.1 billion.

Brokers also have noted that in recent weeks holders of small amounts of stock have been selling rather than buying, leaving much of the stock market support to the institutional investors.

A grand total of 358,557,075 lines of ROP Color advertising was run in newspapers in 1960. This represents a 25 per cent gain over 1959.

Hurley Stone House Day To Be Held Saturday, July 8

The Womens Guild of the Hurley Reformed Church will conduct its annual Stone House Day on Saturday, July 8, 1961. There will be 16 stone houses open to the public from 11 a. m. to 5 p. m., with continuous cafeteria service available in the church educational building.

Ladies of the village, attired in colonial costume, will act as hostesses and guides in each of the 16 homes. Tickets will be on sale at the church, or can be obtained at the Cornelius T. Kool house for those tourists coming from the direction of Ellenville and vicinity.

300th Anniversary

Hurley is proudly celebrating its 300th anniversary. It is situated three miles south of Kingston on Route 209 South. Use Exit 19 on the N. Y. State Thruway.

The Jan Van Deusen House, built in 1723, is Hurley's House of History and will again be open to the public. This house was the capitol of New York State after the burning of Kingston in 1777. It features a secret room in which the State records were kept. Miss Ruth C. Waterbury is the present owner.

The Col. Gerardus Hardenbergh House also will be open. It was the birthplace of Sojourner Truth, the famous negro evangelist, born in 1775. Mrs. Lyman T. Schoonmaker is the present owner.

The Spy House or Old Guard House, another very historical building was built in 1745 and will be open for inspection. Here Lt. Daniel Taylor was confined, later tried and convicted as a British spy and was hanged from an apple tree across the road. George Kent is the owner.

Other Houses to Be Shown

Other houses on Hurley's tree lined Main Street to be shown are: The Abram Elmendorf, built about 1780, still has the original floors of unusually wide boards and also the original hardware. This large stone house is owned by Mr. and Mrs. Christopher Morris.

The Crispel House, built in 1790, is the Hurley Church parsonage. It is now occuped by Rev. and Mrs. Harold Schadewald and family.

The Ten Eyck House, built in 1780, was a stop on the underground railway in pre-Civil War days, for slaves fleeing to freedom in Canada. Mr. and Mrs. William Gaffken own this historical house.

The Bevier House is also believed to be among the oldest houses in the village. It is now the home of the Hiller family.

The Polly Crispel cottage is the name by which this small stone house has been known, builder unknown. It was originally a blacksmith shop. It is now owned by Mr. and Mrs. Richard Winter.

The John P. Elmendorf House still has the hand hewn original beams, four fireplaces and an enclosed cistern in the cellar for cooling food. It is now the property of Mr. and Mrs. George Jacobson.

The "Nieuw Dorp" still contains the original fireplaces and old mantles. Its present owners are Mrs. Helen Anderson and Miss Nellie Davenport.

Outskirts of Town

On the outskirts of town, on the Hurley Mountain Road, visitors may see the Mathew Ten Eyck House, which has been in the possession of the DeWitt family for over 150 years. It is now occupied by Dr. and Mrs. David Gerbarg. The Newkirk House built in 1750, will be open. The present owners are Dr. and Mrs. John Hofler. The Captain Newkirk House was built prior to 1750. It is now the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Robert MacKinnon.

On Route 209 toward Ellenville three more houses will be open. The gracious Houghtaling House, which has been restored by its present owners, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest LeFevre. The Johannes DuBois House is a charming house of Dutch Colonial design and owned by Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Glendenning. The Cornelius T. Kool house built about 1690, combines Dutch with English architecture. This large stone house is presently owned by Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Waligurski. Mr. Waligurski is Town Historian for Hurley.

New Operation Nightwatch Will Keep Mishap Toll

New York is one of seven states participating in "Operation Nightwatch," a new traffic accident reporting facility announced today by the Street and Highway Safety Lighting Bureau.

"Operation Nightwatch" will collect night traffic death figures from New York throughout the Fourth of July weekend. The figures will cover the period from sunset to sunrise, Friday, Saturday, Sunday, Monday and Tuesday. They will be phoned to Cleveland at 7 a. m. Saturday, Sunday, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday and will immediately be available to news media.

Purpose of "Operation Nightwatch" is to point up the importance of visibility to safety in traffic. People don't, as a rule, seem to realize how much more dangerous it is to drive at night. In "Operation Nightwatch" we are providing an opportunity for them to 'look at the record.'

Traffic statisticians know that more deaths and more serious injuries result from night accidents, despite the fact that only a third as many vehicles are operating. The reason is that drivers just don't see the sharp curve, stalled car, or other hazard until too late. They rely on their headlights and, at modern speeds of 55 and 60, the stopping distance is inadequate. Fixed source lighting at 100 hazardous locations has reduced night deaths 64 per cent.

It is felt that "Operation Nightwatch" over the Fourth of July weekend will help create an awareness of the importance of adequate light to safe visibility at night.

JFK Warnings Are Ignored

Rusk Says West Must Be Ready in Europe

Editor's Note—How is the West reacting to Khrushchev's latest threats on Berlin? Endre Marton, veteran AP State Department reporter, discusses the situation in the following article which contains background and interpretive material.

By ENDRE MARTON

WASHINGTON (AP) — The West is planning to step up its defenses in Europe as evidence of its determination to stand firm on Berlin.

High-ranking officials, in reporting this today, referred to the seriously worded statement Secretary of State Dean Rusk made at his news conference Thursday. He blamed the Soviets for the tension in the world and restated the Western position on Berlin.

No Soviet action, Rusk said, can extinguish the right of the Western powers in Berlin. Western forces are to remain in the divided German city, he added, and no peaceful solution can be reached at the expense of Western obligations in Berlin.

"The United States and those associated with us are clear and firm about our obligations to ourselves and to the people of West Berlin," Rusk said.

To Bolster Readiness

The Western powers, informants said, are planning to quicken the beefing up of Atlantic alliance forces in Europe and to increase their state of readiness. This will be done quietly and without fanfare but in a way that should serve as notice to the Soviets.

The thinking behind this strategy is, officials explained, that Soviet Premier Khrushchev does not seem to have been sufficiently impressed by the warnings President Kennedy repeatedly has made. In the past, it is recalled, the Soviet Union often paid attention to a show of force where words were of no avail.

Consultations Continue

Meanwhile, the United States continues consultations with its allies on the U.S. reply to Khrushchev's June 4 aide memoire on Berlin. The consultations started in Washington last week when Foy D. Kohler, assistant secretary of state for Europe, conferred with Sir Evelyn Shuckburg of the British Foreign Office and with Jean Lalois, French specialist on German affairs.

The State Department now is waiting for advice from Paris and London through normal diplomatic channels and the U.S. reply to the Soviet note is expected to be ready in about a week or 10 days.

Before that, however, Llewellyn Thompson, U.S. ambassador to Moscow, will have returned to his post. He is due back on the job next Monday after Washington consultations.

It is expected that Thompson will have the opportunity to see Khrushchev and make the U.S. position clear before the American reply reaches Moscow.

Militant Tone Noted

In his statement on Berlin on Thursday, Rusk said that the "militant tone" Khrushchev used in a speech Wednesday was disappointing. State Department specialists on Soviet affairs are now trying to find reasons for the sudden toughening in Khrushchev's language.

This change also puzzles Washington diplomats, including some from behind the Iron Curtain. Both American and foreign observers concede that their answers are based mainly on speculation.

Reasons for Bluntness

Here are the reasons, as listed by the best available sources, for Khrushchev's blunt aggressive language:

1. The Soviet leader has to produce something tangible to satisfy the Soviet Communist party congress when it convenes next October. There are still influential party members who side with the Red Chinese and consider the Khrushchev line in international politics too soft.

2. There is sufficient basis to believe that Khrushchev got only a limited time at the last conference of Communist parties in Moscow last November to prove that his coexistence policy can achieve the sacred goal, the spread of the Communist doctrine, without wars.

3. According to another school of thought, voiced by some diplomats in Washington, Khrushchev is still probing to find out how far he can go in brinkmanship. He is making a last effort to see whether he can find a weak spot in Kennedy's armor.

Hinkle is Named To Alfred Post

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — The State University Board of Trustees today approved the appointment of Walter C. Hinkle as president of the State Agricultural and Technical Institute at Alfred.

Hinkle, acting president since last November, will assume the $15,280-a-year post July 1. He succeeds Paul B. Orvis, who last year was named State University executive dean for institutes and community colleges.

Hinkle has been affiliated with the institute at Alfred since 1937. The institute's council nominated him for president.

Meanwhile, Gov. Rockefeller announced these reappointments: Herbert Griffin of Oxford, to the board of visitors of the Women's Relief Corps Home at Oxford, for a term ending February 1968.

The governor appointed Dr. Everett Centerwall of Greene to the same visitors board, for a term ending February 1964. He succeeds Raymond A. McLaughlin of Johnson City, who resigned. The appointments are subject to Senate confirmation.

The posts are unsalaried.

Guardsman Loses Life in Crash

THERESA, N.Y. (AP) — An Army National guardman was killed early today when an automobile in which he was riding struck a concrete bridge abutment on Route 37 in this Jefferson County village.

State Police identified him as Douglas McNamara, 22, of Ogdensburg. He was a member of Company A, 279th Engineers (Amphibian Equipment), which is undergoing summer training at Camp Drum.

U. S. Moon Try Due Next Year, Unmanned Shot

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States will try to hit the moon early next year with an unmanned spaceship called "Ranger."

Space agency officials who told of the plans Thursday said the Ranger—10 feet tall and 750 pounds — will carry television equipment to transmit pictures of the moon's surface back to earth.

Financial and Commercial

NEW YORK (AP) — A quiet stock market nudged moderately to the upside early this afternoon.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon rose .50 to 244.90 with industrials up .80, rails up .30 and utilities up .20.

Gains and losses of most key stocks were fractional. Many issues were unchanged.

The average was moved upward by a mostly higher tone in utilities, aircrafts, retails, electrical equipments and rails. Nonferrous metals, tobaccos, drugs, oils and chemicals were irregular.

A gain of well over a point by American Telephone brought this big stock further along the comeback trail and was a help in supporting the averages. Other market wheelhorses, General Motors and Jersey Standard were firm. Du Pont rose close to a point.

Transitron edged ahead another fraction. Zenoth continued outstanding among electronics as it spurted more than 2.

The Dow Jones industrial average at noon was up 3.32 at 688.94.

Doubt Laos Progress

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP)—The East-West conference on Laos appeared destined today to dawdle along doing little until King Savang Vathana picks a new government for the strife-torn nation.

The prevailing view is that Prince Souvanna Phouma, self-styled neutralist backed by the Communists, is sure to be named premier. But unless the normal pace of developments in Laos is accelerated, that won't happen for weeks.

The job of forming a new cabinet was thrown to the Laotian king Thursday by the three princes who head the warring factions in the little Southeast Asian country.

Plan Would Dump Gerosa

Wagner Will Run if Demos Name His Kind of Ticket

NEW YORK (AP)—Mayor Robert F. Wagner says he will seek a third term if he can have the running mates he wants.

The mayor's proposal to revamp the City Hall "big three" ticket ran into angry opposition by some powerful Democratic leaders.

Wagner proposed Thursday that City Council President Abe Stark of Brooklyn, who was elected with him twice, be the candidate for comptroller.

He also proposed that Deputy Mayor Paul R. Screvane of Queens be nominated for City Council president.

The mayor's plan would dump Comptroller Lawrence E. Gerosa of The Bronx, a two-time Wagner running-mate who has been at odds with him for more than three years.

The proposal would take Stark out of the line of succession for mayor.

There was a question whether Stark would agree to run for comptroller instead of council president.

Glovers Change Name But President Stays

About 60 members attended the two-day session.

Re-elected vice presidents were Carl Ross of Sheboygan, Wis., and Roscoe Stanyon Jr., Gloversville.

Bookkeeper Tells

sponsoring organizations and promoters were paid and records falsified, contrary to the state's bingo laws.

Mrs. Palaimo, a short blonde who, when asked her age, replied "old enough to know better," said she had worked for Michael Wynn. Wynn has been subpoenaed but the commission has been unable to locate him.

The former bookkeeper testified Wynn leased two halls from Milo Merrill, identified in earlier testimony as another bingo promoter.

She said Wynn told her to take all of each night's profits above $60, plus $65 for rent, and send the money to Wynn's wife, who was living in Florida.

She added:

"I felt like a thief. They (the organizations) didn't know anything about it."

While she was counting one night's bingo receipts, Mrs. Palaimo testified, her employer walked in "and just scooped it up ($200 to $250) and ran out." She said she told no one.

"He had promised them (the organizations) that by the end of the year they would have $2,500," she testified.

Says Books Falsified

Mrs. Palaimo, who also has testified before the State Investigation Commission, said she falsified books inspected earlier by the lottery commission.

In Utica, the public safety commissioner and the Oneida County district attorney said they were awaiting the lottery commission's transcripts and would act on the bingo operations, if warranted.

The lottery commission said it called the hearing to trace discrepancies between reports it had received from bingo operators and testimony given the State Investigation Commission.

The lottery commission said it next would look into bingo operations in New York City.

Weather Toll 37 Now

ISTANBUL (AP)—Floods and lightning killed seven more Turks in the last 24 hours, bringing the week's weather toll to 37 dead.

Board Adopts

in which savings will result from bulk purchasing in which two or more schools participate.

Busy as Principal

Howard Fox, chairman of the transportation committee of the board, read a letter of resignation from Russell, who has served for the past two years as supervisor of transportation. Russell explained that his position as principal of the Chambers School required his full attention.

The transportation program costs the district more than $300,000 annually.

The board authorized the transportation committee to interview candidates for the position and granted the committee power to act in making the appointment.

$320,000 for Transportation

A total of $320,000 has been allocated in the school budget for the next fiscal year for transportation.

The board felt that sidewalks in the vicinity of the Mary's Avenue elementary school site are a "must," that traffic is heavy in that area and moving "at a fast clip."

Property owners who hold as much as 51 per cent of the frontage on Mary's Avenue between West O'Reilly and Andrew Streets must sign the petition.

Seventy-five per cent of the cost of construction of the walks would be paid by the board, 25 per cent by the city.

The board took cognizance of testing reports submitted by Mrs. Marion Gregory, elementary supervisor, showing unusual progress in educational excellence during the past six years.

In June, 1955, elementary school children were half a grade below the national norm. Today they are from half a grade to eight-tenths of a grade higher than the norm.

Advanced Classes Way Up

In advanced classes the students are from a year and a half to two years ahead of the national norm.

Guerriero, reading supervisor in the Spring Valley School during the current school year, will be the "counterpart" of Mrs. Gregory. They will handle elementary school supervision.

Mrs. Vincent G. Connelly, chairman of the teachers committee, reported that eight applicants were screened for the position.

Guerriero will succeed Miss Margaret Lyle who submitted her resignation to return to classroom teaching. His salary will be $9,000 a year.

John W. Johnson, director of the school lunch program, reported that for a number of months the matter of combined bidding for food purchases has been under investigation.

For the first time in the Ulster County area such a bidding system has been developed.

Districts to Buy Together

The Kingston School District (Consolidated) and the Saugerties Central School District have agreed to combine their grocery bid for a five-month period during the year 1961-62, a system which, it is expected, will result in a financial saving to both districts.

Johnson explained that purchasing in large quantities, under combined bids, influences food companies to reduce their bid prices.

It was reported that the Ulster County School Boards Association is currently investigating combined bidding.

At a recent meeting of the association, Johnson discussed the combined bidding program, pointing out that Kingston and Saugerties will seek such bids on groceries. There will also be a combined bid for bread, with Kingston, Saugerties, Onteora and Catskill participating.

Bids Too High

that one "blind item" in the construction is the cost for rock removal, the bids swinging between a wide range on this point.

Says Fall Better Time

He said that spring and summer are not the best time to ask for bids, that fall is a better time. He called attention also to present labor unrest in the area, which is reflected in higher bids.

Robert Herzog, board president, said the time element in the Mary's Avenue school is not as important as the new junior high school, and that he did not believe the additional delay would be as great as a year. It might delay the school for six months, he felt.

ROGER E. SPEAR

Q) "I have been investing in common stocks via the Monthly Investment Plan but am beginning to feel that I don't know enough about the market to continue this way. Would I do better in a mutual fund? What is your opinion of my present holdings which include Texaco, Heinz, Kimberly-Clark, and CIT Financial?" B.S.

A) The Monthly Investment Plan, offered by the New York Stock Exchange, is one of the best ways I know of for the ordinary investor to acquire a good list of stocks. By paying a fixed sum each month, you are in effect "dollar averaging," and you protect yourself against putting all your funds in the market during a period of peak prices.

However, the benefits of the plan are not fully realized unless you stick to it—regardless of market conditions—over a fairly long period.

For a man who doesn't know much about the market, you have done all right for yourself. You've begun with conservative, high quality stocks, for all of which I have a high regard.

You now have the nucleus of a pretty good little mutual fund of your own. Don't become impatient. You have made a very good start.

Q) "I hold 100 shares each of Eastern Stainless Steel and Midland-Ross. Would you hold or sell these stocks?" G.S.

A) In view of the recovery in our economy, I advise you to hold Eastern Stainless Steel (NYSE) for the present. This stock is subject to wide fluctuation, and on further recovery you would probably be better off with a more stable situation such as Pfizer (NYSE).

Midland-Ross (NYSE) is a diversified firm which has shown little progress in recent years. I suggest that you switch this stock into ACF-Wrigley Stores (NYSE), a popular food chain which I feel has much better growth prospects.

Vote Plan

potential but "under-achieving" students. The objective, he explained is a closer home-school relationship.

Some of the under-achieving students come from average homes, he said. Others come from homes which are deprived culturally, economically, etc. In some average homes, he said, there may be under-achieving students due to domestic problems, broken families, etc.

Many of the students in underachieving situations are extremely bright, even of college potential, he told the board. Many of them, however, accept defeat before they begin. Their cultural values are low. They need more individual counseling, more exposure to cultural opportunities, to inspirational situations. They need a program to "change their self-concepts" as non-achievers, much time and hard work are needed to change these self-concepts into constructive attitudes.

Goes to See Parents

Nolfo said he has visited many of these home, with an average visit of about two hours in each case, ranging from 30 minutes in some homes to three-and-a-half hours in others, depending on circumstances, interest, etc. Some parents won't come to school, he said, explaining that the only thing to do in such case is to go to the parents, which he is doing.

The program for underachieving students has many facets, one of which is exposure. For example, Nolfo said, a cultural field trip was taken to the Dutchess County Community College. The students appeared to be impressed. Many of them had no idea what "college" meant.

He told the board that the marks of the students in the pilot program during the current year showed marked improvement.

Mrs. Gregory pointed out that children in many homes have nothing but television, enjoy no "world of books," or magazines, etc.

Program Voluntary

Many are slow learners, disturbed children, which means that much of a teacher's time must be drained off. She said a "massive attack" is needed. Many of these children have never, for instance, been on an elevator, or have no idea what a revolving door is, etc. If they can be screened off the school can get at remedial work for them, and might be able to save a good many people for a productive future in society.

It was explained that the program is voluntary, that the child is not forced into the class. Parents are approached, the program explained, permission asked.

Kline introduced a motion that the program be adopted. It was seconded by Mrs. Connelly.

ELISABETHVILLE, the Congo (AP)—Suspicion arose today that the pledges of cooperation Katanga President Moise Tshombe gave to get out of prison were made under duress.

cent of crimes against the Cuban people.

Raps Ultimatum

Castro was further quoted as saying he had accepted the intervention of the Tractors for Freedom Committee because he considered the committee to be "decent and serious" since Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt was a member.

However, Castro said the committee's ultimatum showed its intention to break off negotiations and lay the blame exclusively on the Cuban government, the radio reported.

The committee already had ordered aides, barring a Castro acceptance, to return unopened to senders more than 60,000 pieces of mail that had piled up in P.O. Box Freedom in Detroit. Most of the mail was believed to contain public donations which the committee had asked.

The deadline was established after Castro told a four-member team of agricultural experts the committee sent to Cuba last week that he had in mind 500 heavy-duty tractors worth $28 million when he broached a willingness to swap anti-Castroists caught in an abortive April invasion aimed at his overthrow.

The committee had offered 500 light, farm-type tractors that would cost an estimated $2.5 to $3 million with plow attachments.

It said in its ultimatum it had no intention of swapping heavy-duty tractors that could be converted to military uses.

unions representing the striking seamen.

With losses already counted in millions of dollars, more than 70,000 men idled and ships stalled at their docks, Goldberg said this is a toll "the nation cannot afford at a time when every effort is being made to stimulate the economy."

The strike has immobilized an estimated 150 American ships on the Atlantic, Pacific and Gulf coasts. More than 800 others at sea face a tie-up when they make port.

Goldberg outlined his peace formula as Director William E. Simkin of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service reported an impasse in the New York settlement negotiations.

Among issues besides wage demands and other proposals that would go to the three-man panel to be appointed by Kennedy is the delicate matter of union insistence that ship owners grant collective bargaining rights on American-owned vessels flying foreign flags.

DANCING CHEEK TO CHEEK

Q: A year ago my wife and I took dancing lessons and afterwards we formed a dance club. Recently we took in new members. Quite a few of them dance cheek to cheek which we think is in very bad taste. Do you agree? If so, will you please tell us how we can tell the new members this without offending them?

A: I do agree with you, but unless they have joined your club in order to take instructions on dancing from you, you can't tell these members that you do not approve of their dancing without making yourself very unpopular.

Correct Table Manners

Q: Will you please tell me which method of eating is correct: (a) Lifting food to the mouth with fork held in left hand, or (b) switching the fork to the right hand after cutting a piece of meat? I had always considered both ways correct—the first European and the second American. I have a friend, a European, who feels that any other way but his is bad table manners. If that is true, then there are an awful lot of people with bad table manners. Your commenis will be appreciated.

A: While the practice of shifting the fork from one hand to the other after every bite is unnecessary and awkward and not expert table manners, it is certainly not bad manners especially in this country where many have been taught to eat that way.

When Difference in Age Is Slight

Q: I know it is correct for a younger person to show respect for a much older one, but isn't it tactless and rude in the case of two grown women, when the younger one is merely five years younger than the other, for her to insist upon opening doors and standing aside for the older one to enter first? I personally resent this very much.

A: Catering attention to such a slight difference in age is unwarranted—and even unkind.

The Cape Playhouse

Many local residents find themselves in the Cape Cod, Mass,. area during the summer. While there they have visited The Cape Cod Playhouse, our assistant city editor, Irwin Thomas, among them. It was interesting to note this week that the Cape Playhouse has scheduled a most interesting schedule of plays. Taking the leads will be some of the finest actors in the business.

The 35th Anniversary Season of the Cape Playhouse, oldest summer theatre in Mass., will be celebrated with a gala opening Monday, July 3, it was announced today by Charles Mooney, managing director of the famed theatre.

The Playhouse, which originated the visiting star system and which is known for its productions of hit Broadway plays, will officially launch its anniversary season with Faye Emerson and Reginald Gardiner in "The Pleasure of His Company," the Broadway hit by Samuel Taylor and Cornelia Otis Skinner.

Meanwhile, opening of this year's season is creating unusual, widespread interest in theatrical circles, Mooney said. "Stars of past seasons, as well as producers and directors from New York, are making arrangements to be part of the festive first night audience.

A number of subscribers, many of whom have attended the Playhouse since its inauguration in 1927, will also be present.

In reviewing the current season, Mooney said, "We have tried to schedule hit plays presented on Broadway this year and in the leading roles we have such stars as Myrna Loy, Herbert Marshall, Faye Emerson, Reginald Gardiner, Jane Wyatt, Susan Oliver, Lee Bowman, Julia Meade, Orsen Bean, Tom Helmore, and others.

He noted, for instance, that during the week of July 10 "Under the Yum-Yum Tree" will be presented with Susan Oliver, a new television and Broadway star, Scott McKay and William Redfield in the leading roles. Another recent hit, "The Marriage-Go-Round," which ran 16 months in New York with Claudette Colbert and Charles Boyer, wil be presented during the week of July 17 starring Myrna Loy in her first Cape Playhouse appearance, and Claude Dauphin.

The anniversary season, Mooney noted, will be highlighted the week of July 24. At that time Martha Scott, a former member of the Playhouse's resident company, has agreed to return in a new play, "Future Perfect," a comedy by Whitfield Connor. The play will also star Lee Bowman.

Orson Bean and Julia Meade will star in "Send Me No Flowers," another play from this year's Broadway season. The second week in August, beginning August 7, will star Jane Wyatt, Tom Helmore and Billy Gray in "O, Mistress Mine." It will be the first Cape Playhouse appearance for Miss Wyatt, who appears in the current long-run, award-winning television series, "Father Knows Best."

Production for the week of August 14 will be announced.

Herbert Marshall, considered one of today's greatest actors, will appear in "A Majority of One," which recently completed a triumphant New York run of 13 months, followed by a successful 42-week national tour.

In addition, the American Theatre Wing—Cape Playhouse Training Center with a membership of 14 young professional actors, will present a series of six children's plays beginning at 10:30 a. m. Fridays starting July 16. Dr. Frank C. Davidson of New York will be director of the Center. The week of August 28 this year's group will be seen in their production of "Charm" by John Kirkpatrick.

CLASS WON'T DISMISS TEACHER—Little David Howard and his Memphis, Tenn., classmates did not want to let their former teacher Bobby Jean Coke go. The trouble was that she was no longer their "Miss Coke"—she was married that morning to Dean O'Farrell. Pictured above, David sits on the hood of the car and refuses to move, while others from his class form a blockade, trying to keep her just a little longer.

50 Club Plans Field Day July 2

Yougsters throughout the city are invited to participate in one of the city's big July events—the annual Field Day at Block Park July 2 sponsored by the 50 Club of Kingston, Frank C. Sass, the club's secretary announced today.

This year's will be the 11th of the popular events given by the club, which in past years limited participation to downtown area residents.

Boys and girls "of all age groups," it was noted, are invited to participate. The program opens at 1:30 p. m.

Prizes, as in the past, range from bicycles, dolls and baseball gloves to trophies and money, and those in charge promise the usual profusion of hot dogs, soda and ice cream, which require no tickets or cost of any kind.

Along with this idea of "everything free," the club is to provide rock and roll music "for dancing and for those who just care to listen." Track and other competitive athletic events will be of the usual field day variety.

The 50 Club, one of the better known groups of its kind in the area, was organized some years ago for just such purposes as the annual field day and for similar events of civic value.

Thomas F. Coughlin is general chairman of the affair for the 11th straight year.

In 'Lost World' Search

Adventurer Will Return to Jungle

CORONA DEL MAR, Calif. (AP)—Adventurer Dara Lamb is headed back to the jungle—this time in search of the lost world that inspired Sir Arthur Conan Doyle's famous tale of 20th century dinosaurs.

An English explorer found a towering plateau in central South America in 1909, and his description led Doyle to write his 1912 story of adventure, "The Lost World."

Confident of Success

Doyle's version peopled it with prehistoric monsters surviving into the present. Lamb isn't sure what he'll find, but he's convinced he can locate the plateau and somehow reach the top of it.

Lamb, 55, left this week by plane for Lima, Peru, to talk to Brian Fawcett, operator of a South American airline and son of Col. P. H. Fawcett.

It was Col. Fawcett who spotted the plateau from below, and wrote of it in notes later read by Doyle: "Time and the foot of man have not touched these summits. They stood like a lost world. The imagination could picture the last vestiges of an age long vanished.

From Lima, Lamb will proceed to Sao Paulo, Brazil, before pushing into the Matto Grosso jungleland of southwest Brazil. He believes the lost plateau lies near the Bolivian border at the headwaters of the Rio Verde, a tributary to the distant Amazon.

Wife to Join Him

Lamb's wife, Virginia, 47, will join him, probably in Sao Paulo, for the expedition.

Together the two paddled and sailed the length of Mexico in a canoe in 1958, and hiked the length of Mexico again in 1941 to search for an elusive "lost city of the Mayas." They wrote oft-reprinted travel-adventure stories about both trips, and have lectured in all parts of the United States.

Teachers Disagree With Church About Games

SCHENECTADY, N.Y. (AP) — A teachers' association says pitching pennies and throwing darts at balloons for prizes were games of skill, rather than illegal games of chance, as charged by a suburban church.

The Mohonasen Teachers Association, sponsor of a recent high-school festival at which money was raised for scholarships, replied to criticism by the Carman Presbyterian Church.

Prizes at the festival ranged from a penny to a dime.

Gateway Group Nears Goal: Drive Ends on Thursday

Gateway Industry's campaign to raise $10,000 to continue the work of training the physically handicapped is reported nearing its goal. The drive ends officially on Thursday.

Campaign workers will meet Thursday 7:30 p. m. at 519 Broadway to return all cards.

Many service organizations in the city have been participating in the campaign. Those who have folders are urged by the committee to mail in the completed cards.

The funds collected will be used to train the physically handicapped in order that they may be employed by local industry.

Requests for training have increased and expanded facilities are needed to provide this service, a committee spokesman said.

Schenectady Democrats Are Backing Stratton

SCHENECTADY, N.Y. (AP) — Rep. Samuel S. Stratton, mentioned as a possible Democratic candidate for New York governor in 1962, has the backing of Democrats in his native Schenectady County for "statewide office."

The county Democratic Committee adopted a resolution Thursday night pledging its support should efforts be made to encourage Stratton "to make a broader contribution to the interests of the people of New York State."

The resolution did not specify an office.

Engineers Hold Dinner, Discuss '62 Convention

The Ulster County Chapter of the New York State Professional engineers held their annual dinner at Twaalfskill Club Wednesday. Due to the weather the anticipated afternoon at golf had to be canceled.

On display was the banner which the Ulster County Chapter had been awarded by the State Society for its activities during the past year. Highlights were the Education Committee's work with area high schools, Engineer Week and programs of the Ulster County monthly meetings.

Arrangements for the dinner were made by Augustus Brinnier of Brinnier & Larios and Al Wenner of IBM.

In preparation for the convention of the New York State Professional Engineers to be held in Kingston during September of 1962, Mrs. Walter S. VanDerBent proposed the formation of an auxiliary to the Ulster County Chapter, explaining to the wives the importance of their acting as guides and hostesses for the wives of the visiting engineers who will attend the convention.

Irwin Gellen of IBM, vice-president of the chapter, and Walter S. VanDerBent of VanDerBent Associates, general design and consulting engineers, and a director of the chapter, reported briefly on the action taken at the state convention which they attended on June 1, 2 and 3, at the Shawangunk Lodge in Highview.

Must Race Against Communist Clock

Adlai Notes Growing Sense of L-A Urgency

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) — When Adlai Stevenson returned in 1960 from a tour of Latin America—where Communists are active and discontent and poverty are as broad as the continent—he was pretty somber.

Now he has returned from a second tour, feeling conditions are worse. He made the first trip as a private citizen, the second as President Kennedy's personal representative. In between the two trips there were two major events.

Cuba One Instance

1. The Kennedy administration—of which Stevenson is a part as ambassador to the United Nations—approved the disastrous invasion against Cuba. This added more poison to anti-United States feeling in Latin American.

2. President Kennedy asked Congress for, and got, a $500 million Latin American aid program. The money is to go to countries with social programs of their own, like land for the landless, homes for the homeless, education for millions.

Upon his return in 1960 he said: "Latin America is in revolution. . . . The whole continent is on the verge of a great economic development and they are going to build a new society under our methods of free enterprise, if possible, and if not, under socialism."

Thursday, Stevenson, stopping off at Puerto Rico on his way home, said: "Economic want and social unrest have, if anything, increased. . . . There is a growing sense of urgency in Latin America."

Fast Solutions Unlikely

Stevenson reports today to Kennedy. But it is unlikely the President will, as a result, propose any spectacular solutions or at least any fast ones.

It is right here that communism has a starting-out advantage over a country like the United States in trying to win over millions of poverty-stricken, landless, impoverished and illiterate people.

Communism can promise a change overnight. The Western societies can promise change too, but so far have found no way to promise or effect sudden transformations.

The best they have been able to offer is steady improvement. This is what Kennedy offered in his March 14 message to Congress, outlining a long-range Latin-American program.

Stevenson illustrated the problem to a Democratic rally in this country during the presidential campaign last year when he said: "We must face the fact that the world is in revolution. For a thousand million people the big issue is not protecting the American way of life from communism.

Must Bridge Rich-Poor

"What does political freedom mean to an illiterate peasant squatting in a hut with five hungry children? For them and their leaders the big issues are peace, pride and rapid economic development."

For the United States the great contest in Latin America is against the Communist clock: can it help bring about change fast enough to make the quick promises of communism less attractive?

And the great problem is bridging the enormous gap between the very rich and the very poor. Both Kennedy nd Stevenson have commented on this.

Not long after he returned from Latin America in 1960 Stevenson said: "This is the great struggle of our century, and if the free way of life doesn't help the many poor of this world it will never save the few rich."

Kennedy used almost those identical words later in his inaugural address when he said: "If the free society cannot help the many who are poor, it cannot save the few who are rich."

4 Jump Before Boxcar Crashes

PORT MANSFIELD, Tex. (AP) —Four airmen parachuted safely Thursday just before their C119 Flying Boxcar crashed and burned six miles north of this South Texas port.

All were admitted to the Harlingen Base Hospital for observation. None was injured seriously.

The base said the plane left there at 1:50 p.m. for Kelly AFB in San Antonio.

The men were picked up 18 miles east of Lyford. The pilot said he ordered the ship abandoned and that he aimed it toward the sea. The cause of the crash was not disclosed.

BABSON on BUSINESS

By Roger W. Babson

BABSON PARK, Mass., June 23—As I study events in Wall Street, I find that the first era of speculation was in gold. This was accompanied by some speculation in government bonds. Prices were based on mail reports from London. There were then no cables.

Glamourous Railroad Era

Following the Civil War, from 1875 to 1900, most of the speculation was in railroad stocks. New mileage was constantly being built, due to the large immigration and cheap labor, accompanied by good crops, which helped railroad earnings. The Northern Pacific stock sold at $1,000 a share. There was much talk about railroad consolidations, and the stock market was especially bullish over a proposed merger of the Northern Pacific, Great Northern, and Burlington Railroads.

Then, suddenly, the Supreme Court issued a decision preventing this consolidation. This caused a quick drop in all stocks in 1907. A member of the N. Y. Stock Exchange invited me to come on the floor of the Exchange and help him. I actually saw men's hair turn gray within 48 hours.

Era of Great Industrial Trusts

Following the boom in railroad stocks there developed an interest in consolidations and big trusts. This began late in the 1890's. Then were formed the Tobacco Trust, the Standard Oil Trust, and other great trusts. During these years, the New York Stock Exchange took a great interest in industrials. It was then that Moody's Manuals and Babson's Reports were started, and investment services began to be popular.

Although the above-mentioned Supreme Court Decision directly referred only to railroads, it indirectly brought an end to this Consolidation and Trust Era. Hence, the panic following affected both railroad and industrial stocks. There were no big electric utilities in those days.

The Electrical Era

The fourth era of glamour stocks centered around companies producing and distributing electricity. From 1907 to 1912 great speculation took place in these electric stocks, culminating in the 1929-1935 collapse of Electric Bond & Share.

The end came for this Electrical Era with the formation of the Securities & Exchange Commission. Its great powers enabled it to eliminate, rearrange, or break up any company manufacturing and distributing electricity across state lines. Although the use of electricity has continued to increase since Thomas Edison made the first dynamo, yet the utilities are no longer considered glamour stocks.

The Present Space Age Era

I mention the above events thinking that the recent duPont-General Motors Supreme Court Decision may put a damper on speculation in companies producing missiles, space capsules, and various electronic devices. The previous Court Decisions which I mentioned have been unexpected. Each has "pulled the trigger" for a change in the stock market trend. Whether this means that the present bull market is now culminating no one knows, but we should always watch for the unexpected. Gold, railroads, trusts, and electricity were glamourous in their day as space and electronics are today.

Labor Union Era

The recent duPont-General Motors Decision may bring about a reverse effect. It may unexpectedly make Wall Street optimistic. The decision was basically against monopoly, as were the decisions of several years ago. Yet, the greatest monopoly today is that of Labor Unions. What if the Supreme Court should suddenly dissolve the Teamsters Union, as now operated by Hoffa, whom President Kennedy's brother, the Attorney Generay, knows from A to Z?

Such a decision could rule that previous Congressional legislation exempting Labor from the Anti-Trust Law is unconstitutional. Such a decision, instead of creating a bear market, could cause the Dow-Jones Averages to go sky high. Surely this is a possibility, and a reason why readers are justified in keeping certain of their common stocks and swapping certain of the present glamour stocks for the old-fashioned blue chips. I forecast that some day some such a decision will be rendered, followed by Congressional legislation. If Democracy is to survive and dictatorship be prevented, such a Court Decision will come some day. Then, don't be short of good industrials.

Gifts Arrive Late, Yule Party Is Held

SCOTIA, N.Y. (AP) — A fifth-grade class at the Sacandaga School in this village near Schenectady celebrated Christmas on the eve of summer vacations.

All 26 pupils received gift-wrapped pencils from their teacher, Miss Cecilia Dowling, who wished them a Merry Christmas while a music box chimed "Jingle Bells."

She said the party had been delayed because the gifts she ordered last December had just arrived.

Gotham Man Is Held for Taking Art Treasures

NEW YORK (AP) — A 29-year-old Manhattan man has been held in $25,000 bail on a charge of transporting $200,000 in stolen art treasures from New York to Big Spring, Tex.

The accused man, Jimmie C. White, described as an actor and model, was arrested by the FBI here Thursday and held for a hearing Monday. Appearing before U.S. Commissioner Earle N. Bishopp, White said he had not intended to sell the art works.

Among the treasures recovered in Big Spring by the FBI was a Degas painting, "Mme. Rouart and Her Two Daughters," valued at $150,000.

Also recovered were two other paintings, one unidentified and the other, "Farm Buildings" by William Thon, an American artist.

"In addition," the FBI said, "numerous drawings and art objects valued at approximately $25,000 were recovered in New York City."

The art treasures were stolen last May 9 from the estate of David Daniels in Patterson, N.Y., in suburban Putnam County. Daniels, who also has a New York City home, was in Paris at the time.

Sedita Seeks New Term

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP)—Mayor Frank A. Sedita, endorsed by the Erie County Democratic Party, is the first mayor of Buffalo to seek a second consecutive term since 1927.

The executive committee of the Erie County organization made the endorsement Thursday.

A city charter provision, adopted in 1927, forbade a second consecutive term until it was changed last year.

Might Have Been Better

Egyptian Sect Thinks Adam Should Have Kept His Rib

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — An ancient Egyptian religious sect believed that if the rib had stayed inside Adam's chest, mankind would have been spared a lot of misery.

This sect believed that so long as the woman was inside Adam's chest, there was no death and the world was a paradise. But separation of woman from man was one of the "mistakes" in a bad job of creation that brought no end of trouble to the world.

The primitive people who held these ideas were known as the "Gnostics" and were considered heretics by other early Christians. Scholars have discovered the theorizing about Adam's rib in Gnostic "gospels" found 13 years ago in a monastery near Nag Hammadi in upper Egypt but only now being fully studied. There are hints in these writings that suggest the Gnostics may have practiced ceremonial nudism and perhaps engaged in mysterious sexual rites.

These writings are in the Coptic (Old Egyptian) language, and scholars consider them among the most important historical finds in many years. Most of the writings are now in the Coptic Museum in Old Cairo.

The documents include a series of gospels—the "Gospel of Truth" the "Gospel of Philip," the Gospel of Thomas." There also are three versions of the "Apocrypha of John."

Writing on the subject in The Biblical Archaeologist, Dr. Floyd V. Filson of McCormick Theological Seminary notes that early Christian writers accused the Gnostics of irregular sexual practices, and some hints in the Gospel of Philip document indicate their suspicions may have been well founded.

In Philip's Gospel, the holy of holies in the temple is called the "bedchamber" and there are references to giving birth and conceiving by kissing.

Barber Honored for Praising Schenectady

SCHENECTADY, N.Y. (AP) — Alfred Falcone is a barber who does not mix hair-cutting with idle gossip and has a citation to prove it.

Falcone, a native of Italy, has been honored by the Schenectady Chamber of Commerce and the Industrial Development Council for being "a dyed-in-the-wool Schenectady fan who says no wrong of anything in Schenectady and, with every snip of the shears, in fact, sings the city's praises."

Boy Lured Away By Woman, Left At Rail Siding

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP)—A five-year-old Buffalo boy was bound, gagged and partly disrobed Thursday by a woman who lured him away from some playmates and then left him on a New York Central railroad right-of-way on the city's West side.

The boy, Richard Edmiston, was the second child to be treated in a similar manner in the last two months.

Police said the boy was not molested sexually.

Police said a gray-haired woman lured his friends and left with Edmiston's pants, stripped him to his underclothes and pulled a paper bag over his head.

The boy managed to loosen his bonds and crawled to a nearby house.

Fire Delays Commuters

NEW YORK (AP) — Thousands of commuters were delayed getting home Thursday night when a fire broke out on a third rail of the New York Central Railroad tracks during the rush hour.

The blaze in Manhattan immobilized the 5:03 to Brewster, the 5:09 to Crestwood and the 5:06 to Mount Vernon. It also caused some other delays on the line's Harlem and Hudson Divisions.

Rail Firm Pays Its 89th Dividend

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP)—The Rochester & Genesee Valley Railroad, which hasn't had a foot of track or a piece of rolling stock since 1871, has paid its stockholders a dividend for the 89th consecutive year.

Directors of the railroad met Friday, declared the $4 dividend and reelected John W. Remington of Rochester president of the line.

Spring Valley Bengals Here Saturday for NY-NJ Contest

It's hard to fault a ball club that has won five straight games in the New York-New Jersey League, boasts the two best pitchers, the leading batter and home run hitter.

The Kingston Braves possess all these stout credentials going into Saturday night's encounter with the Spring Valley Bengals, 1960 champions, at Dietz Stadium. Game time is 8:30 p. m. But will the fans get the message?

Despite intensive promotion, a meagre 300 fans looked on at the home opener last Saturday night against the Kinderhook Columbians.

General Manager Fred Davi is hoping for better statistics at the box office Saturday night. The Bengals are always a lively ball club and are in the Western Division of the league along with West Haverstraw and Newburgh.

Corwin or Maines

It will be either southpaw Bob Maines or Al Corwin, former New York Giant pitcher, going for the Braves and either is quite capable of making it six in a row for the locals.

Corwin, relying on control and a beautifully controlled curve ball, has been a sensation in his appearances to date. In his first 17 innings, he struck out 29, walked six and didn't allow an earned run.

Maines, who commutes from the Coast Guard station in Connecticut, is Manager Pullie's second choice. Also on the scene will be southpaw Larry De Vita and Frank Horan, a former West Haverstraw flinger who turned in an impressive relief stint against Millbrook.

Dennis Casey has two home runs. Charlie Pike is batting .583. They'll be on display Saturday night at the stadium against Spring Valley.

TO COMPETE IN DOG SHOW—Two bloodhounds, Diamond Jim and Bugler Ann, owned by Ralph Crookston, Carmel, will be among some 400 dogs entered in the 18th annual dog show sponsored by the Mid-Hudson Kennel Club at the Dutchess County Fairgrounds, Rhinebeck, on Saturday, June 24.

Kennel Club Annual Show Set Saturday

The Mid-Hudson Kennel Club will hold its 18th Annual Dog Show on Saturday, June 24, at the Dutchess County Fairground, Rhinebeck.

Almost 400 dogs will be exhibited, with over 70 different breeds represented.

Judging will start at 8 a. m. and at 1 p. m. there will be Junior Showmanship Competition. An outstanding exhibition of Man-Trailing Bloodhounds is scheduled at 2 p. m., followed by the judging of the Variety Groups and Best In Show.

The exhibition of Man-Trailing Bloodhounds will feature the famous Diamond Jim and Bugler Ann owned by Undersheriff Ralph Crookston of Carmel.

These two bloodhounds have gained nationwide attention for their many successful, sometimes sensational, finds, often under adverse trailing and weather conditions.

Astonishing Feats

They have successfully trailed a child simply by sniffing the handlebars of his bicycle; a criminal on a trail 55 hours old, and an escapee from one whiff of a rug on which he had slept in an unoccupied house. One of the finest demonstrations of their trailing ability was at a local sportsman's show, where they trailed separate runners through a crowd of at least 1000 persons, to find the runners concealed in separate exhibits.

Diamond Jim was acclaimed the outstanding man-trailer of the 1958 American Bloodhound Field Trial, by running a faultless one mile trail in 12½ minutes. Bugler Ann placed second in the same class. Many publications and columnists have recognized them for their accomplishments, and in addition they have appeared in the film "Naked City."

Diamond Jim and Bugler Ann have been diligently trained and exclusively handled by their owner Ralph Crookston and District Game Protector George Odell.

Saratoga Winner Runs 2:02.4 Mile

Shadydale Monitor and Shadydale King took both ends of the $3,000 Menands Pace at Saratoga Raceway last night.

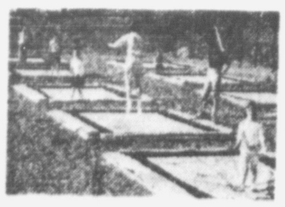

Shadydale Monitor posted a 2:02 4-5, the fastest time of the season. Billy Current had his horse tucked back of Conewago, who set a torrid 1:00 for the first half mile. He took the colt out at the three quarter pole and won going away.

The winner paid $3.00, $2.50 and $2.20. Refreight was second and True Gold finished third.

Driver Don Bromley took Shadydale King out of second spot at the three quarter pole and the three year old won by three lengths in 2:06 to cop the second division.

The horse paid $17.20, $4.70 and $3.70. Congress Belle rallied in the stretch to finish second and Ensign Bullet was third.

Fred LaRouech, last summer's leading winner, won his first two races at this meet by capturing both halves of the daily double. The combination of 4-3 paid $91.80, the highest of the meet.

The Rebel Returns

Onteora Slates Card Sunday; Big Car Racing on July 4

Onteora Speedway Park expects another slambang auto racing card Sunday, with the field chasing D. D. (Rebel) Harris, the three-time winner from Poughkeepsie.

The festivities start at 2:30 p. m., with such formidable opponents as Don Avery, Stretch Van Steenburg, Walt Schubert, Johnny Flach and others trying to check the Rebel's rampart run at Onteora.

But track operator Dick Lane is looking beyond Sunday's card to Tuesday, July 4, when championship type Indianapolis open cockpit auto racing invades the Catskills for the first time.

A seven-event program sanctioned by the United Racing Club will be held at the Speedway.

Sam Nunis, noted auto race director in charge of the holiday bill, said that 30 star drivers and cars were expected in the field prior to the closing date for entries July 1. The URC, with headquarters in Rochester and Philadelphia, Pa., is the largest sprint car racing group in the nation.

The July 4 races will be the first featuring the Indianapolis-type cars to be conducted on the Onteora Speedway. Now in its second season of operation, the trim semi-banked half-mile dirt oval is ranked among the east's best, both for speed and decor.

Richard L. Lane, Speedway president, already has plans under way to have the Oliver Bridge strip "record ready" for the holiday speedfest. Along with other adjustments, the track is to be treated with 10 tons of dust-withholding chloride in order to afford everyone a clear view of the action.

A 25-lap Onteora Speedway inaugural sweepstakes has top billing on the seven-event card, Nunis stated. Opening car warmups, 3 10-lap qualifying heats, a special match race, and a 12-lap semi-feature complete the bargain bill, with the warmups set for 1:30 p. m. and the first race for 2:30 p. m.

Speedy Time Wins Buffalo Feature

Speedy Time sped home in 2:03 to win the $17,046 W. N. Reynolds Memorial Stake at Buffalo Raceway, richest event of the night at New York State harness tracks.

Fifteen horses were entered in the stake Thursday night for three-year-old pacing colts and geldings, one of the $112,000 Reynolds Memorials this week and next at the Hamburg, N.Y., track.

The winner, which finished fifth in one of two elimination dashes, was piloted by John Patterson in the final and paid $12.40. Largo Hanover and Star Gem finished second and third. Star Gem also had won the first elimination and Largo Hanover the second.

Roosevelt Raceway — Culver Pick toured the mile in 2:00 3-5 to win the $4,500 Class AA-1 Pace by 3½ lengths. Flying Time was second and Mocking Byrd third.

Hugh Bell drove the winner, a 2-1 favorite which paid $6.30.

Shadydale King won the second division by 2½ lengths and clocked a 2:06 mile. The brother of the first division's Shadydale Monitor, Shadydale King paid $17.20. Congress Belle crossed the line second and Ensign Bulletin was third.

Vernon Downs—One of the nation's leading two-year-old pacing colts, Mighty Tar Heel broke his career record with a 2:03 2-5 mile to take the $1,500 co-feature. With Al Winger in the sulky, the winner paid $3.50. Don Roberto was second and Leica Rail was third.

In the filly feature, Lady Gold led all the way and registered a 2:01 2-5 mile. She paid $10 and was driven by Charlie Shaver, a co-owner. Fay Farvel was in place and Just Joan in show as they crossed the wire.

NLL Tigers No-Hit Cubs, 4-0

Steve VanDyke hurled a brilliant no-hitter in a crucial National Little League game last night as the Tigers whitewashed the Cubs, 4-0, to clinch no worse than a tie for first round laurels.

A four run explosion in the second frame carried the Tigers to their triumph. Jim Schmidt, playing his final game for the winners, rapped a double to lead the attack. He also aided VanDyke's no-hitter by pitching the sixth frame.

Schmidt is moving with his family to Buffalo and his Tiger teammates presented him with an autographed bat before the game.

Ford Wins 12th Game For Yanks

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Sports Writer

The Detroit Tigers retained a one-game lead in the American League with a 6-4 victory at Washington Thursday night while the second place New York Yankees, with Whitey Ford winning his 12th and Roger Maris hitting his 27th home run, breezed past Kansas City 8-3. The victory also gave the Tigers a three-game bulge over idle Cleveland as they head into a four-game series against the third place Indians tonight.

Baltimore beat Minnesota 8-2 and Boston defeated the Los Angeles Angels 3-2 in the only other games scheduled Thursday night.

Maris hit a pair of doubles and a single in addition to the homer, a three-run shot off loser Norm Bass (4-6) that capped a five-run second inning for the Yankees. It was Maris' 15th home run in June three shy of the major league record.

Consecutive doubles by Rocky Colavito and Norm Cash cracked a 4-4 tie in the seventh inning for the Tigers, who twice had to come from behind before handing the Senators their sixth straight defeat.

Gus Triandos drove in five runs with three hits, two of them doubles, as the Orioles beat the Twins and southpaw Jim Kaat (2-7).

There were 15 bases on balls but only five hits in Boston's squeeker at Los Angeles. The Red Sox, behind the two-hit pitching of rookie Galen Gisco and winning reliever Mike Fornieles (5-2), won it on a third-inning single by Chuck Schilling.

Efforts Are Underway to Form Ulster County Pistol League

Anthony Seteriano of the Rondout Valley pistol team and John Ray Mayone, Kingston City Marshal, are collaborating their efforts to organize an Ulster County Pistol league.

There are now several pistol teams in Ulster County and it is hoped to unite them into an organized league with regularly scheduled matches, basic rules, trophies, etc.

Mike Spada of Spada's Sport Shop, 594 Broadway, has made known plans to sponsor a team and all pistol shooters in the Kingston area are invited to join. Mayone is acting as temporary chairman of the team in an effort to assist in its formation.

Shooters in the Saugerties area may contact Ben Sanford, president of the Saugerties pistol team.

Matches will be regulation N.R.A., 25 yards, with either .22 or .38 pistols being used. Shoots will be scheduled on a home and home series and will be held at night.

A meeting will be called soon to set up the basic rules of the league and those interested may contact either of the officials named above.

Braves Get Hot In Pennant Race

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The Milwaukee Braves are on a home run binge and everybody is getting into the act in a bid to make up ground in the National League race.

The Braves cracked five more homers, including a pair by left fielder Frank Thomas, Thursday night in defeating San Francisco 8-6 and extending their winning streak to four games, the club's longest of the season.

The five fence-clearing shots boosted Milwaukee's home run output to 35 in the last 13 games and 84 for the season. However, many of the homers have been wasted as the Braves have only a 7-6 record to show for the last couple of weeks.

"Our pitching just blew away a lot of those homers," said Manager Charlie Dressen. "But the pitching has been good in our last half dozen games, although (Bob) Buhl had his trouble against the Giants."

Dressen added: "With our hitters banging away, it's up to our pitching. We can keep on going if we get both. A long winning streak is a pretty tough thing to pull off in this league, but we can win a lot more than we'll lose."

Redlegs Increase NL Lead

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Sports Writer

The Cincinnati Reds Defeated St. Louis 7-5 Thursday night for a two-game lead in the National League pennant race after the second place Los Angeles Dodgers lost 7-5 to the Chicago Cubs. The Dodgers open a three-game series at Cincinnati tonight.

Milwaukee spilled third place San Francisco four games from the top by beating the Giants 8-6. And Pittsburgh defeated Philadelphia 5-1.

The Reds, out-hit 8-6 by the Cards, came from behind with two runs in the fourth inning, then wrapped it up with a three-run sixth off loser Larry Jackson (5-7).

George Altman, Billy Williams and Jerry Kindall each hit home runs and drove in two runs as the Cubs beat the Dodgers for only the third time in 12 games. The Dodgers, who had homers by John Roseboro, Daryl Spencer and Duke Snider, blew a 4-1 lead.

The fifth-place Braves, winning four in a row for the first time, hammered five home runs, two by Frank Thomas, while putting away a three-game sweep over the Giants.

Two home runs by catcher Smoky Burgess drove in the Pirates' first four runs. Both shots were off John Buzhardt (2-8), who hit Burgess with a pitch in his third trip to the plate and was handed an automatic $50 "beanball" fine.

Duster Incident In Philadelphia

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A duster ball incident which led to the banishment of Manager Gene Mauch of Philadelphia Thursday night and carried over into an argument in the umpires' dressing room stole some of the limelight from Bob Friend's fine pitching in a 5-1 Pittsburgh victory.

Ironically, the duster incident revolved around Pirates' catcher Smoky Burgess, who belted two home runs in leading the Pirates' eight-hit attack off loser Johnny Buzhardt and Dallas Green.

Mauch was thrown out of the game in the sixth inning by plate Umpire Chris Pelekoudas after Pelekoudas had warned Buzhardt for allegedly throwing at Burgess, who was up for the third time.

Burgess had connected for homer No. 6 in the second inning and No. 7 in the fourth, accounting for four runs. Right after Mauch was thrown out, Burgess was hit by a pitch and went to first base.

The umpires were quoted as saying Mauch ordered Buzhardt to throw at Burgess and that the pitcher was not to blame because "he was just following orders."

When told of this Mauch went into the umpires' dressing room and argued with Pelekoudas and senior Umpire Jocko Conlan.

"If they said I told Buzhardt to hit him," Mauch said, "they're lying. I didn't tell Buzhardt to hit him."

AFL Committee Rules Tie Games Will Remain

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Regular season tie games in the American Football League will remain just that.

The league's executive committee rejected Thursday a proposal that would have extended the championship sudden-death playoff to all league games.

The committee also turned down a proposed rule change that would require all kickoffs to be run back except those that go beyond the end zone.

The Nimrod's Corner

By Old Doc

Not all the anglers who read this column are trout fishermen. Why anyone prefers the warm water species to those found in our streams and reservoirs is difficult to explain. The forthcoming opening of bass fishing on the first of July is eagerly anticipated by many. Others have been fishing for pike and pickerel for several months, but few go after the so called "pan fish" unless they have youngsters as their companions. One of the exceptions to this is Harry Edinger, the genial Sanitary Engineer of the Ulster County Department of Health.

Harry and his sons are all-around sportsmen enjoying hunting as well as angling. Although the old man is showing the passing years and has lost his shooting eye, the boys are fine rifle shots and as good as any in the Hudson Valley. One, while in service, was on the United States Army rifle team, placed in the top five at the annual Camp Perry national matches and was the first alternate on the three man rifle team that two years ago journeyed to the Soviet Union to engage in a series of matches. The other boys have shot on their college rifle teams and because of demonstrated skill, have also participated on nearby teams that shot competitively.

ALWAYS A GOOD HAUL:

While the Edingers are good trout fishermen, they have also found many wonderful hours fishing for crappies. Launching their boat in the Rondout around Creek Locks, and armed with plenty of minnows for bait, they drift down stream to the falls at Eddyville. When the boat is finally beached, seldom do they come ashore without at least 50 crappies and very often they surpass the century mark. By any standards, that many of the species on a light fly rod is darn good sport. Before leaping to the telephone to call that buddy who has a boat trailer and making a date to embark on a similar excursion on the morrow, it might be well to take a few more minutes to finish the column and learn the special knack that Harry and Company use to catch these fish.

The primary secret is the use of a "stoolie". Once a crappie is caught, a string is drawn thrown the gills and a float attached. The fish is returned to the water and it immediately heads for the school from whence it came. Following the float, the exact location of the large number of fish is readily ascertained. This however, isn't the only part of the technique. The exact level of the crappies must also be learned since the fish feed on a certain strata and one foot above or below, very often will mean coming home empty handed. Experimenting with the depth, the proper level, soon discloses where the fish are lying.

CHANGE WITH WATER LEVEL

The crappies usually feed around the old brush in the Rondout. For some unexplained reason, they don't care for the newer branches that have found their way into the creek. One further thing, when the water is high the fish can be found on the bank side of the heap, while when the water recedes during dry spells, fish on the channel side for the best results.

The success of the Edingers for the past four or five years above the Eddyville Falls will come as a surprise to many who thought they knew all the good angling spots in the country. Probably, I'll be boiled in oil for letting the cat out of the bag, on what to now has been a secret spot they've had pretty much to themselves. Most people thought that with the exception of carp, the Rondout was void of all fish. Why not try it soon and for added enjoyment, why not take along a youngster?

Nicklaus Is Favored In Big 10 Golf Tourney

LAFAYETTE, Ind. (AP)—Ohio State's Jack Nicklaus, the country's leading amateur just at voting age, was a solid favorite to win the Big Ten's 10th National Collegiate Golfing Championship going into the semifinals of the 64th tourney today.

He had two other Big Ten players for company in the foursome left 199 starters — his opponent, sharp putting Gene Hunt of Michigan State, and his teammate on the Ohio State team, Mike Podolski.

Podolski faced Steve Smith of Stanford, a Green Bay Wis., boy who deserted the Big Ten territory and pulled the major upset of last year's NCAA meet by knocking off Nicklaus 4 and 3 in the third round.

East Gridders Heavy Favorites

By BOB POWELL
Associated Press Sports Writer

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — The East squad was rated a 2-1 favorite to defeat the West in tonight's All-American Graduation football game at Buffalo's War Memorial Stadium.

But the rating drew a guffaw from East co-coach Rip Engle of Penn State.

"How can one team be rated over another in a game of this kind," Engle asked.

"If you have to pick a winner, the choice must go to the West," he said. "They had their offense in readiness before the players got off the train."

Engle pointed out that the West squad included five players from Washington's Rose Bowl champions.

"When you have a center (Roy McKasson) and a quarterback (Bob Schloredt) that have worked together, you have one step on your opponent," Engle said.

He added that Washington also was represented by an end (Lee Folkins) and a halfback (George Flemming).

The East's ranking apparently was based on its abundance of explosive runners and accurate passers, but the West wasn't lacking in either category.

The game, sponsored by the American Football Coaches Association, will be broadcast nationally, (Mutual) and an independent television network will air the game with much of the immediate area blacked out.

The kickoff is scheduled for 9 p.m., EDT.

Par Is Wrecked In Western Open

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (AP)— Par in today's second round of the Western Open Golf Tournament should look a good deal less like a holiday turkey after a boarding house dinner.

Tee markers were moved back to normal placing after 61 sizzling players in the 149 man field gorged themselves on sub-par scores to start the $30,000 event Thursday.

Already Arnold Palmer of Miami, Fla., and ex-University of Southern California golfer Al Geiberger took the biggest bite. They led the field with 6-under-par 65s.

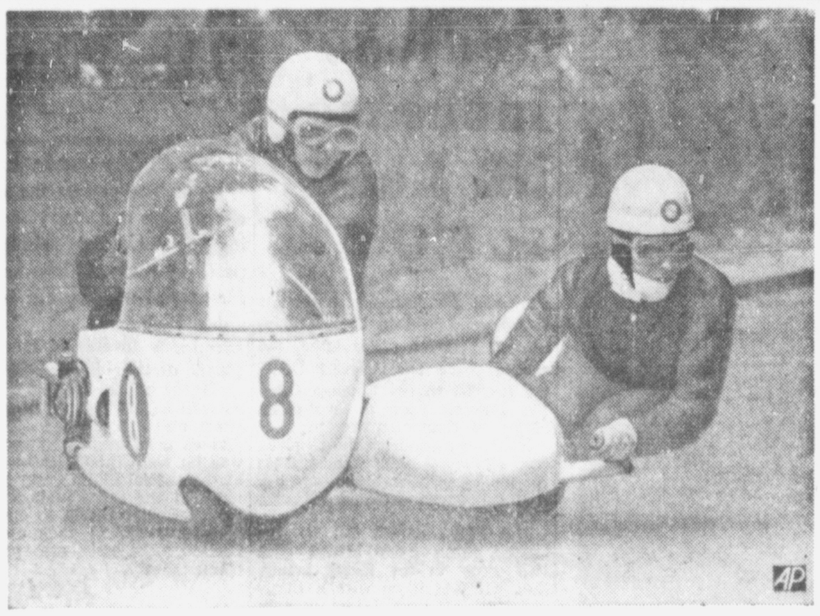

The 6,730-yard Blythfield Country Club course plays to a par of 36-35—71.

Filly Title Race Slated at Belmont

By ORLO ROBERTSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

Even though it is only the middle of June, the 3-year-old filly title will be on the line Saturday when once-beaten Bowl of Flowers and undefeated Funloving hook up in the $100,000 added Coaching Club American Oaks at Belmont Park.

At the same time, Four-and-Twenty will attempt to nail the West Coast's 3-year-old title in the $50,000 added Cinema Handicap at Hollywood Park.

The Oaks, at 1¼ miles, and the Cinema, at 1⅛ miles, are the two leading attractions on the national racing program which also includes the $50,000-added Michigan Mile at Detroit, the $30,000-added Laurance Armour Memorial Handicap at Arlington Park, the $20,000-added Lamplighter 'Cap at Monmouth Park, the $20,000-added Christiana Stakes at Delaware Park and the $10,000-added Constitution Handicap at Suffolk Downs.

The Oaks figures to draw six top-ranking fillies but a victory for other than the Brookmeade Stable's Bowl of Flowers or Ogden Phipps' Funloving would be something of an upset.

Heroic Homer Hit at Geneva

It was the last of the ninth, two were out and the bases were loaded. Then Cesar Tovar rapped a double to right center and the league-leading Geneva Redlegs had a 7-6 win over the Erie Sailors in a New York-Penn League baseball game at Geneva.

There were plenty of other thrills Thursday night as Mike Cloutier singled to right in the last of the 12th to score Chico Martines for a 7-6 Jamestown victory over Elmira. Cloutier had walloped a grand slam homer in the fifth.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Hitting—Frank Thomas, Braves, belted two home runs and single, driving in four runs, in 8-6 victory over Giants.

Pitching—Galen Cisco and Mike Fornieles, Red Sox, paired for two-hit, 3-2 victory over Angeles with Fornieles pitching five innings of no-hit, shutout relief.

Banks Might Miss His First Game After 717 Straight

CHICAGO (AP) — Today is the day of decision for ailing Ernie Banks, the Chicago Cubs home run slugger, who holds the current major league record of 717 consecutive games played.

Ernie says he will end his playing streak at once and give his injured left knee a rest if his doctor so advises.

He has an appointment with Dr. Ralph Metz, the Cubs' physician, before the team leaves for Milwaukee to play the Braves tonight.

Banks suffered a knee injury with the army in Germany before he entered major league baseball. It has bothered him off and on for years. The condition was aggravated again when he ran into a wall while playing in San Francisco Sunday.

John Holland, the Cubs vice president, said the need for surgery to remove loose cartilage is not immediate but that the decision will be left to Banks.

Columbus Lead Is Now One Game

One good way for a pitcher—and sometimes the best way—to become a big winner is to have his club's heavy artillery blitz his opponent.

That's what happened to Bob Veale of the Columbus Jets Thursday night as he became the International League's biggest winner this season, racking up victory No. 8 in beating the Rochester Red Wings 6-5.

The victory upped the Jets' first place margin to a full game over Charleston, which split a doubleheader against Toronto. The Maple Leafs won the opener 5-2 but Charleston came back to win a 14-inning nightcap 3-2. Richmond won an 11-inning verdict in the nightcap of a twin-bill against Syracuse 6-5 while the Chiefs took the opener 8-4. Jersey City and Buffalo's doubleheader was rained out.

Triplets Shave Springfield Lead

Binghamton ace Al Downing has blazed his way to his sixth straight victory without a loss and he couldn't have picked a better time to do it.

Just when it appeared that the Springfield Giants might be building a big lead in the Eastern League race, Downing came on Thursday night to stop their win streak and shave their margin to 2½ games.

Mrs. Brandt Is Candidate for Post on Board

Mrs. Everett T. Brandt of of Quarry ville has filed a petition with Mrs. Margaret Marburger, district clerk of the Saugerties Central Schools, which qualifies her as a candidate for the board of education for a three year term being vacated by Mrs. Mary Lasher.

Mrs. Brandt, born in Brooklyn and a graduate of the Bay Ridge High School, has been a resident of Quarryville for the past seven years. She resides there with her husband and three children, Edward, Robert and Lois. Brandt operates the Hilltop Chevron Station, Quarryville.

Mrs. Brandt is the fifth area resident to file a petition for the four openings on the board. Charles Ollinger and Norman Nitschke have filed for the one year term to fill the unexpired term of Kenneth Beadle who resigned. Henry Breitenbach has filed for the three year term to be vacated by John Lowther, who is not running again, and Steve Stycos is running for re-election for a three year term.

The final day for filing petitions is June 28 at the district clerk's office, administrative building, Hill Street.

Mt. Marion Has Graduation Rite

Graduation exercises were held on Thursday at the Mt. Marion School for the sixth grade students who will be entering the Saugerties Junior High School in September.

Following the processional and the opening services, Carol Wrolsen presented the welcome to the assemblage which included Dr. Grant D. Morse, superintendent of the Saugerties Schools, and the parents and guests of the student body.

Miss Judith Madsen, teacher of the graduating class, in a brief address, thanked the parents for the cooperation during the year and wished the graduates success in their new venture.

Dr. Morse advised the graduates to respect their parents and their opinions, and not to underestimate the value of their advice. He also reminded them to be an individual and not to compare themselves with their neighbors or friends but to do the best they can in their own way.

The choir sang two selections, Born to Be Free, by Ralph Williams and Climb Every Mountain, by Rogers and Hammerstein. The string group played The Merry Pheasant, by Schumann.

Miss May Evans, principal, presented diplomas to Christine Breitenbach, Laura Burch, Kathleen Donaldson, Bonnie Haslam, Karen Holloran, Lenore Hydo, Hannelore Jung, Margaret Kearney, Nancy Kremper, Cynthia Kolb, Beverly Myer, Kathy Proper, Judith Patryk, Linda Reese, Wenda Risdal, Roberta Stoff, Linda Voigt, Carol Wrolsen and Dorothy Young.

Also William Beechel, Richard Delahant, Joseph Ferraro, Gilbert Hartrum, Melvin Hauck, Joseph Hinchey, Mark Muscarella, Dennis Myer, Bruce O'Neal, Paul Quinn and Harold Van Etten.

Three pupils graduating from the Cedar Grove School were also present and received their diplomas, Edward Vaughn, Frances Avery and Terry Copeman.

The afternoon's program culminated with the singing of the Alma Mater.

School Budget Items Explained

The following information is another in a series of releases to be made to residents of the Saugerties Central School District concerning the school budget and the cost of maintaining facilities for the district.

The budget hearing will be held July 11 at the high school.

The Citizens Advisory Committee, of which Miss Grace Anderson and Norman Nitschke are co-chairmen, has suggested to the Saugerties Board of Education that they correct public misunderstanding by issuing a public statement on Main Street and Hill Street Schools — why they are not considered useful.

These questions have been explored and extensively reviewed in the local press on previous occasions. The question of the most advisable use of the Hill Street building was discussed in a local paper Monday, Sept. 26, 1960. On that date, the president of the board, John Lowther, wrote the editor as follows:

"The administration building was originally used for school purposes. This building is more than 100 years old. It is located in an exposed position, about 20 feet from Route 9W. It is also a central receiving and disbursing center for all supplies used in our schools. It is doubtful if any money could be saved by hiring quarters for the administration force and using this building again for school rooms."

Again on Dec. 15, 1960, an article appeared in a local paper with the heading, "Top Floor of Main Street School Not to Be Used."

"In accordance with the advice of the State Education Department, the Saugerties Board of Education at a special meeting on Tuesday evening, voted not to use the top floor of the Main Street building for classroom purposes.

"There were some members of the board who believed that the risk of using these rooms should be undertaken, but the majority voted to the contrary.

"Prior to the vote, a letter from Charles E. Fake, Fire Safety Coordinator of the State Education Department, senior architect in the Division of School Buildings and Grounds, was read. The letter, dated Oct. 20, 1960, follows:

"This will confirm my visit to the Main Street and Cedar Grove Schools on Monday, Oct. 10, 1960.

"It has been a standard procedure with this office to recommend that elementary children not be housed on floors above the second in buildings of brick exterior, wood interior construction. This recommendation was made to your centralization committee but when I visited your buildings I found the fire escape had been extended to the floor in question and that elementary pupils had been using the classrooms on this floor for audio visual and music.

"We were disappointed that you did not accept our recommendations at the time of centralization but we would again strongly recommend that this area be completely evacuated."

Again on Feb. 23, 1961, an article appeared in a local paper which read in part as follows:

"The Citizens' School Advisory Committee met Monday night at the high school cafeteria and heard a report from Vytautas Mecionis of the Buildings subcommittee. His committee checked the top floor of the Main Street School to determine if it was satisfactory for classrooms and agreed after inspection that the recommendation of the New York State Education Department fire inspector should be followed, and the rooms not be occupied by children. It is now being used as an elementary library."

In addition to the above releases, Norman Nitschke, co-chairman of the Citizens Advisory Committee, made the following report (in substance) to the Advisory Committee Feb. 20, 1961:

"I have been told in the community that it cost $80,000 to make the alterations at the Hill Street building. I found that the cost was actually $8,000. The elementary library which is on the top floor of the Main Street building is currently serving in excess of 1700 pupils. Charles E. Fake, fire safety coordinator of the New York State Education Department, has recommended that the top floor of the Main Street building not be used by pupils. It has been proposed by some that the Administrative Offices be located on the top floor of the Main Street building. To do this would require throwing away the money that was spent on restoring the Hill Street building, plus the cost of readapting the Hill Street building to pupil use, plus the cost of accommodating the top floor of the Main Street building to office use — and then you would have an undesirable building for instructional purposes at Hill Street."

Wins Math Honors

Frank Galietta, Saugerties High School senior, was presented on Moving-Up Day with a certificate as the winner in his school in the high school mathematics contest sponsored by the Mathematical Association of America and the Society of Actuarius.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Galietta and intends to enter Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute in the fall.

Second and third place winners were Pamela LaPlante and Albert Giannotti.

Over 2,000 upstate New York seniors entered the contest, held on March 9, and Galietta's score was in the upper quarter of all individual scores. The team score of the top three students was well above the average team score for this district.

Movie Star Adds Worldly Quality To Tone of Voice

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-TV Writer
(Second of two articles)

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP)—The voice had the familiar, warmly American tone. But William Holden seemed to have an added quality of worldly awareness.

I hadn't seen him in three years. During that time he had chosen, like many creative Americans in the 1920s, to be an expatriate. But unlike the Hemingways and Fitzgeralds, his absence has brought storms of protest.

Explains Change

Bill Holden prowled his hotel suite and explained why he has changed his residence from Toluca Lake, Calif., to St. Prex, Switzerland.

Some of his arguments were familiar—that the central Swiss location gives him more home life between his farflung enterprises (a safari club in Kenya, radio station in Hong Kong, acting jobs all over). For instance, he will stop off home between finishing "Counterfeit Traitor" here and starting "The Devil 'never Sleeps" in London.

It is no accident that Bill's pictures have an international flavor.

"That's what interests me; that's where I think I can do some good," he said. "The stories I look for are ones that show an American in an international situation. They're the ones that make money, and I'm not out to make producers lose.

"I've tried the strictly American films like 'Toward the Unknown' and 'The Horse Soldiers.' They don't sell. But something like 'Suzie Wong,' which some people scoffed at, is headed for $10 million."

Lives in Chalet

Holden lives in a chalet (with his furniture from the San Fernando Valley) along with his wife, Ard S. and their two sons, Wes, 17, and Scott, 15. They boat and water ski, attend the theater in nearby Lausanne but see few movies — "They're dubbed in French and are pretty miserable."

The boys go to a swiss school—"They're brighter than other American boys their age." As to their having American roots, Holden said their early years provided that. The plan is for them to return to the United States for two years of college, then get their degrees in Europe.

Consumed 1,488 Pounds of Food

The average American consumed an estimated 1,488 pounds of food in 1960. Food processors and manufacturers provided news of their products via a $138 million expenditure in national newspaper advertising.

Article by Area Doctor Published In Time Magazine

Dr. B. Bohdan Wassell, of 81 Prospect Street, New Paltz had published a brief resume of a new type of group psychoanalysis in an article in the June 9, 1961, issue of Time magazine.

Although Dr. Wassell lives in New Paltz, he has offices in both Poughkeepsie and New York City. He also lectured on the subject of this article for the Association of Medical Group Psychoanalysis in New York City.

The method used as explained in the article brings together four families at one time, one parent and one child from each family.

An adolescent who has a mental social problem often, it was found, is involved in an intertwined parent-child problem. Therefore, by working in a group, each individual or family can, by hearing and discussing others' problems, gain insight into their own problems and how it may be solved, the article said.

Dr. Wassell also has published a book entitled Group Psychoanalysis which is the first in its field.

Dr. Wassell has indicated that he would be interested in starting a child guidance clinic in New Paltz if enough people were interested.

Town Board Votes to Award Contract for Growth Plan

The Woodstock town board has authorized Supervisor Abram F. Molyneaux to contract for the services of planning consultant firm of Brown and Anthony of New York City to institute the Growth Plan for the township.

Action was taken at this week's meeting of the board, following a prior executive session between the town board and the Planning Board.

The growth plan will cost the township not more than $20,000 according to terms of the resolution.

The move to take the first positive step toward committing the township to planning and eventually zoning came after it was reported that $10,300 had been raised by voluntary pledges.

Another $10,000 has been pledged by J. C. van Rijn, president of Rotron Manufacturing Company, and chairman of the Planning Board.

The board's move failed to clarify the exact role to be played by van Rijn in the transaction. At a meeting of local businessmen in March, which was addressed by Dr. Harry Anthony of the Brown and Anthony firm, van Rijn had pledged $10,000 to match the first $10,000 raised by voluntary subscriptions.

At a later open meeting of local taxpayers, van Rijn clarified his position by stating that he would pledge the $10,000, "if needed."

Pledges are still being received and it will not be known for some time how much of the $10,000 pledge will be refunded to van Rijn, depending on the total voluntary pledges.

Issues Statement

Following unanimous board action, Supervisor Molyneaux issued the following statement:

"Authorization now has been given to execute a contract on behalf of the Woodstock Planning Board. With the help of the consultants with him we will contract, the Planning Board can go about the business of formulating a growth plan. The spade work will be done in the ensuing months, not at the expense of the taxpayers, but rather at the expense of those who have contributed to the special trust fund set up for planning purposes.

"The Growth Plan will have no effect by itself—it will merely be a guide. The development and subsequent success of the plan will depend, not upon those who have contributed money, but upon all of Woodstock's residents in their attendance and expression at the public hearings which will be held."

Other business transacted by the board included authorization to formulate a new contract with Central Hudson for the Woodstock lighting district; authorization for repairs to the water district and granting permission to the Little League for use of Andy Lee Memorial Field.

Present at the meeting was the entire board, including Supervisor Molyneaux, Councilmen Tobie Geertsema and John Pike; Justices of the Peace Charles A. Farley and Rudi Baumgarten and town clerk, Marjorie Harder.

GOLDEN ANNIVERSARY—Justice of the Peace Charles A. (Buck) Farley and Mrs. Farley proudly display the numeral 50, symbolic of the golden wedding anniversary they recently celebrated at a special Mass in the Brooklyn church where they were wed 50 years ago. The popular Woodstock couple also received the Papal Blessing. (Freeman photo)

Farleys Celebrate Golden Anniversary in Brooklyn

One of Woodstock's best known and most popular couples, Justice of the Peace and Mrs. Charles A. (Buck) Farley recently celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary at a special Mass of Thanksgiving at St. Rose of Lima's Church in Brooklyn, where the couple was married 50 years ago.

Monsignor James H. Casey, LLDPA, who was parish priest when the Farleys were married, celebrated the Mass. Mrs. Joseph Trottner, sister of Mrs. Farley, who was the bridesmaid in the wedding, was also present. Leo Farley, Mr. Farley's brother who was best man 50 years ago, could not attend because of illness.

The Papal Blessing was also bestowed upon Mr. and Mrs. Farley by Pope John.

Come From New York

Justice Farley is a charter member of St. Vincent de Paul Conference and is a graduate of Classen Point Military Academy.

The Farleys moved to Woodstock from New York nearly 20 years ago, following Justice Farley's retirement from the License Bureau of Manhattan. His father was sheriff and also chief of the old Brooklyn fire department.

In Woodstock, both Mr. and Mrs. Farley have been active in St. John's Parish and Mr. Farley is a trustee of the church. He was employed by the town of Woodstock as a traffic patrolman before being elected as Justice of the Peace. He is now serving his second term.

Justice and Mrs. Farley have received many congratulatory messages from local residents who know them as one of Woodstock's grandest couples.

Another New Art Gallery in Woodstock

Woodstock's newest art gallery is the Gladstone Gallery due to open soon on the lower Byrdcliffe Road. The director is Bertha Gladstone of Woodstock and Sarasota, Fla.

The gallery, which will be devoted to showing the works of contemporary painters and sculptors, is being readied on the spacious premises of "Rockledge" which were occupied some years ago by the Art Students League in Woodstock.

The Gladstone Gallery is planning a series of group shows of the works of well known artists from New York, the Woodstock area and from Sarasota. There will be private showings for collectors and exhibition hours will also be announced. The opening date of the first show will soon be announced.

Chandler Leaves Children Money In Will Carbon

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Jeff Chandler's attorney has filed in Superior Court a signed carbon copy of the actor's will, under which Chandler left more than $600,000 in trust for his two daughters.

A petition accompanying the will Thursday said the original of the document, dated June 9, 1959, had not been found. The court was asked to recognize the carbon copy.

The will made no provision for Chandler's former wife Marjorie. She received a property settlement at the time of the couple's divorce. The divorce became final Aug. 26, 1960 and the daughters Jamie, now 14, and Dana, now 11 —have lived with her since.

Chandler, 42, died June 17 of complications following a back operation.

Hand Shows Bid Angles

BY OSWALD JACOBY
Written for
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

With the heart opening South has nine easy tricks at no-trump. With any other lead he has to worry along for a while, but eventually he will take and win the heart finesse.

The hand is shown to illustrate two important points in bidding.

The first is that North elects to bid two clubs, not three diamonds in response to his partner's diamond opening. His reason is that he does not want to crowd the bidding with two suits unstopped.

South's two no-trump rebid is proper. He only has 14 high card points, but he has stoppers in both unbid suits and near no-trump distribution.

North had planned to show diamond support, but after South's rebid to two no-trump he sees no reason to complicate the bidding. He has 11 points, five potential diamond tricks, and a no-trump type hand also.

It is interesting to note that if North responds with three diamonds and South rebids either three hearts or three spades it will be very hard for North to go to three no-trump. At the same time, it would be difficult for South to go to three no-trump himself with that wide open club suit staring him in the face.

Glancing Over TV Bill of Fare

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP TV-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Although the quantity is small, TV highlights during the next few days offer plenty of variety for viewers.

"Person to Person," CBS' venerable program which has been among the missing this past season, pops up tonight as a summer replacement series (10:30-11 EDT) in its old time spot. Three Crosby brothers, Philip, Lindsey and Dennis, will be the first celebrities visited.

NBC has a new children's show, "Pip the Piper" bowing in Saturday morning (9:30-10). The network's "Nation's Future" that night (9:30-10:30) ought to be especially interesting. Presidential press secretary Pierre Salinger, Harrison Salisburg of the New York Times, Alekse Adzhubei, editor of Izvestia, and Mikhail Karlamov, chief of the Soviet Foreign Ministry's press section will debate freedom of the press.

Jane Morgan, the singer, will make her dramatic debut on Monday night's episode of "Peter Gunn" (ABC, 10:30-11). On Tuesday night (7-7:30) ABC will start its "Focus on America" series, programs developed by local TV stations during the season. The first is a study of the beginnings of the cattle industry made by an Oklahoma City station.

Shirley Booth and Gene Raymond will star in Wednesday night's steel hour (CBS, 10-11), "The Haven," a drama about a threatened marriage.

NEW YORK (AP)—Wayne and Shuster, the team of Canadian comedians who made their American debut as proteges of Ed Sullivan, will bow in Sunday night as stars of a situation comedy under the wing of Jack Benny.

In terms of prestige, this is very nice sponsorship.

The two comedians play social directors of a resort in the series, one of those setups dear to Hollywood comedy writers because it opens the door on a wide variety of — hopefully—amusing situations. "Holiday Lodge" is made by Benny's production company and will be the summer replacement for his program.

"We aren't completely sold on the 'Holiday Lodge' title," confessed Johnny Wayne. "We thought it would be helpful if we could call it 'The Jack Benny Show.'"

The team is also a little dubious about the format.

"What we really wanted to make," explained Frank Shuster, "was an underwater Western set in the 1920s. That would have really caught on."

Adlai Scotches Plot on Life

WASHINGTON (AP) — Officials in Washington and Argentina say there is no evidence to link the shooting of a U.S. Marine Guard in Buenos Aires with any plot to assassinate Adlai E. Stevenson.

And Stevenson, who returned Thursday from his tour of South America for President Kennedy, said he hadn't heard of any attempt to kill him. Stevenson is the U.S. ambassador to the United Nations.

Two New York area newspapers, the New York World Telegram and Sun and the Newark Star-Ledger, reported Thursday that a group of extremists had plotted to kill Stevenson during his recent visit to Buenos Aires. They said the Marine was wounded in an aftermath of the conspiracy.

At his news conference Thursday, Secretary of State Dean Rusk said a Marine, whom the State Department identified as Sgt. James J. Lucinskis, 24, of Chicago, was wounded recently by an Argentine civilian. But Rusk said there was no evidence connecting the shooting with Stevenson's visit.

Court Orders No Interference With Power Line Job

UTICA, N.Y. (AP)—Farmers in Marcy have feuded with the State Power Authority over construction of an electric transmission line across their land were under court order today not to interfere with the work.

Justice Bert B. Lockwood of State Supreme Court Thursday granted the power authority's request for a temporary restraining order and called a hearing July 5 to determine whether the order should be made permanent.

Eight landowners from the community in the Adirondack foothills were named in the order.

They and others have contended the authority was high-handed in acquiring easements across their land and slow to make payments. The authority has denied this. Clashes broke out recently between the farmers and construction crews.

The line is being built to link the Niagara and St. Lawrence power projects.

Ignored Before, Red Carpet Is Out Now

HAGERSTOWN, Md. (AP) — The Maryland town where a top African diplomat was refused restaurant service three months ago began rolling out a red carpet for his triumphal return today.

The guest of honor in a round of ceremonies here will be Dr. William Fitzjohn, former charge d'affaires for the Republic of Sierra Leone. Fitzjohn and his chauffeur, both Negroes, were denied service March 9 at a Howard Johnson restaurant near here.

Highlight of the visit will be a dinner in the city's leading hotel to which 200 Negro and white city residents are invited. Mayor Winslow Burhans, who invited Fitzjohn to return to Hagerstown, said he had done so "in the interest of justice" and as an extension of his apologies for the restaurant incident.

"The celebration will be the highlight of my two years' experience in the United States," Fitzjohn said.

Fitzjohn, who was appointed this week as high commissioner to the Court of St. James in London, had complained to the U.S. State Department after the restaurant incident. President Kennedy later asked governors of all states along the Atlantic Coast to be particularly careful to avoid discriminatory practices involving Africans.

The Howard Johnson restaurant promptly announced it had ended its policy of not serving Negroes, and Mayor Burhans sent an apology to Fitzjohn.

Probes Atlas Fizzle

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) —The Air Force, deeply concerned about the seventh failure in 10 launchings of an advanced Atlas missile, today sought the cause of the latest fizzle.

An 85-foot Atlas "E" model exploded several thousand feet over the Atlantic Ocean Thursday night, 95 seconds after it was launched on an intended 7,300-mile test.

Warming Trend Due for Nation

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Rather unseasonable coolness and widespread showers again dominated the weather picture in most of the Northern and Eastern sections of the nation today.

The principal shower band went across the Great Lakes region, the Ohio Valley and the New England States. Isolated showers were reported in the Texas Panhandle and in central Florida, but rain accumulation was light.

Scattered showers also fell over the Great Lakes and in upper New England, Illinois and Lower Michigan.

The Weather Bureau said a warming trend was on the way for most of the nation, but the early morning readings at Duluth, Minn. and Marquette, Mich. were 45.

Chatham Class Asks Better Care For Famous Grave

HUDSON, N.Y. (AP)—A class at Chatham elementary school thinks better care should be taken of the grave of Columbia County's most famous son, President Martin Van Buren.

The class wrote the editor of the Hudson Register-Star that it found "flowers dead a year ago" and a "tattered, small bleached-white flag" on the eighth President's grave in Kinderhook, his birthplace. The Kinderhook Chamber of Commerce removed the flowers and village officials promised further action.
